GOETHE.

PREFACE

THIS is the jubilee volume of the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, which was founded fifty years ago by the late Frederick Martin. An attempt has been made in the introductory matter and in the maps to indicate the contrast in certain aspects of the states of the world between then and now. Many changes have taken place in the internal constitutions and the external relations of the various states with which the YEAR BOOK is concerned. The YEAR BOOK itself has nearly trebled in size during the period. Many more aspects of the different states are dealt with now than was the case in the early form of the work, as may be seen by comparing the volume for the present year with its earliest predecessor.

In the present issue special attention is drawn to the introductory matter and maps and to the "ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS." As far as possible the changes which have taken place in the relations of certain states—Tripoli, Morocco, China, the Balkan Peninsula—have been dealt with. Under Canada a separate notice of each province has been added, while in other directions, as in agricultural statistics, considerable additions have been made. Throughout, the statistical and other information has been brought up to the latest available date.

The British Empire has again been under the care of Mr Augustus D Webb, B.Sc., the Army, of Colonel C. E. Callwell, C.B., the Navy, of Mr Fred T. Jane. I offer my warmest thanks to all those throughout the world who have kindly co-operated in the compilation of the new edition.

There are also other classes of the community, such as doctors, lawyers, and domestic servants, who do [redacted] produce material goods but acquire them [redacted] exchange for services. The total income of [redacted] country is made up [redacted] the value of the goods consumed or saved and of services, [redacted] embodied [redacted] material goods, rendered by some [redacted] its inhabitants to others for payment. [redacted] is estimated for 1907 [redacted] from 1,900 to 2,150 million pounds sterling, of which a sum lying between 329 and [redacted] millions sterling represents additions by all classes to savings and investments. Comparing the net output (712,000,000) of the industries dealt with [redacted] returns made to the Census of Production Office, [redacted] allowing for renewal of plant &c. with this estimate of the total income [redacted] United Kingdom, it would appear that the values created by those industries form about [redacted] third [redacted] the available income of the country. It is believed that the census covered all employers except those whose operations were [redacted] a very small [redacted] [redacted] of extreme irregularity.

OF OUCHY, October 16, 1912
(TURKEY AND ITALY)

The principal provisions of this treaty are as follows —

1 - [Italy maintains absolutely the ■■■ which declared her full and entire sovereignty
■■■ Lybia and, ■■■ consequence, denies any form of sovereignty there ■■■ part ■■■ Turkey, whether ■■■ or disguised, nominal, effective, ■■■ partial]

II —Turkey on her side, neither impugns nor acknowledges the sovereignty of Italy in Italy and in that nor offending against the letter of the Koran which forbids the cession of any part of the Caliph dom to any infidel Italy consents to forgo any formal recognition by Turkey, and is content with procuring a recognition of her rights from the Power

—Italy pledges herself to restore to Ottoman Empire islands in the Aegean which were occupied by her troops

IV -Italy accepts a clause, identical with that contained in the Austro Hungarian Treaty regarding Bosnia Herzegovina, dealing with the religious authority in the Caliph. Any kind of political interference is, however, expressly excluded.

Y - there shall be no question of a payment of indemnity by one side or the other. The sole engagement is a financial character which Italy is to make a payment of that part of Ottoman Public which is guaranteed by income from Iraq and Crete.

COMPULSORY SERVICE IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE

CANADA.

All the male inhabitants of Canada of the age of eighteen years and upwards are liable under the Militia Act, 1905, to be trained from the age of twelve to fourteen in the junior cadets, from fourteen to sixteen in the senior cadets, from sixteen to twenty-five in the citizen forces, and from twenty-five to thirty in the militia, but except in time of imminent danger the service shall be limited to one regular muster parade in each year.

(COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA)

All male inhabitants of Australia who have resided therein for six months and who are British subjects are liable to be trained from the age of twelve to fourteen in the junior cadets, from fourteen to sixteen in the senior cadets, from sixteen to twenty-five in the citizen forces, and from twenty-five to thirty in the militia, but except in time of imminent danger the service shall be limited to one regular muster parade in each year.

All male inhabitants of Australia who have resided therein for six months and who are British subjects and who are between the ages of eighteen and sixty years are in time of war liable to serve in the citizen forces.

NEW ZEALAND

All male inhabitants of New Zealand who have resided therein for six months and are British subjects are liable to be trained from the age of twelve to fourteen or on the date of leaving school, whichever is the later, in the junior cadets, from fourteen years, or the date of leaving school, to sixteen years in the senior cadets, and from sixteen years, or the date of leaving school, to the date of their leaving school, in the militia, but except in time of imminent danger the service shall be limited to one regular muster parade in each year.

The Militia of New Zealand includes all the male inhabitants of New Zealand between the ages of seventeen and fifty-five who have resided in New Zealand for a period of six months, and all persons are liable to be called out in time of war.

UNION OF AFRICA.

Every citizen is liable between his seventeenth and sixtieth year to render in time of war personal service in defence of the Union. He is liable to undergo a course of peace-training, military service, and may be required to commence training in his twenty-first year, and to complete it not later than his twenty-fifth; but he may voluntarily commence it in any year between his seventeenth and twenty-first year. The total number liable to peace training, only 50 per cent shall actually undergo the training, unless special financial provision is made by Parliament otherwise. Every citizen liable to training, who has not been entered in his twenty-first year must be a member of a rifle association from his twenty-first year for four consecutive years.

BRITISH GUIANA.

In this Colony there are two Militia units, and every male person who is a subject of His Majesty and between eighteen and forty-five years of age is liable to service with the force.

JAMAICA.

There is one company of Garrison Artillery, known as "The Jamaica Militia Artillery." Subject to certain exceptions, every male inhabitant of the island between eighteen and forty years of age is liable to serve, and if there are not sufficient volunteers to make up the quota the required number is chosen by ballot.

ANGUILLA.

The Island Force is in status and constitution a Volunteer Force, but when the force falls below a certain strength all male inhabitants between eighteen and forty-five years of age are liable to serve, and the required number is chosen by ballot.

DOMINICA AND MONSIEUR.

In these two Colonies similar legislation has been enacted.

KIRIBATI.

There is legislation similar to that in the other Colonies, but the age of liability to service is from sixteen to forty years of age.

PANAMA, BRITISH HONDURAS AND ST. HELENA.

Statutory provision for compulsory service exists, but there are no Militia Forces in any of these three Colonies, and the legislation in question is therefore to be regarded as inoperative.

Africa, 5,809, in India and Ceylon, 1,000, in Ceylon, Singapore, China and Mauritius, 1,000 (including 10 bullocks in China), Bermuda, 37, in the Colonies &c, 7,806, general total, 30,250, establishment, 32,125.

NAVY

Expenditure—The expenditure (net) on the navy for the year 1912-13 is £46,809,800, as against £46,076,000 for 1911-12. For 1912-13 the number of seamen provided is 146,000 for 1911-12 the number was 137,500. The number of Royal Fleet Reserve is 2,789. A period of years a certain number of young warrant officers will in future be taken for commissions.

The following particulars are taken from the Statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty, 1912-13, Estimates for 1912-13.

Shipbuilding—New construction for the year 1912-13 will cost £11,400,000 as against £14,565,271 for 1911-12. Of this £11,234,000 will be spent on the continuation of work on ships already under construction, and 2,052,400 for beginning work on ships of new programme, which is composed as follows —

- Battleships,
- 8 Light Armoured Cruisers,
- 16 Destroyers, and a number of submarines and subsidiary craft
- total estimated cost of the new programme is 1,435,250

Between April, and the March, 1913, following ships will have been completed and become available for —

- Battleships (King George V, Edinburgh, Thunderer, Conqueror)
- 3 Battle Cruisers (Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand)
- Light Cruisers (Gotham, Dublin, Southampton, Amphion, Melbourne The last is in Australia)

- 15 Destroyers
- Submarines, and 3 other vessels

On 1st of April, 1913, there were under construction —

- 11 Battleships (including Malaya)
- 3 Battle Cruisers (including one for Australia)
- Light Cruisers (including one for Australia)
- 15 Torpedo Boat Destroyers
- 21 Submarines (including two for Australia)

A number of vessels carrying oil fuel and for Fleet purposes

The Malaya is the first class armoured ship ordered by the Malay States to the Imperial Government

Two large floating docks, capable of taking any vessel now building, likely to be designed, have been completed and delivered for Portsmouth, and the Medway. A small floating dock for destroyers has been completed and placed at Harwich, and for submarines to be stationed ultimately at Dover has been completed.

The principal development of Imperial naval policy during the year 1912-13 has been in Canada. Mr. Borden and other members of the Canadian Cabinet visited London to confer with the Admiralty. On their invitation the Admiralty prepared a statement of the present and immediate prospective requirements of naval defence, the basis for the consideration of the Canadian Government. It has since announced in the Canadian House of Commons the decision of his Government to propose the grant to the Crown of 7,000,000 for the immediate construction of three of the most modern type of armoured ships intended to place these ships at the disposal of the Imperial Government for the defence of the Empire to be controlled and maintained as part of the Royal Navy. Mr. Borden added "If at any time in the future it be the will of the Canadian people to establish a Canadian unit of the British Navy, these vessels can be called by the Canadian Government as form part of the Navy, in which case, of course, they will be maintained by Canada and not by Great Britain. This measure is still under discussion in Parliament (April, 1913).

AVIATION

Military —One airship squadron and three aeroplane squadrons have formed part of the military wing of the Royal Flying Corps. The total strength of this wing and the Central Flying School, including officers holding certificates but not as yet admitted to the school, and Reserve officers, is now (March, 1913) 126 officers, 1,000 men, of whom 120 officers and 8 men are qualified aeroplane fliers. Two more aeroplane squadrons are being raised in 1913-14, and two more subsequently. The airship squadron has three dirigible balloons, one aeroplane squadron 10 aeroplanes (the War Office has 100), and 101 aeroplanes, expects to have 150 by the end of May. A Special Reserve of the Royal Flying Corps is formed consisting of (a) men enlisted for four years and perform a year's annual training, (b) skilled mechanics already employed in the aeroplane industry, who will do military training in peace but will undertake annual bounty up to mobilization not Army provision for Aviation in 1913-14, excluding land and sea, £500,000.

Naval —The development of the naval wing of the Royal Flying Corps is progressing rapidly, and an Air Department has been formed at the Admiralty to deal with all questions of air. The Air Department has been made up of aeroplanes at Haslemere, and most attention is being given to the development of air stations on the coast. The progress with the hydro-aeroplane has been satisfactory. The work of training has been and is proceeding steadily both at the Central Flying School and Haslemere.

The development of the naval wing are also being closely studied, and a naval air station is being established in the Medway. By arrangement with the War Office, officers and men have been trained at Farnborough with the military airship squadrons. Two airships of the Astra Torres and Farnborough types have been purchased for instructional and experimental purposes.

Revenue — The decrease under opium is due to the loss of [] from certified opium and to a reduction in the number of uncertified chests to be sold. The fall under Provincial Rates is due to the decision to transfer to District Boards [] not proceeds of the land cess in certain Provinces, which [] present appropriated by the Provincial Governments will [] compensated from the revenues of the Government of India.

Expenditure — There [] special recurring grants of 565,700 for education and sanitation, and 539,900 for compensation in respect of the transfer of the [] cess. The great decrease under Provincial Adjustments is due to the following [] large special grants amounting to 4,617,800 [] made to the Provincial Governments in 1912-13 for education (2,617,400), sanitation (1,000,000), and other purposes these grants being charged against [] revenue of the year but added to the Provincial balances with a [] in future outlay. It is anticipated that [] art of these and previous similar grants will be spent in 1913-14 the money being provided from the Provincial balances, with the result that the charges against the [] of the year will be correspondingly reduced.

UNION OF AFRICA

Parliamentary Representation.—On basis of the 1911 census, the representation of several Provinces in the next Parliament will be as follows: Cape, 51; Transvaal, 45; Orange Free State, 17; Natal, 17.

Religions.—The results of the 1911 census as regards religions are as follows:—Europeans: Dutch Churches, 693,968; Anglican, 255,640; Presbyterian, 58,683; Congregationalists, 13,335; Wesleyans, 80,462; Lutherans, 22,958; Roman Catholics, 53,799; Baptists, 15,088; Jews, 40,919; others and unspecified, 25,576; total, 1,276,242. Non-Europeans: Dutch Churches, 204,702; Anglican, 276,849; Presbyterians, 72,114; Independents (Congregationalists), 173,982; Wesleyans, 456,017; African Methodist Episcopal, 69,108; Lutherans, 105,809; Roman Catholics, 37,232; Hindus, 115,701; Buddhists and Confucians, 1,788; Mohammedans, 45,942; no religion, 3,012,615; others and unspecified, 45,861; total, 4,697,152.

Occupations.—The returns for 1911 show the occupations of the people to be as follows:—Professional, 59,721; domestic, 240,560; commercial, 81,627; agricultural, 192,444; industrial, 143,255; indefinite, 10,745; dependent, 492,990; unspecified, 4,951. As to the civil service, there were 26,256 white persons, of whom 294 females, who were engaged in the general or local government or the defence of the Union. South Africa. There are about 442,000 persons of all races employed in the mining industry of the Union; of these 47,000 are Europeans.

Finance.—The revised estimates for 1912-13 and the budget estimates for 1913-14 are as follows:—

	1912-13	1913-14
Revenue	£ 17,314,000	£ 14,600,000
Expenditure	£ 17,146,000	£ 16,170,000

The reduction of £274,000 in the estimated revenue is mainly due to the discontinuance of the railway contribution of £500,000 to the general revenue.

Trade.—The imports and exports in 1912 were as follows:—

SIERRA LEONE PROTECTORATE

On March 7 1912, an Order in Council was issued constituting the Protectorate of Sierra Leone. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary, as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885 and January 21 1911.

The Governor and Commander in Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is to also be the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

1. THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

Constitution and Government.

I. IMPERIAL CENTRAL.

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is by its Constitution given to Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least thirty-five days previous to its assembling.

The annual session extends from the middle of February to about the end of August, or occasionally later. Every session must end with a prorogation, and by it all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may be by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of the existence of any Parliament being five years.

Important alterations made in the Constitution by the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V, ch. 13). Under this Act, all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the Parliament or not, and rejected each time (or not passed) by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons, and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least a month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limits the maximum duration of Parliament to five years instead of seven.

The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(1) by hereditary right; (2) by creation of the sovereign; (3) by virtue of office—Law Lords and English bishops; (4) by election for life—Irish peers; (5) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers. The full house would consist (in 1912) of 636. There are, besides, 15 possessors of the United Kingdom and 1 Scottish peeresses in their own right, and 19 Scottish and 59 Irish peers who are not peers of Parliament.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies in the three Divisions of the United Kingdom. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. All clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members; all Government contractors, and all sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are disqualified both from voting and from sitting as members. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was made for the payment of a salary of 400*l.* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Every elector must be of full age, and must be registered in the electoral lists. Property qualifications are restricted to counties and to such boroughs as have county privileges. In England they are: the holding of an estate (1) in freehold of the annual value of 10 shillings; (2) of lands in life tenure of the annual value of 5*l.*; (3) held on lease of at least 20 years of the annual value of 5*l.*, or of at least 20 years of the annual value of 50*l.* Similar, but not identical, qualifications exist in Scotland and Ireland. Throughout the United Kingdom, in counties, occupation of a tenement which is rated for the support of the poor, and for which the rates have been paid by the prescribed date, constitutes a qualification, but in English boroughs the occupation franchise is associated with 12 months' residence, and in Scotch boroughs with 12 months' residence. Every inhabitant occupier who has for 12 months, within the United Kingdom, inhabited a dwelling-house for which the rates have been paid is entitled to registration, and lodgers occupying for 12 months are entitled to lodgings of the value of 10*l.* a year, have a vote. There are, however, some ancient franchises, such as that of the liverymen of the City of London companies, and there are 6 university constituencies in which graduates on the electoral roll are electors. Disqualified for registration are aliens and persons who within a year have received parochial poor relief.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.—UNITED KINGDOM

About one sixth of the population are electors. By an annual act voting is by ballot.

The numbers of members and registered electors for England and Wales, Scotland, and Ireland respectively, in 1913, are given as follows:—

II. LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

England and Wales.—In each county the Crown is represented by [redacted] Lord-Lieutenant, who [redacted] generally also [redacted] rotulorum, [redacted] keeper of the records. The recommendation of persons for appointment by the Lord Chancellor [redacted] justices of the peace rests with the Lords-Lieutenant, but local advisory committees are [redacted] being [redacted] up, [redacted] and when required, to advise the Lords-Lieutenant and the Lord Chancellor [redacted] these appointments. The Lords-Lieutenant [redacted] the presidents of the County Associations formed under the Territorial and Reserve Forces Act, 1907, and their duties as such relate [redacted] the organization, equipping and maintenance of [redacted] Territorial Forces. Otherwise their duties are almost nominal. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of [redacted] peace, [redacted] who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons [redacted] sell intoxicating liquors, and [redacted] of the criminal law—except [redacted] which [redacted] with [redacted] of the graver offences—are in the [redacted] of the magistrates.

[redacted] purposes of local government England and [redacted] are [redacted] in [redacted] sixty-two administrative counties, including [redacted] county of London, [redacted] [redacted] area [redacted] geographical counties. For [redacted] [redacted] county there is a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for 3 years half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. Women are eligible. The jurisdiction of the County Councils extends to the making of county and police rates, levying of duties on licences for carriages, armorial bearings, guns dogs, killing and dealing in game, borrowing of money, supervision of county treasurer, management of county halls and other buildings, licensing of houses for music and dancing, and of racetracks, maintenance and management of pauper lunatic asylums, maintenance of reformatory and industrial schools, management of bridges and main roads, regulation of fees of inspectors, analysts, and other officers, control of officers paid out of the county rate, coroners salary, fees, and district, Parliamentary polling districts and registration, contagious diseases of animals, allotments, weights and measures, sale of food and drugs. Under Acts of 1902 and 1903 the County Councils are local education authorities, and other recent acts have in various matters extended their jurisdiction. The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of an equal number of magistrates and members of the County Council. The London Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

The administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban' or 'Rural,' in the case may be. Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. Women may be elected to these District Councils, but cannot be magistrates. The District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and also exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban District Councils may also take over main roads from the County Councils, provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c., exercise powers under Provisional Orders or Private Acts for gasworks, tramways, electric light and power works, &c. Any urban district with 20,000 inhabitants may also be a local education authority. The Rural District Councils may also provide allotments, cemeteries, &c., make arrangements for an adequate water supply, and exercise any 'Urban powers' conferred on them by the Local Government Board.

In every civil parish is a 'rural district' there is a Parish Meeting, at which every parochial elector may attend and vote. In such parishes of less than 300 inhabitants there is in addition a Parish Council. Women are eligible for election. Parishes of less than 300 inhabitants may have Parish Councils if authorised by the County Council. To these Parish Councils have been transferred all the civil powers of the old Vestries, including the election of overseers, and in addition very considerable powers in charities, allotments, and other public matters. Where there is no Parish Council some of these powers, including the appointment of the overseers, are exercised by the Parish Meeting. Urban District Councils can, by petitioning the Local Government Board—which is the supreme Local Government authority—obtain part or all of the powers of a Parish Council. Only Parish Meetings may have power to adopt the Public Libraries Acts, the Baths and Washhouses Acts, the Lighting and Watching Acts, the Burials Acts and the Public Improvements Acts.

The central authority in London, the metropolis, is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1889. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, education, and numerous other matters. The City Corporation have powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c. in the City of London. Apart from the City, London is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c.

In all the great towns, including the county boroughs, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation, which derives its authority from a charter granted by the Crown. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils, but in other Municipal Boroughs these Councils have certain powers and duties. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually; the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who is elected for one year, also by the Council. A municipal Corporation has practically all the powers of an urban district council, and in some cases municipal boroughs have a separate commission of the peace and maintain their own police force. As to Poor Law and Education administration, see 'Pauperism' and 'Instruction.'

Scotland.—By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted. It consists of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor General of Scotland, the Under Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The Local Government Act which was passed for Scotland in 1889 followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to the new Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. The Act of 1894 provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards and to exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England, with bailies and provosts instead of aldermen and mayors. There are in Scotland five kinds of burghs—(1) Burghs of barony; (2) Burghs of regality (no practical distinction between these two); the councils of these two classes of burghs ceased to exist in 1894 by statutory enactment; (3) Royal Burghs, representatives of which meet together annually in a collective corporate character, as the 'Convention of Royal Burghs,' for the transaction of business; (4) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs; (5) Police Burghs, constituted under the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, in which the local authority is the Police Commissioners. These two latter burghs, by Acts passed in 1879 and 1895, are enabled to send representatives to the convention.

Ireland.—The principal county authority for local government is to be the grand jury, appointed by the Act 6 & 7 Will. IV. c. 116; but, by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, provision is made for the establishment of popularly elected Councils for counties and rural districts. The councillors are elected for three years, and the Council of each county and rural district, immediately after any triennial election, may elect its members to hold office till the next triennial election. The administrative functions formerly managed by the grand juries and presentment sessions has been transferred to these Councils. The County Councils have certain powers and functions with regard to asylums, infirmaries, and the appointment of a coroner is now also vested in the County Council. The business relating to public health to the assessment and collection of rates formerly vested in the Board of Guardians now devolves on the Rural District or County Council respectively. In urban districts the Councils of these districts administer matters relating to public health and rates, in addition to business transferred to them from the grand jury and presentment. The administration of the poor relief Acts is exercised by Boards of Guardians. Each Board comprises the councillors of each rural district in the union, together with specially elected representatives of each urban district in the union. The cities of Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, and Waterford, which already possessed representative councils, made county boroughs, and are exempt from some of the special provisions of the Act. The towns are partly corporate and partly governed by Commissioners. Certain boroughs have a mayor, aldermen, and councillors whose powers are regulated by 9 & 10 Vict. c. 18. The ordinary affairs of the borough, such as lighting, watching, and cleansing, are administered by the Council, which has power to levy rates for these purposes. In such towns as have no charter of incorporation, the local affairs are administered by a body of Commissioners (appointed under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854) or by a local Act) who have powers generally to discharge the usual municipal functions, and are empowered to levy rates to defray the cost of administration. Towns must have 1,500 inhabitants to enable them to obtain municipal government under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, and any municipal town may be constituted an urban sanitary district.

By the Local Authorities (Ireland) (Qualification of Women) Act, 1911, women are eligible for election and to act on county and borough councils in Ireland in the same manner and on the same conditions as men.

In 1901, in Wales and Monmouthshire 11.1 per cent persons 3 years of age and upwards or 9 per cent of the total population, were able to speak Welsh only, and 648,619, or 32.2 per cent able to speak Welsh and English. Thus 921,824 or 46.0 per cent persons could speak Welsh. In 1861 the number returned was 950,000, or about 70 per cent. In 1901, in Scotland, 28,106 persons 3 years of age and upwards or 43 per cent of the total population could speak Gaelic only, and 302,700 or 13 per cent, could speak Gaelic and English. Thus 230,594 or 5.16 per cent could speak Gaelic and of these 111,486 were in the counties of Inverness, Ross and Cromarty. In 1861 the number was 231,504 or 6.20 per cent. In 1911, in Ireland 20,919 or 4.1 per cent of the population could speak only, and 620,189, or 13.91 per cent, could speak Irish and English. Thus 641,142, or 14.86 per cent, could speak Irish. In 1861 the number was 132,411 or 20 per cent.

Religion.—I. ENGLAND WALES.

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church, possessing the right, regulated by the statute 25 Hen. VIII. c. 20, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics, the form being to send to the dean and chapter of the vacant see the royal licence, or congé d'élire, to proceed to the election, accompanied by the King's letter naming the person to be elected ; and afterwards the royal assent and confirmation of the appointment signified under the Great Seal. But this form applies only to the of old foundation ; the bishoprics of Manchester, St. Albans, Liverpool, Truro, Newcastle, Southwark, Southwell, and Birmingham conferred direct by letters patent from the Crown. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries in the gift of Lord Chancellor.

There are archbishops and bishops, and 35 suffragan and assistant bishops in England and Wales. The archbishops have also each his own particular diocese, wherein they exercise episcopal, in their provinces they exercise archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops about 82 archdeacons. For the management of ecclesiastical affairs, provinces have each a council, Convocation, consisting the bishops, archdeacons, and deans, in person, and of a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of inferior clergy. councils summoned by the respective archbishops, in pursuance King's mandate. When assembled, they must have the King's they deliberate ; as well as sanction of Crown resolutions they are binding on the clergy.

number civil parishes (districts which a separate poor or made) census 1911 was 14,614. These, however, most cases, not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which, during the present century, have lost their old importance, the ancient parishes having been cut up in many cases into districts, each of which is virtually an independent parish ecclesiastically. Of such parishes there were (1911) 14,887, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to about 8,600 benefices, the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1912 there were about 13,900 incumbents. The voluntary contributions of the Church in 1911-12 were 7,764,777.

Of 31,599 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage in 1910, 15,811 belonged to the Established Church and 15,787 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1910, 61.6 per cent were in the Established Church, 1.1 per cent in the Roman Catholic Church, 19.0 per cent were Nonconformist marriages, 0.1 per cent were Quaker marriages, 0.6 per cent Jewish, and 20.5 per cent civil marriages. Registrar's Office.

The following summary of statistics of Nonconformist churches (England and Wales) in 1911 is taken from the 'Free Church Year Book' for 1912. It only claims to present an approximation to the actual condition. Figures relating to the Anglican Church are appended.

The Unitarians had (1911) 374 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church about 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, is both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and has (1912) about 20,840 members and employees, 9,180 corps and outposts, and 54,000 local officers. Their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 550,000 sittings. There are about 245,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with nearly 1,000 synagogues.

In Wales alone, in 1912, there were about 127,000 members in Baptist churches, 184,000 of the Calvinistic Methodist, 170,000 of the Congregational; and 40,000 of the Wesleyan Methodist Churches.

RELIGION

Roman Catholics in Great Britain are estimated at 2,200,000. There are in England and Wales (1912) three archbishops (of whom one is a cardinal), thirteen bishops, and three bishops-auxiliary; about 4,000 priests (not all officiating) and about 1,800 churches, chapels, and stations.

II. SCOTLAND.

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the clergy all being equal. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister — clergyman, and of several laymen called elders. There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 16 synods, which meet half-yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 700 members, partly clerical and partly lay, chosen by the different presbyteries and royal burghs, and by the universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly, the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), sitting for ten days, the matters not decided during this period being left to a Commission.

The number of parishes is 1,448, and the number of churches, chapels, and stations 1,648. The parishioners are allowed under certain regulations enacted by the General Assembly to choose their own ministers. The entire endowments of the Church from all sources, including manors and glebes, amount to about 800,000*l.* per annum. The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1910-11 amounted to 498,427*l.* The number of communicants in 1911-12 was about 715,000; ministers, 1,825; lay preachers, 170; Sunday scholars, 230,000.

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland (formed by secessions at various times from the Church of Scotland), constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland. A minority, representing a few congregations, regarding themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, claimed all the property and endowment funds. A Royal Commission reported that the Free Church was unable adequately to carry out all the trusts of the property. The Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905, was passed for the apportionment of the church property between the Free and the United Free churches by an Executive Commission of five, and the result was that funds amounting to 459,469*l.* were allocated to the Free Church (310,000*l.* for general provision and the remainder for College provision and various other purposes). The United Church had, in 1911-12, 1,581 congregations, and 505,000 members, besides adherents. It has 2,286 Sunday schools, &c. with 24,900 teachers and 1,000 children in attendance. The church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 84 presbyteries, and 84 continental presbyteries. Annual income from free-will offerings is above a million sterling. The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 12 professors and lecturers. The Free Church in 1911 (according to the Free Church Statistics) had 1,000 congregations, 1,000 stations, 1,000 and probationers, and 1,000 colleges. Contributions and schemes 1,000,000*l.*, 16,258*l.*, interest 16,418*l.*, congregational income 13,245*l.* There are in Scotland some outstanding Presbyterian bodies, also Baptists, Independents, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland has 7 bishoprics, 397 churches and missions, 340 clergy, and 55,000 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church has in Scotland (1911) two archbishops and four suffragan bishops; 559 priests, 396 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 400,000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1910 was: Established, 44·89 per cent.; United Free, 26·24; Roman Catholic, 10·26; Episcopal, 2·81; others, 8·75; irregular, 7·05.

III. IRELAND

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland is under four archbishops, of Armagh, Cashel, Dublin, and Tuam, and 23 bishops, besides a bishop auxiliary. On a vacancy the clergy of the diocese nominate a person in whose favour they postulate a petition the Pope. The bishops of the province also present the names of two or three eligible persons to the Pope. The new bishop is generally chosen from this latter number; but the appointment virtually rests with the cardinals. The emoluments of a bishop arise from his parish, which is generally the best in the diocese, from licences of marriage, &c., and from the cathedralism, a small contribution paid by incumbents of parishes. The incomes of all classes of the Roman Catholic clergy of Ireland arise partly from fees, but principally from Christmas and Easter dues, and other voluntary offerings. Number of priests in Ireland (1911), 3,689. In 1911 the Roman Catholic population was returned at 3,242,670, being 73·9 per cent. of the total population.

The Church of Ireland (Protestant Episcopal) ceased to be 'established by law' by Act of Parliament (1869) 32 & 33 Vict. cap. 42. It has (1912) two archbishops, 11 bishops, and 1,700 clergymen; 1,400 churches; voluntary contributions, 1910, 153,724/. At the end of 1911, the number of Protestant Episcopalians was returned as 576,611, being 13·1 per cent. of the total population. Previous to disestablishment its income was 600,000/., and its entire capital was estimated at 14,000,000/. By the Disestablishment Act 7,500,000/., were allotted to it by way of commutation, and 500,000/. in lieu of private endowments. The Church is governed by a General Synod—bishops, clergy, and laity having the right to vote separately. There are also diocesan synods. The following is a summary of the funds of the Representative Body existing on December 31, 1911.—

Commutation Capital	250,872	Balances of Income Accounts,
Sustentation	1,867,275	etc.

There were in 1911, 440,525 Presbyterians, 62,382 Methodists, 9,198 Independents, 8,123 Baptists, 5,161 Jews. In 1911 the largest Presbyterian body consisted of 11 presbyteries, and had 661 ministers and 562 congregations, with 105,962 members; contributions during year 1911–12, 220,429/.; total church income, 289,867/.. This Church has two colleges, one in Belfast purely theological, the other (Magee College) in Londonderry with theological, literary, and scientific departments. The two together have 11 professors and lecturers.

INSTRUCTION

University Education

In England the highest education is given in the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall, the university of Durham, founded in 1831, with a college of medicine, and in 1871, a college of sciences Newcastle; the university of London founded in 1826 and reorganised in 1900 is the best teaching as well as the examining body, with 24 colleges and schools giving instruction in all faculties, the Victoria University (Manchester), founded in 1880, the Birmingham University, founded in 1900, the Liverpool University, founded in 1903, the Leeds University, founded in 1904, the Sheffield University, founded in 1905, and the Bristol University, founded in 1909. There are also University Colleges at Exeter, Nottingham (founded 1881) Reading (started with the establishment of art classes in 1880), and Southampton (founded 1850). There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester (Glasgow, Newport (Shropshire), Kingston (Derby), Wye (Kent) Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Sussex). The University of Wales, founded in 1903 has 8 colleges (Cardiff, Aberystwyth, and Bangor). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., St. Andrews, founded 1411, Glasgow, 1450, Aberdeen, 1494, Edinburgh, 1582. The Carnegie trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of £2,000,000, has an annual income of £100,000, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. In Ireland is the university of Dublin, founded in 1592. In 1909 was founded the National University of Ireland, and in Belfast the Queen's University of Belfast. The former has 11 constituent colleges, viz., the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The following table gives the approximate number of teachers and students of the Universities in the United Kingdom mainly for 1912—

Secondary and Technical Education.

In England and Wales by recent Acts of Parliament the councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non county boroughs with population over 10 000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000, constituted local authorities for higher education. The authorities are required, after consultation with the Board of Education, to supply or aid in supplying education other than elementary, and to promote the co-ordination of all forms of education. To these purposes they may apply money raised by rates, besides devoting to them the residue under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act, 1890, and they may borrow money. They have power to provide scholarships and to pay fees, in schools provided by them they must not pay for religious instruction, in schools not provided by them they can neither impose nor forbid religious instruction.

The secondary schools acknowledged by and receiving grants from the Board of Education are under various forms of management. In the school year 1910-11, there were in England and Wales 971 recognised day schools on the grant list with altogether 160 856 pupils (87,035 boys and 73,821 girls) on 31st January, 1911. Besides these schools on the Grant List, there were 97 other secondary schools recognised by the Board of Education efficient. The number of pupils about 17 800.

In 1910-11 there were in England and Wales 38 recognised technical institutions with 804 teachers and 3 105 (including 2 751 grant earning) pupils; there were also 114 institutions which day technical classes were recognised providing 259 courses for which grants were paid, with 1,008 teachers and 11 640 (including 10 913 grant earning) students. In the same year there were 223 recognised schools of art with 1 551 teachers and 42,278 students and 51 art classes with 142 teachers and 1 341 students, including 4 729 grant earning students. In addition, for further education there were 8 164 recognised evening and similar schools and classes with 87,207¹ teachers and 765,275¹ (including 628,181¹ grant earning) pupils. Examinations in science and art are held by the Board of Education and scholarships, exhibitions, &c. are awarded to successful competitors. In 1911 there were thus awarded in England and Wales Scotland and Ireland 1 Whitworth scholarship, 30 Whitworth exhibitions, 11 Royal (College of Art) scholarships, 20 Royal scholarships (science), and 1 Royal exhibition (art). There were also 6 National scholarships, 17 special studentships for teachers of science and technology, 15 free art studentships and 7 free studentships. There are also local science and art exhibitions of which 198 were awarded in 1911, and local scholarships (art) of which were awarded 2 Prince of Wales scholarships and 415 studentships.

In Scotland, the bugh schools of various names, grammar schools, high schools, &c., are administered by the school boards. There are also endowed schools and schools under private management which give secondary education. In 1910-11 there were 56 grant receiving secondary schools of which 39 were under school boards. The 38 secondary schools under school boards had (in 1910-11) 764 teachers and an average attendance of 10,541 pupils. Endowed schools under other management had in 1910-11 601 teachers and average attendance of 8,812. The number of schools receiving Government grants in 1910-11 included (besides the secondary schools) 196 higher grade schools or departments, with 24,444 enrolled pupils, and an average attendance of 1 083.

For Ireland there is an Intermediate Education Board, with an income of 115,091*l.* in 1911, including 81,058*l.* in respect of 1910. Its functions are to examine all candidates who present themselves. In 1911, 12,105 students (7,963 boys and 4,142 girls) presented themselves for examination, compared with 11,900 in the previous year, and 8,117 in 1901. The number passed in 1911 was 6,576 (4,280 boys and 2,286 girls). In 1911 the school grant in respect of examinations paid to managers of schools amounted to 46,462*l.*, besides prizes and bonuses to schools.

Technical instruction in Ireland is controlled by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, which has a Technical Instruction Committee and a Consultative Committee on Education. The Department is the co-ordinating authority, working with other educational authorities, and in 1910-11 grants of 21,037*l.* were paid to 47 technical schools and to art schools and classes in respect of 9,904 students, 27,584*l.* to 107 secondary schools in respect of 12,028 students in experimental science, 10,880*l.* in drawing, 2,383*l.* in manual instruction, 1,208*l.* in domestic economy, and 1,619*l.* to 94 primary schools in respect of 14,803 scholars in drawing (average attendance), and 1,235 scholars under manual instruction. Central institutions under the Department are the Royal College of Science, Dublin, with 121 students (1911), the Metropolitan School of Art, with 1,000 pupils (1910-11), the Irish Training School of Domestic Economy, 33 scholars, the Killarney school of housewifery, 100 scholars (1910-11). Throughout Ireland technical instruction is organised under the Councils of county boroughs, urban districts, and counties. In urban and county schools (1910-11) there were 43,909 young men and women studying non-agricultural subjects. In local examinations 2,645 candidates entered for Science subjects, and 1,746 passed, 2,887 in art, and 1,451 passed (1911). There was an annual grant of 71,000*l.* for technical education, of which 26,000*l.* was allotted for technical instruction in county boroughs, and 29,000*l.* for similar purposes elsewhere. A grant of 7,000*l.* called the 'equivalent grant' was made from the Ireland Development Grant for technical instruction, and a grant of 10,000*l.* for manual instruction and domestic economy, 3,000*l.* for classes in lace and crochet making and other rural industries, was made by the Agricultural Board in 1910-11.

Elementary Education.

England and Wales.—Elementary education in England and Wales is now under the control of the Board of Education. Sufficient school accommodation must be provided in every district for all the resident children between the ages of 5 and 14. Under Acts of 1899 and 1902 children between 12 and 14 years of age may (if it is so provided in local bye-laws) conditionally obtain partial or total exemption from school attendance, but for children employed in agriculture the lower limit for partial exemption is 11. An Act of 1906 requires the school authorities to make provision for the compulsory education of defective children of the age of 5 years. Under the Education Acts of 1902 and 1903, school boards and school attendance committees were abolished, their place being taken by the Councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population under 10,000, and of urban districts with population under 20,000. The last two authorities can transfer their powers to the local county councils. The education authorities must establish educational committees, each in accordance with its own scheme, which must be approved by the Board of Education. The schemes must provide for the appointment by the Council from among its members of a majority of the committee (unless in the case of counties the Council determine otherwise), for the appointment by the Council of other persons with special qualifications, and the appointment of women to the committee. Schools provided by county boroughs have managers in the proportion of 4 appointed by the Council and 2 by the borough, district, or parish, and by the school. County boroughs, &c., may appoint any number of managers for their provided schools. Schools aided, but not provided by local authorities, have a 'foundation' and 2 appointed by Councils. Women be

The local education authorities maintain all public elementary schools and control the expenditure necessary for this purpose. The only financial responsibility resting on the managers of "non provided schools" is to supply the buildings. In the case of schools not provided by them, their directions as to secular instruction (including the number and qualification of teachers) must be complied with, they have power to inspect the schools, and they must receive, free of charge, the use of the school house for elementary school purposes. The Acts prescribe the funds from which expenditure is to be met, and give borrowing powers. Income from endowments for such purposes of elementary education is within the power of the local education authorities to be paid to these authorities and applied in aid of the rates. Under the Education Act of 1902, there is paid annually to the local authorities, out of money to be provided by Parliament, a sum equal to 4s per scholar on average attendance, and 'an additional sum of three halfpence per scholar for every complete two pence per scholar by which the amount which would be produced by a penny rate on the rates of the authority short of ten shillings a scholar'. Under certain conditions, however, the grant may be reduced. Other grants are also payable.

Throughout the Act there is observed the distinction between schools provided, and schools aided but not provided, by the local authorities, this distinction being, as far as elementary schools are concerned, in accordance with that between board schools and voluntary schools.

The number of separate local authorities for educational matters on July 31, 1911, was as follows:—

Councils of administrative counties (including London)	62
County boroughs	75
Self governing municipal boroughs	134
Self governing urban districts	50
Scilly Isle	1

On July 31, 1911, the number of Council Schools in England and Wales for ordinary elementary education was 8,046 with accommodation for 3,980,946 pupils. The number of voluntary schools was 12,800 with accommodation for 2,626,594 pupils. Of these voluntary schools, those maintained by public authorities numbered 12,734 and were distributed among religious denominations as follows:—

	Church of England	Wesleyan	Roman Catholic	Jewish	Undenominational &c
Number	18,941	225	1,075	—	—
Accommodation	2,245,148	69,222	375,585	2,568	108,982

following gives statistics of public and other elementary schools in England and Wales:—

Date	Schools	Accommodation	pupils on last day of school year	Approximate average attendance
July 31, 1909	21,323	7,182,815	6,080,227	5,840,000
" 1911	21,294	6,852,120	6,067,076	5,860,000

In 1911-12 in England and Wales there were in the ordinary public elementary schools 103,608 certificated teachers, 44,461 'uncertificated' (i.e., teachers recognised as 'uncertificated' under the Code of Regulations of the Board of Education), and 20,848 others; total, 168,818; the average attendance at schools in 1911-12 was 5,357,000 (3,214,000 in Council Schools, 1,706,000 in Church of England Schools, 298,000 in Roman Catholic Schools, and 139,000 in other non-provided schools). There were in 1910-11, 47 higher elementary schools with 487 teachers and 8,852 registered pupils on the last day of the school year. 'Special' schools in England and Wales comprised, in 1910-11, 38 for the blind with 1,782 registered pupils, 1 for the deaf with 3,771 pupils, 243 for defective children with 16,966 pupils, 6 for epileptic children with 377 pupils and 1 'certified efficient' school with 4,714 registered pupils. There were also 66 poor law schools with 706 teachers and trainers, and 14,847 children on the registers on March 31, 1911. In 1910-11, there were 85 training colleges in England and Wales with altogether 12,111 students.

Scotland.—By the Elementary Education Act of 1872, the Scotch Education Department was instituted, and each burgh and parish or group of parishes were required to have a school board to administer both elementary and middle-class schools. Elementary education is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14, with exemption, in conditions, for children over 12. In 1889, by a capitation grant, education was made free for the compulsory standards. In 1897 provision was made for grants in aid of voluntary schools.

The table includes higher grade schools in receipt of grants. In 1911 these numbered 196; accommodation, 40,505; average attendance 24,088; on register at end of year, 24,444.

In 1910-11, of the 3,369 schools, 3,020 were public schools; an average attendance of 654,862 pupils; 1 Church of Scotland, average attendance 345; 1 United Free Church, average attendance 62; 57 Episcopal, average attendance 8,983; 223 Roman Catholic, average attendance 84,534; 60 Undenominational, average attendance 7,202. There were 1,000 certificated and 73 provisionally certificated teachers, 1,096 assistant teachers, and 74 pupil teachers. In the same year there were at 11 training centres and 2 training colleges, 2,669 students. In 1910-11 there were 1,119 continuation class centres receiving grants, with 137,180 scholars on account of whom grants were paid.

Ireland.—Elementary education in Ireland, since 1845, is under the superintendence of a body of 'Commissioners of National Education in Ireland.' The following table gives statistics of elementary schools for the last five years:—

1907	4,536	745,124	670,471	485,979
1908	8,468	757,821	688,001	494,062
1909	4,401	760,678	679,235	501,107
1910	8,337	762,764	679,485	495,958
1911	8,299	766,003	684,084	512,863

Of 8,329 schools in 1910, 2,429 were mixed Roman Catholic and Protestant with 191,768 pupils (135,346 Roman Catholic and 56,422 Protestant); 4,860 were Roman Catholic with 370,728 pupils; and 1,540 Protestant with 116,383 pupils on December 31, 1910. In 1911 there were 7,851 principal teachers, 5,182 assistants, and 2,452 workmistresses and junior assistant teachers. There are 7 training colleges licensed for 1,190 King's scholars (1911-12).

The sums expended for education in Great Britain from Parliamentary grants, and in Ireland from Parliamentary grants and rates, are given for recent years as follows (years ended March 31):—

	1907-8	1908-9	1909-10	1910-11	1911-12
	£	£	£	£	£
England and Wales	13,273,625	13,485,238	12,640,760	14,140,894	—
Scotland	1,941,774	2,001,364	2,120,710	2,338,186	2,331,875
Ireland	1,470,347	1,024,490	1,683,649	1,734,252	1,700,040

In addition to the grant, these schools derive an income from endowments, school fees, local rates, voluntary subscriptions, and other sources.

Justice and Crime.

ENGLAND AND WALES.

The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessions courts, the general quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court. Two or three justices of the peace sitting in a petty sessions court house, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any metropolitan borough police magistrate or other stipendiary magistrate sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessions court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Similar courts can be held at other times, and are then known as 'general sessions.' Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Certain boroughs have

SCOTLAND.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. ■ judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of ■ difficulty ■ importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, defiance of messengers, and generally ■ all cases in which ■ higher punishment than imprisonment is by [redacted] directed to be inflicted, and [redacted] has [redacted] an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, [redacted] those already established by common law [redacted] statute, and such [redacted] have [redacted] previously [redacted] before the courts and [redacted] not within any statute

In Ireland persons charged with [redacted] are as a rule brought before [redacted] court of petty sessions. Two magistrates are sufficient to try a case to be decided at petty sessions; in some instances only one is requisite. Offences are divided into two classes, those in which justices have [redacted] 'summary jurisdiction,' in which cases they hear and determine the complaint, the Petty Sessions Act providing for an appeal in certain [redacted]. The second class [redacted] 'indictable offences.' In these cases the justice merely takes the depositions and returns the case for trial to the next court having jurisdiction to try it—quarter sessions or assize court as the case may be. In the event of the prosecution failing to prove its case, the magistrates refuse information. The Attorney general may send up a bill at assizes, even without the preliminary ministerial investigation, or [redacted] a case in which a magistrate has wrongly refused information. There is this difference, however, between quarter [redacted] [redacted] Ireland and in England [redacted] England they [redacted] presided over by [redacted] unpaid chairman, who need not be a lawyer and who is elected by his fellow justices of the peace for the county, while in Ireland they are presided over by a paid official, who must be a practising barrister of ten years' standing, appointed by the Crown, and who [redacted] also judge of the county court (which corresponds to the English county court). The criminal jurisdiction of a county court judge [redacted] very extensive, and the Recorder of Dublin has practically the same criminal jurisdiction [redacted] a judge of the High Court. The [redacted] are presided [redacted] by [redacted] of the [redacted] law judges of the High Court of Justice. National Insurance.

The National Insurance Act, 1911, provides for compulsory health, for the prevention and cure of sickness, and compulsory unemployment insurance.

(1) National Health Insurance.—This is administered by Insurance Commissioners, appointed separately for England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland; by constituted authorities; and by approved friendly societies, trade unions, or persons who are compulsorily insured, known as employed contributors, comprising, with exceptions, all males aged 16 and under 70, whether subjects or not, employed in any service, or employed otherwise than in agriculture, at a rate of contribution exceeding 1004. Insured persons who are not members of an Approved Society must contribute to a Post Office Fund and are known as deposit contributors; married persons are exempt from the provisions of the Act.

aliens, the army and navy, mercantile marine and other classes persons compulsorily become voluntary contributors. The are provided by the employer (9/- per week per employed person) the worker (4/- per week for males and 3/- by females), the State. Special rates are applicable in cases of voluntary insurers, low wage earners, and the rates in Ireland are lower for contributors and lower employers than in Great Britain. Contributions are the of 70 when Old Age Pension Act (9/-) comes into play. The benefits include medical treatment, sanatorium treatment (payments during sickness and disablement and (in the case of women) a payment of 80/- on confinement. Other benefits are also possible if funds permit.

(ii) Unemployment Insurance—this is administered by the Board of Trade largely through the Labour Exchange. The trades covered by the Insurance are building, construction of works (railroads, locks, &c.) shipbuilding, mechanical engineering, ironfoundry, construction of vehicles, and sawmilling. The Board of Trade may extend the scheme to other trades. The funds are provided by the employer, the workman (2/- per week each) and the State (one third of the total contribution of workman and employer). The benefit consists of a weekly payment during unemployment and certain other cases for a limited number of weeks per year.

(For further details of the National Insurance Scheme see STATISTICAL YEAR BOOK for 1912, pages 77 to 40.)

The number of insured persons under the Health Insurance Scheme in January, 1913, was 18½ millions excluding about 440,000 deposit contributors. The number of unemployment contributors was about 300.

Old Age Pensions.

Under the Old Age Pension Acts of 1908 and 1911, every person over 70 years of age who is a British subject who for twelve out of the twenty years up to the date of receiving a pension has resided in the United Kingdom (residence abroad is allowed to count in certain circumstances), and whose yearly means do not exceed 21/- 10/- is entitled to a pension provided he is not through illness habitually unable to maintain himself and his dependents, is not in receipt of poor relief (except medical and certain other kinds of relief), is not a lunatic in an asylum, has not been a convict in prison during the preceding 10 years for a term of upwards of 12 weeks, or during the preceding two years for a term not exceeding 12 weeks, and is not disqualified by order of a court. An existing pensioner may in certain circumstances be disqualified for receiving further pensions. For every borough and urban district with a census population of at least 20,000,¹ and for every county (excluding borough and district areas) a local pension committee is appointed by the borough, district, or county council. The committees may appoint sub-committees and delegate powers or duties to them. Pension officers (to investigate and report to the committees) are appointed by the Treasury. The central pension authority is the Local Government Board. Claims for pensions are made through the local post offices, every postmaster being required to give information and make the proceedings as easy as possible for the claimant. The claim is transmitted to the pension officer and, on his report to the committee, that body may disallow the claim (in which case an appeal lies to the Local Government Board), or may allow it and fix the rate of pension. The weekly amount of the pension is 1/- if the yearly means of the pensioner do not exceed 21/- 4/-; if the yearly means exceed 21/- but do not exceed 21/- 12s. 6d., and so on, the weekly pension decreases by 1/- for every 2/- by which the limit of the yearly means is increased. On March 29, 1912, there were 942,160 pensions payable in the United Kingdom, namely, 602,441 in England, 40,083 in Wales, 94,819 in

Pauperism.

There is a Poor Law, under a variety of statutes, applicable to the Three Kingdoms, by which paupers, under certain conditions, are to be relieved in their houses or lodged in workhouses or poor houses built for the purpose. The law is administered by the Local Government Board, through Boards of Guardians elected for the purpose. England and Wales, including the Metropolis and the municipal boroughs, are divided into poor-law unions, for each of which there is elected a Board of Guardians. In some cases the union consists of only one parish; in others several are included according to population. In urban districts and in the Metropolis guardians are separately elected, but in rural districts the rural district councillors act as guardians for the parishes they represent — the district council. Guardians are elected by the popular franchise — district councillors. Women are eligible. In every civil parish there is appointed whose duty it is to make and collect the poor rate. In urban districts, which include boroughs, the local authority make and collect rates for local government purposes, but in rural districts and rural parishes the funds for this purpose are, as a general rule, taken from the poor rate.

Amount expended in poor-relief for year ended March 25 for England and Ireland, and May 15 for Scotland. For Scotland, the amount includes expenditure on buildings and loans repaid and interest —

In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911, there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England, Scotland and Ireland, sums equivalent to the proceeds of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable. The payments on account of the beer and spirit duties, the licence duties on the sale of intoxicating liquors, and (in Scotland) on account of the carriage licence duties, are now fixed at the amounts payable out of the Consolidated Fund for 1908-09. The payments in respect of other licence duties, and those in respect of the probate and estate duties, depend on the current yield of these duties.

III. NATIONAL DEBT.

The expenditure on account of National Debt is nearly six times the amount paid in 1775, at the beginning of the War of Independence of the United States. The total charge for interest and management was then only a little over 4½ millions sterling; but at the end of the war it had risen to 9½ millions. The twenty-two years' warfare with France, from 1793 to 1815, added 23 millions sterling to the annual charge of the debt, making it over 32½ millions, decreased by slightly more than a million in 1817, in the year of consolidation of the English and Irish exchequers. Since this date, the aggregate gross liabilities of the State have been steadily decreasing, excepting for the years of the Russian and the South African wars. In 1854 the gross liabilities stood at 802 millions, and in 1857 at over 837 millions. In 1899 they decreased to 798 millions, but in 1903 amounted to 798 millions; in 1911 they stood at 725 millions.

The estimated receipts and expenditure of the London County Council rate and debt accounts for [REDACTED] ending March 31 1913 (including balances) amounted to 115,16,01. Of this amount 7,06,1001 would be raised by rates. The outstanding debt of London in 1911-12 amounted to 110,770,4191.

At the end of the financial year 1909-10, the outstanding local debt of England and Wales amounted to 538,063,294, that of Scotland to 69,527,1821, of Ireland to 2,006,9441, total 613,446,418 (including 49,29,2221 outstanding in respect of loans taken over or raised by the Metropolitan Water Board).

Defence.

Important questions of naval and military policy are considered by the Committee of Imperial Defence, of which the Prime Minister is ex officio president. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, War, the Colonies, and India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First [REDACTED] Lord of the Admiralty, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Director of Naval Intelligence, the Director of Military Operations. Other Naval and Military officers and high officials are from time to time called in. The Committee has a permanent secretariat.

I. ARMY.

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army and of the Territorial Army. Of these, a large part of the Regular Army serves in British Dominions overseas, and it is customary to refer to these troops as the 'British Army,' in contradistinction to the 'Native Army' in India and to the 'Local Forces' in South Africa and in British Colonies. The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, is paid for by the Imperial exchequer except in India (although certain colonies pay contributions towards its upkeep), India [REDACTED] a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to those serving as a depot for the regular troops in India. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time. The rank and [REDACTED] for Regular Army [REDACTED] Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment.

The Regular Army in peace time consists of the permanently embodied troops, the Army Reserve, and the Special Reserve.

Service in the permanently embodied portion of the Regular Army and the Army Reserve is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years under certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 1 to 4 are spent 'with the colours,' i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve; the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age. The peace establishment of the regular troops at home is considerably below the establishment; in South Africa and the Colonies it is higher; in India it is practically the same as the establishment. On mobilisation for war the ranks, after eliminating recruits and young soldiers, are filled up from the Army Reserve, and also, to a small extent, from the Special Reserve.

The permanently embodied portions of the Regular Army consist of 31 cavalry regiments (17 at home), 14 horse artillery batteries (14 at home), 150 field batteries (99 at home), 9 mountain batteries (all abroad), 1 composite of garrison artillery (43 at home), 84 companies of engineers (63 at home), 11 battalions of Foot Guards (8 at home), 148 battalions of infantry of the line (74 at home) besides departmental services and depôts. Horse and field batteries are grouped in 'brigades' of 2 and 3 batteries respectively, of 12 guns each. Infantry of the line is organised for recruiting purposes in 69 regiments of 2 or 4 permanent battalions, and 1 or 2 Special Reserve battalions (vide below) half the permanent battalions of each regiment are at home and half abroad. For training and command purposes infantry battalions are for the most part formed into brigades of 4 battalions each. For recruiting purposes and relief, cavalry regiments are linked in pairs, 1 at home and 1 abroad; for training and command they are generally grouped into brigades of 2 regiments each.

The Special Reserve consists in the main of troops not permanently embodied, but its units also act as permanently embodied depôts. The period of service of special reservists is for 6 years; recruits, with certain exceptions, undergo 5 months' preliminary training; the trained men are called up annually for 3 weeks, with 6 days' musketry in addition for infantry. The Special Reserve consists of two cavalry regiments, 12,000 (establishment) field artillery men, 2 regiments of garrison artillery, 11 battalions of engineers, 101 battalions of infantry, forming part of the 148 regiments of infantry of the line above-mentioned, and departmental services. Of the 101 battalions, 74 are Reserve battalions, forming depôts for the permanently embodied battalions of their regiments; the other 27 are 'Extra' Reserve battalions, intended to act as units on mobilisation. The bulk of the Special Reserve are for the most part non-professional. The Special Reserve (which was created out of the Militia in 1907) is available for service abroad in time of war. Special reservists can re-engage for 3 years terms, and can enlist into the permanently embodied forces.

On mobilisation for war, the bulk of the Regular Army at home becomes absorbed into the 'Expeditionary Force' to consist of 1 cavalry division, 11 divisions, and certain 'army troops,' and 'line of communication troops' with a total establishment of 5,873 officers and 168,279 other ranks (Parliamentary White Book of March, 1911). The cavalry division consists of 4 cavalry brigades (3 regiments each), 2 artillery brigades, 1 engineer troops, 1 signal squadron, 1 signal troops, 1 cavalry train, and 1 ambulances; establishment, 486 officers, 10,301 other ranks, 10,570 horses, 11 A consists of 11 infantry brigades

■ battalions each, 4 field artillery brigades (1 Howitzers), 1 heavy battery, 1 ammunition column, 2 companies of engineers, 1 signal company, 2 mounted infantry companies, 1 divisional train 1 field ambulance, total establishment, 618 officers, 14,931 other ranks, 6,152 horses, 76 guns. 'Army troops' include 2 mounted brigades' each consisting of either 1 cavalry regiment and 1 mounted infantry battalions or of 2 cavalry regiments and 1 mounted infantry battalion, with 1 horse artillery battery, 1 ammunition column, 1 signal troop, 1 train and 1 ambulance. All batteries have 6 guns except the heavy batteries which have only 1. The war establishment of a cavalry regiment is 26 officers, 537 other ranks, 562 horses in three squadrons. The establishment of a battalion of infantry is 29 officers, 995 other ranks in eight companies.

The Territorial Army is intended for home defence, although nearly 1000 officers and men have accepted liability for service abroad in war. The terms of service are for four years. The age limits for enlistment are from 17 to 35 inclusive. The requirements of training are 1 fortnight in camp and a certain number of drills, the number varying in different branches, also a musketry course for arms in which it is necessary, unless exempted, the soldier must attend camp for eight days and make himself efficient, subject to a penalty of £5. All officers in the Territorial Army, except certain of the generals and staff in non-professional. The Territorial Army is confined to Great Britain, there is none in Ireland.

The Territorial Army consists of 36 regiments of yeomanry, 14 horse artillery batteries, 57 brigades of field artillery, 14 heavy batteries, 84 companies of gunnery artillery, 103 companies of engineers, 1 railway battalion, 194 battalions of infantry, 13 cyclist battalions with depot, mental troops. The bulk of it is organised so as to form 14 mounted brigades, and 14 divisions. The establishment is practically the same in peace and war, and these brigades and divisions are complete war units so far as establishment is concerned. Batteries in the Territorial Army have only 4 guns, otherwise the divisions correspond very nearly in their composition to the Regular Army on war footing. The mounted brigades each include 1 horse artillery battery besides their three yeomanry regiments. On mobilisation of the Regular Army the Territorial Army is embodied, practically automatically.

For purposes of command the United Kingdom is divided up into seven 'commands' and the London district. The commands are (1) Aldershot of very limited area (2) Eastern including the eastern and southern counties (3) Irish, (4) Northern including the northern midlands and north eastern counties (5) Scottish, (6) Southern including the southern midlands and south western counties, (7) Western including Wales, Lancashire and north western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 1 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 1 Territorial divisions. The Regular Army, being for the most part quartered in the south of England and Ireland, is somewhat irregularly distributed amongst the commands, there are two nearly complete divisions each in the Aldershot and the Irish command, one complete division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the 'general officer commanding in chief'). He is assisted by a general officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, and the heads of the departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, these officials are—The Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who is responsible for drawing up plans of attack and defence, for military training, for intelligence work, and for the higher education of officers, the Adjutant General, who is responsible for recruiting, interior economy, discipline, and for the medical service, the Quartermaster General who is responsible for equipment, supply, transport, and remounts, the Master General of the Ordnance, who is responsible for armament and works, the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, who is responsible for the Territorial Army, the Finance Member who is responsible for finance. The Inspector General of the Forces keeps the Army Council informed as to the state of efficiency of all branches of the forces. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, and the Staff College which trains officers for the staff. The Officers' Training Corps, in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Special Reserve and the Territorial Army. The military wing of the Royal Flying Corps comprises 7 aeroplane squadrons and 1 airship squadron.

Cavalry and infantry are armed with the Lee-Enfield rifle, calibre 303. The Regular Army has a 13 pounder for horse artillery, a 18 pounder for field artillery, a 40 pounder field Howitzer, and a 60 pounder for heavy batteries.

The establishment of the land forces for the financial year 1912-13 was fixed as follows. The number of effectives of all ranks on January 1st, 1912, are also given.

In the case of the permanently embodied troops, the regimental establishment for 1912-13 was fixed at 134,280 in home and (excluding especially enlisted Colonial corps and native Indian troops paid for by the Imperial Exchequer) 36,829 in South Africa and the Colonies, this leaves staff establishments of account. It should be noted that the Special Reserve and the Territorial Army are considerably below establishment.

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by statutes and orders fixed with much precision by the Legislature. Its administration was formerly in the hands of a Lord High Admiral, but by the Act 1 Will. IV, c. 2, this office was vested in a Commission. With the exception of various periods in which the office has been revived—in the person of the Earl of Pembroke in the reign of William III., of Prince George of Denmark (1702-8), and of the Duke of Clarence (May, 1827—August, 1828)—it has continued to be held in commission by the Board of Admiralty. The Board consists of the First Lord of the Admiralty, who is always a member of the Cabinet, and eight other commissioners.

Under the 1912 Admiralty reorganisation scheme, the various members are responsible for special business as follows:—First Lord, general direction of all business; First Sea Lord, Organisation for War; Second Lord, Distribution of the Fleet; Second Sea Lord, Personnel; Third Sea Lord, material; Fourth Lord, Stores and Transport; Civil Lord, Works, Buildings, and Greenwich knots respectively. There are also 9 cruisers of the Pelorus class, 7 of the Astræa class and some 14 or so of the Apollo class, of which about half are mine layers. Niobe of Diadem class is in Canadian navy. Encounter of Challenger class in Australian. Eight light cruisers building under estimates 1912-13.

There are a variety of gunboats, store-ships, &c. A unique feature of the British Navy is its very small equipment of repair ships and other auxiliaries. Destroyers built may be classified as follows:—

Modern	114	Practically obsolete	11
Fairly modern	32	Quite obsolete	14

The submarines are of four general types, A, B, C, D, and E.

During 1912 the naval wing of the Royal Flying Corps was founded. At the end of the year 2 (or 3) dirigibles were on order, and one small one in existence. Also a number of hydro-aeroplanes.

Of the holdings in England, 48,124 were owned, or mainly owned, and 326,529 rented; of those in Wales, 6,052 and 54,605 respectively; in Scotland, 6,041 and 71,908 respectively. The acreage under crops and grass occupied by holdings was 2,970,632 acres in England, 276,839 in Wales, and 569,831 in Scotland: total, 3,817,302 acres in Great Britain.

PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY

The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, makes the County Councils and the Councils of County Boroughs responsible for the provision of small holdings and allotments. A small holding is from one to fifty acres, or more, in extent, but its annual value does not exceed £10. An allotment may be provided up to 1 acre, but the Council is not obliged to provide one of more than 1 acre, and the applicant must be of the agricultural labouring class and resident in the borough, district, or parish. In England and Wales up to the end of 1911, County Councils had acquired or agreed to acquire for small holdings 124,000 acres, of which 78,871 acres were purchased for 2,493,121/., and 45,631 acres leased for 55,637/ per annum. Of this land, 94,154 acres were let to 6,916 small holders, 186 acres sold to 11 small holders, and 4,597 acres let to 1 Co-operative Small Holdings Association, who sublet the land to 1 of their members. The land unallotted was estimated to provide for another 2,000 applicants. In addition, 2,644 applicants had acquired 82,000 acres from private landowners. Up to the end of 1911, County Borough Councils had acquired for small holdings 1,303 acres, let to 161 individual tenants, and 11 members of Co-operative Associations. The total number of allotment authorities under the Act of 1908 is approximately 8,800. The total quantity of land let for allotments by the local authorities in England and Wales up to the end of 1911 was 29,604 acres, let to 109,191 individual tenants and 22 associations. The Councils owned 6,693 acres and leased 22,911 acres.

In 1911 the total number of holdings was 524,210, in 1905, 593,804; in 1911, 607,900. Of the holdings in 1911, 389,751 were owned and 218,209 rented.

The Irish Land Acts are of two classes—The Fair Rent Acts, and the Land Purchase Acts. The Fair Rent Acts commenced with Mr Gladstone's Land Act of 1881, which gave the tenant the '3 Fs'—Fair Rent, Free Sale, and Fixity of Tenure. Under the 1903 Act, the great body of agricultural tenants had Fair Rent judicially determined. The law is now fixed by the Land Commission in terms of 11 years, and, on the expiration of each term, a new rent may be fixed for another term. Up to March 31, 1912, 454,425 applications and orders in the Irish Fair Rent and a Statutory Term disposed of, 161,193 for ■ Second Statutory Term, and 767 for ■ Third Statutory Term.

The Land Purchase Acts nominally began with the 'Bright Clauses' of the Act of 1870, but really the system was commenced by the 'Ashbourne Act' of 1885, under which 10,000,000£ was advanced for Land Purchase. A ■ system ■ adopted under Mr. Balfour's Act of 1891, which created a special Land Stock for Land Purchase purposes. Under the Irish Land Act of 1891 State advances ■ made to tenants to purchase their holdings under the supervision of three Estates Commissioners. Money for advances was to be raised by the ■ of Land Stock bearing interest at 2½ per cent. The State ■ secured by ■ Guarantee Fund which consists of the various Funds voted by Parliament for Irish Local purposes. Deficiencies in repayment of Land Purchase Annuities are made up out of this Guarantee Fund, which it ■ estimated will secure advances up to 152,000,000£. Tenant Purchasers repay the advances by ■ annuity calculated at 3½ per cent ■ the Purchase Money of their holdings. Of this annuity 2½ per cent is for interest and ½ per cent for ■ sinking fund, the accumulation of which will repay the advance in 68½ years. The Land Stock could not be issued except at a large discount, and the Land Act of 1909 provides that for future purchasers the money may be raised by the issue of ■ 1 per cent stock, and in making advances the Treasury may give such stock instead of paying cash. The advances are repayable by the tenant purchasers by 3½ per cent annuities. Under this Act the Congested Districts Board is reconstituted, the ■ of its work extended and its income increased. Compulsory powers of purchase ■ given to the Estates Commissioners and to the Congested Districts Board.

The following table shows the amounts advanced for land purchase under the Irish Land Purchase Acts up to the 31st March, 1912.

Down to March 31, 1912, 3,586,829£ had been advanced by the Land Commission to Rural District Councils, for the purposes of the Labourers (Ireland) Act, ■ (this amount ■ not included above).

In England and Wales, the Board of Agriculture made grants to ■ institutions in 1911-12 for agriculture instruction which act ■ connection with and ■ some ■ mainly supported by county councils. The grants amounted to 18,840£. There are ■ private agricultural colleges, and important experimental work ■ carried on privately at Rothamsted, Woburn, and other places. In Ireland the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction provides itinerant lecturers who give instruction in agriculture, horticulture, bee keeping, butter making, poultry keeping, &c. Lecturers are trained at the Royal College of Science, the Albert Agricultural College (Glenties), and ■ Munster Institute. There are 3 agricultural stations for apprentices, ■ numerous centres for agricultural schools. ■ are also rural schools ■ domestic economy.

FORESTRY AND INDUSTRY

Forestry.—The woodland of Great Britain in was 2,781,963 acres (England, 1,720,330; Wales, 186,723; and Scotland, 874,910). Included in these figures 127,509 acres of plantations, i.e., land planted within preceding 10 years (England, 72,008; Wales, 11,355; and Scotland, 44,146).

In Ireland in 1911, 299,791 acres were under woods and plantations. In 1911, 903,341 trees felled, of which 566,839 used for mining purposes.

There was an increase on 1910 of 2,475,731/ in the value of the minerals produced, and a decrease of 556,462/ in the value of the metals produced from the minerals. Of the total mineral produce in 1911, the value of 83,805,239/ was raised in England, 24,333,125/ in Wales, 16,157,983/ in Scotland, 222,006/ in Ireland, and 31,261/ in the Isle of Man.

The total number of persons employed at all mines under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts in 1911 was 1,096,238. The number of mines at work was 3,977. 881,002 persons (males) worked underground and 208,778 males and 6,460 females above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 82,863 (excluding persons occasionally employed), of whom 52,055 (including 3 females) worked inside the quarries, and 30,810 (including 1 female) outside.

IV. TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

In 1907 there were employed in the textile factories of the United Kingdom 1,087,223 (407,360 males and 679,863 females), of whom 816,804 (310,983 males and 504,821 females) over 18 years of age, 238,772 (81,270 males and 157,502 females) between 14 and 18, and 32,647 (15,137 males and 17,510 females) under 14 (half-timers). The total number in cotton factories was 576,820 (359,078 females), and in wool, worsted and shoddy factories, 261,192 (152,354 females).

The following information is furnished by Mr Thomas R. Ellison of Liverpool —

A century ago the value of cotton, woollen, and linen yarns and piece goods produced in Great Britain and Ireland was about 22,000,000/ — say woollen 17,000,000/, linen 4,000,000/, and cotton 1,000,000/. Of recent years the value has been about 200,000,000/ — say, cotton 120,000,000/, woollen 55,000,000/, and linen 25,000,000/. The total amount of capital employed is about 250,000,000/, and at least 5,000,000 people—men, women, and children—are dependent upon these industries for their livelihood. Moreover, one half of the value of British and Irish products exported consists of textiles. The progress made by each branch is shown in the subjoined statement of the weight of raw material used and the value of yarns and goods exported —

Commerces.

The principal imports on which customs duties are levied are beer, rum, and spruce, chicory, cocoa, coffee, dried fruits, motor spirit, spirits, tea, tobacco, and wine—spirits, sugar, tobacco, tea, and wine yielding bulk of the entire levies. In 1911 the imports free of duty (exclusive of bullion and specie and diamonds) amounted to 613,503,379*l.*, 10 per cent., and those subject to duty to 66,654,148*l.*, 10 per cent. of the total imports.

¹ The value of goods imported into the United Kingdom is generally taken to be that at the port of entry, including incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned to the market for sale, the value in England required and recorded in the declaration is ascertained from the declaration by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Statistical Office, and by the price-list and market reports of day. Exports, value in port shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) taken Imports are now entered as from country the goods consigned to the United Kingdom Prior to 1904, only the countries goods last shipped recorded Since then, both countries of shipment and countries consignment have been recorded Thus, countries with (e.g. Switzerland and Bohemia) used not to appear in returns, much of the imported produce of Central Europe was entered and Belgium These other countries are, however, now credited the imports consigned from them, whether coming direct to United Kingdom or countries.

Exports are credited the country of ultimate destination as by exporters, but prior 1904, only the countries to which goods shipped ded

Of the total imports from foreign countries and colonies in 1911, per cent. direct into England and Wales, 6.9 into Scotland, and into Ireland; of the total exports, 91.2 per cent. direct from England and Wales, 8.5 from Scotland, and 0.3 from Ireland.

The total estimated value of the imports and exports of Ireland (including the trade with Great Britain) is given by the Irish Department of Agriculture Technical Instruction, follows:—

1912	74,343,000	9,964,000	5,893,000	89,200,000

The total number of telegraph offices at post offices was (March 31, 1912) 11,717 at railway stations 242, total 12,964. In 1911 the Post Office acquired from the Marconi Company and Lloyd's the wireless telegraph stations on the coast of the United Kingdom. The Marconi Company, however, retains its licence for its long distance stations at Poldhu and Chisden. The licences existing on March 31, 1912 granted under the Wireless Telegraphy Act numbered 4 for private business (excluding lightships) and 258 experimental. The Post Office collects and delivers telegrams to and from ships at sea and in 1911-12 so dealt with 1,690 outward and 5,745 inward telegrams.

It is intended to erect a chain of wireless telegraph stations to connect distant parts of the Empire with the United Kingdom. The stations at present suggested will be in England, Egypt, British East Africa, South Africa, India, and the Malay Peninsula. It is hoped that Australia and New Zealand will also erect stations to form part of the chain.

On March 31, 1912, there were 711 trunk wire centres open for telephone business, there were 2,993 trunk circuits containing 27,730 miles of wire, the number of conversations during the year 93,499,496. The London exchange system had 1,031 miles of working wire, and 292,009 telephones. The provincial telephone service had 44,559 miles of working wire, and 171,972 telephones. These figures include the system of the National Telephone Company which was taken over by the Post Office at midnight December 31, 1911. For private wires the rental amounted to £21,429.

The total area of the island, excluding water, is 140,956 acres, the total area of arable land in 1912 was 78,308 acres and of permanent grass, 16,745 acres. The total acreage under corn crops in 1912 was 22 acres, including 19,802 under oats, and 2,593 under barley here. There were also 8,017 acres under turnips and swedes, 2,558 under potatoes, and 41,684 under clover, sainfoin and grasses under rotation. The number of agricultural holdings in 1912 above 1 acre was 1,776. Of these, 512 were owned or mainly owned by the occupiers, the aggregate acreage being 23,528 acres. The live stock in 1912 consisted of 6,978 horses, 21,188 cattle, 80,422 sheep, and 4,329 pigs.

The island has considerable mineral resources, the output in 1911 being the value of 31,261/. The chief products (1911) were lead ore, 930 tons (9,034/); zinc ore, 1,860 tons (12,049/), salt, 8,736 tons (5,851/), besides igneous rocks, limestone, slate, sand and gravel. In 1911 there were 221 fishing boats of an aggregate tonnage of 3,172 net tons, employing 832 men and boys, engaged in the fisheries.

The registered shipping (1911) comprised 50 sailing vessels (4483 net tons) and 27 steamers (5,808 net tons); total tonnage, 10,291 net tons. The tonnage entered at ports of the island (1911) was 809,944 tons (808,494 coastwise), cleared 805,149 tons (803,468 coastwise). The railways have a length of 44½ miles, and there are 25 miles of electric railways.

CHANNEL ISLANDS

The Channel Islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence, it is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Bailiff presides in the States, which consist of 12 Jurats elected by the ratepayers for life, 12 rectors of parishes, 12 constables or mayors of parishes, and 14 deputies: the constables and deputies being elected for 1 year. The Lieutenant Governor has a veto on legislation. He may address the States but not vote. The 2 Crown officers may speak and vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 80/ real or 120/ personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under the Lieutenant Governor but Guernsey and Alderney have government of their own and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of a Bailiff, 12 Jurats, 10 rectors, 2 Crown officers, 15 delegates of parishes and 9 deputies elected by the ratepayers of the whole island. The sheriff and jurats are chosen by indirect election. On May 10 1905 a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition, or leasing, or occupation of immovable property by share or alien companies, registration and liability to local rates &c being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

II INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE

In the following pages the sections of the British Empire outside the United Kingdom are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong—1 Europe, 2 Asia, 3 Africa; 4 America, 5 Australasia and Oceania.

The Colonies proper form three classes—(1) The Crown Colonies, which are entirely controlled by the home government, (2) those possessing Representative Institutions, in which the Crown has no more than a veto on legislation, but the home government retains the control of public officers, and (3) those possessing Responsible Government, in which the home government has no control over any public officer, though the Crown appoints the Governor and still retains a veto on legislation.

The Colonial Office is divided into three branches, the first of which, called the Dominions Department, deals with business connected with the self governing colonies, and is linked with the secretariat of the Imperial Conference. The Second Department, called the Crown Colonies Department, deals with the administrative and political work of the Crown Colonies and Protectorates. The Third or General Department, which is also a Legal Department, deals with matters common to all Crown Colonies such as currency, banking, posts and telegraphs, education, &c. Connected with this department are standing committees to deal with promotion, railways and finance, and pensions.

The expenditure of the Mother Country in connection with the Colonies and Protectorates (exclusive of India) amounts to over one million sterling annually for grants and administrative expenditure.

According to the Army Estimates for the year 1912-13, the total effective strength of the British forces in the colonies, exclusive of India, and in Egypt, 45,592 of all ranks. The distribution of these troops (including colonial corps and corps lent by India), the colonial contributions, and the total expenditure for military purposes in the colonies is as follows—

Colonies, &c.	Number all ranks	Colonial Corps (included in pre- vious column)	Colonial Contribution	Total military expenditure
Gibraltar	4,027	—	—	335,000
Malta	7,469	137	1,000	606,000

ASIA.

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab el Mandeb. It forms an important coaling station on the highway to the East, and is strongly fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othman on the mainland with the villages of Imad, Hiswa, and Bir Jabir.

In April 1905 after demarcation of the frontier Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Muad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north east to the great Desert. The settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Political Resident, who is also General Officer commanding the troops.

Political Resident—Major General Sir James A. Bell, K.C.V.O.

The only Government revenue is from duty on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines, local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust, the harbour is being dredged.

Area 75 square miles, including the Protectorate about 9,000 square miles of Perim, 5 square miles. Population, in 1911, 46,165 (31,290 males and 14,875 females), against 13,974 in 1901. Imports (1911 12), by sea, 2,472,494/; by land, 170,782/; treasure, 613,967/. Exports, by sea, 2,203,745/; by land, 114,850/; treasure, 613,772/. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1911 12, 1,510 merchant steamers of 3,594,888 tons (net) entered the port of Aden, of these, 804 were British, local craft, 982, of 30,307 tons. At Perim 517 merchant vessels entered, of which 372 called for coal.

Chief exports Coffee, gums, hides and skins, piece goods, tobacco. Chief imports Cotton twist, piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco. Aden itself is unproductive, and the trade is purely transshipment one, except that from the interior of Arabia.

The island of Sokotra off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at present Christian, Moham medan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and gums, sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful, butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHRAIN ISLANDS

Group of islands in the Persian Gulf, miles off the coast of Hassa, in Arabia. Bahrain, the largest, is 27 miles long by 10 wide, Moharek, to the north east of Bahrain, miles long, ½ mile wide. Other islands are, to the east, Sitra, 3 miles long and 1 mile broad, half its area being fertile, Nahi Saleh, about miles in circumference, very fertile, Jazayir, a small islet with a date plantation, to the west three rocky and uninhabited islets, Umi Nahsan, Idi, and Raka. The population of the two islands put at about 90,000. Manamah, the capital and commercial centre, extends miles along the shore, 25,000 inhabitants. Moharek on the island of that name has about inhabitants. Other towns Budeya, Bahrain Island, and Hud. Moharek Island. There about 100 villages the islands. There are thousands of tombs in the shape of conical mounds situated in the interior of the islands. They vary considerably in size, of them being as much as 100 yards in diameter, and 40 feet in height, containing the labour of construction. Inside are regular masonry burial chambers. No certainty as to origin yet existing owing to want of inscriptions, but they would offer great interest to any archaeologist, as they undoubtedly extremely ancient.

The ruling family, Al Khafsa, and most of the townsmen Mohammedans of the Sunni (Maliki) sect. The town population consists of Arabs who have come from Nejd within the last 200 years, and negroes. The agricultural population and the Bahrain pearl divers are mostly of the Shiah sect. The present chief of Bahrain is Sheikh Essa. His uncle, Mahomed, deposed by the British in 1867, and Sheikh Ali, his father, installed in his place. In 1869 Ali was killed, and Sheikh Essa succeeded to power.

The great industry is the pearl fishery, in which 900 boats, of from 8 to men each, are engaged. The Bahrain Islands also produce dates, and remarkably fine breed of donkeys. Sail cloth is manufactured intensively, and also reed mats. In 1910-11, imports amounted to 1,777,194, exports, 1,305,555. There are 5 per cent ad valorem import duties. The importation of arms and ammunition is prohibited.

The chief imports in 1910-11 were specie, 605,197, pearls, 398,338, rice, grain and pulse, 295,472, coffee, 41,515, cattle, 25,653, dates, 32,749, cottons, 70,670. Of the exports, the only natural exports pearls, 928,633, and oyster shells, 28,543, but owing to its situation, harbour, and good service of steamers, the port largely used a place of transshipment for mainland goods, and there were exportations of rice, grain and pulse, 56,627, dates, 24,315, cottons, 31,253, coffee, 10,449. Of the imports in 1910-11, 56.7 per cent were from British Empire, 12 per cent from Turkish Arabia, and 8.7 per cent from Persia. Of the exports in 1910-11, 72.6 per cent went to British Empire, 7.3 per cent Turkish Arabia, and 2.0 per cent to Germany.

In 1910-11, the following shipping entered the port of Bahrain —

British North Borneo.—Governor.—A. C. Pearson.

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous, Mount Kina Balu being 13,700 feet high, but most of the surface is jungle.

Area, about 31,106 square miles, with ■ coast-line of ■ 900 miles. Population (1911) 208,188, consisting mainly of Muhammadan settlers ■ the coast and aboriginal tribes inland, with a large number of Chinese traders, artisans, and coolies. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 6,000), ■ the east coast, and Jesselton, ■ the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). The territory is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, ■ British Government proclaimed ■ formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands ■ acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and ■ recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole district ■ divided into nine provinces. In December, 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights ■ coal mines on Brunei Bay.

A large area has been alienated on leases for tobacco planting, tapioca sago, rubber, cocoa-nuts, and coffee. ■ total labour force employed in the country at the end of 1910 was about 18,000 coolies.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian penal, criminal, and civil procedure codes, and local proclamations and ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Muhammadan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 under European officers.

Imports	140 71	21 117	940 461	145 4 6	37,021

The revenue includes sums realised by land sales, and the expenditure includes sums spent on capital account for railways and telegraphs.

Sources of revenue: Opium, spirit taxes, birds'-nests, court fees, stamp duty, licences, import and export duties, royalties, land sales, &c. No public debt.

Most of the trade is carried through Singapore and Hong Kong with Great Britain and the colonies. The chief products are timber, sago, rice, gum, coffee, many fruits, nutmegs, cinnamon, pepper, gambier, gutta serena, rubber, camphor, rattans, tapioca, sweet potatoes, and tobacco, which is being planted on a large scale. Coal, iron, gold, and mineral oil have been found. The exports comprise the products mentioned, with birds' nests, seed pods, bêche-de-mer, &c. Exports of leaf tobacco in 1908, valued 277,217; 1909, 294,231; 1910, 273,802; 1911, 252,268. Exports of rubber in 1911, 260,900 lbs., value 50,844. Shipping: 1908, entered 151,218 tons, cleared 151,607 tons; 1909, entered 190,711 tons, cleared 189,872 tons; 1910, entered 157,605 tons, cleared 158,394 tons.

A railway, 130 miles, runs from Brunel Bay into the interior, and from there to Jesselton on Gaya Bay. Borneo is now connected by cable with the outer world. There is a telegraph line from Menumbok, where the cable reaches land, to Sandakan, where there is also a telephone exchange, also a line along the railway to Jesselton and Kudat, and from Darvel Bay to Sandakan.

At Sandakan there are agencies of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, and of the National Bank of China, and the North Borneo Company transacts banking business.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half-cents), nickel coinage of 1, 2, and 5 cents, also notes of one, five, ten, and twenty-five dollars, and of 10 and 20 cents to the extent of 400,000 dollars. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei.—In 1888 the neighbouring territories on the north-west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The Sultan, Mohamed Jamal ul alim, born 1889, succeeded his father in May, 1906. He receives an allowance of 1,400/ a year from State funds, and his two principal ministers 700/ a year each. Area about 4,000 square miles, and population estimated at 30,000. The chief town, Brunei (pop. 10,000), is built on the water on the Brunei river.

Distance from Labuan about 13 miles. Communication by steam launches regularly maintained.

British Resident.—M. S. H. McArthur (Huvey Chevalier, acting)

Sarawak. Area about 42,000 square miles, coastline 400 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861, 1885, and 1890. The Rajah, H. M. Sir Charles Johnson Brooke, G. C. M. G., nephew of the late Rajah, born June 3, 1829, succeeded in 1863. Population estimated at 500,000, Malays, Dyaks, Kayans, Kenyahs, and Munis, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital, Kuching, about 100 miles inland, the Sarawak River, and Sibn, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs and the opium, gambling, arrack and pawn loans, exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. There are import duties on tobacco, salt, kerosene oil, wines, and spirits, export duties on sago, gambier, pepper, all jungle produce, dried fish, &c. The revenue in 1910 was 164,220/; expenditure, 147,380/; 1911, revenue, 165,716/; expenditure, 156,539/; public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities, as well as gold, silver, diamonds, antimony, and quicksilver. In 1910, imports, 787,926/; exports, 951,259/; 1911, imports, 661,085/; exports, 838,125/. The exports (1911) included sago flour, 187,753/; pepper, 151,888/; gutta jelutong, 53,415/; gutta manufactures, 192,760/; and gold, 115,840/. The trade is mostly with Singapore. There are military and police forces, the former consisting of 600 Dyaks under an English army officer. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads besides bridle paths. There are 25 post offices (1911). The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, but no telegraph. Distance from London, 8,700 miles, transit, 30 to 35 days. Telegrams sent by post from Singapore.

Constitution and Government

THE authentic history of Ceylon begins in the fifth century B.C., when an ~~dynasty~~ of Hindus from Northern India established the Ankshala dynasty. The country was developed by Tamil colonists from South India. Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B.C., and in comparative purity is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements in the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1795-96 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras. In 1798 Ceylon was erected into a separate colony. In 1815 the whole island fell under British rule.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1831, 1833 and 1910, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of seven members—viz., the Officer commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Controller of Revenue, the Colonial Treasurer, and two members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 35 members, including the Executive Council, four other office holders and ten unofficial members, six nominated by the Governor and four elected as representing the different races and classes in the community.

Governor —

Colonial Secretary — Hon. J. I. Stables (Salary 2,000)

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate holderns. There are three municipalities and twenty-one local boards, mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population

The population for 1911 shows an increase of 14.98 per cent on the population of 1901. The enumerated population was 4,105,535 at the end of March, 1911, exclusive of the military and shipping. The following are the statistics of the census of 1911 (excluding the immigrant population on the tea estates, the military, and the shipping) —

Of the 3,565,954 persons (exclusive of the Military, the Shipping and the Prisoners of War) at the census of 1901, the occupation of 2,848,164 or 80 per cent (of whom 1,057,357 were earners and 1,290,807 dependents) was returned in agriculture, 613,689 or 17.2 per cent (275,789 earners and 197,950 dependents) manufactures, 126,747 or 3.5 per cent (57,712 earners and 69,035 dependents) commerce.

The population on estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India numbered, at the census of 1901, 441,601, and formed 12.4 per cent of the total population. Since 1891 this population has increased 68.4 per cent.

The birth rate in 1910-11 (18 months) was 39.0 per 1,000 of population and the death rate, 28.0.

The urban population is 11.9 per cent of the total population. The principal towns and their populations, according to the census of 1911 are: Colombo 213,396; Galle 40,187; Jaffna, 10,549; Kandy 30,146.

Religion and Instruction.

The principal religious creeds were in 1911—Buddhists, 2,144,605; Hindus, 500,375; Mohammedans, 276,361; Christians, 169,947.

Buddhism in Ceylon (unlike that in Tibet, China, and Japan) is, in its philosophy, materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is under a separate Government department with a Director of Public Instruction and a staff of Inspectors.

The numbers of vernacular schools in 1910 were: Government schools, 734 (attendance, 71,148 boys and 19,761 girls); Aided schools, 1,899 (attendance, 111,191 boys and 59,354 girls); Unaided schools, 1,548 (36,754 children). There were also 236 English and Anglo-vernacular schools, attended by 31,131 boys and 7,033 girls.

The total amount spent by Government on vernacular education during 1910-11 (18 months) was 85,000.

English education has obtained such a hold upon the people that it is becoming gradually self-supporting. The Royal College (284 pupils in 1910) and other high English schools receive grants in aid. The total grants to English schools in 1910-11 (18 months) amounted to 15,700. The Government also gives two scholarships of 500 a year, each tenable for three years, with outfit allowances of 500 each and free passages, to enable the two best students of each year to complete their course of education in England, and other scholarships are given locally. The Cambridge local examinations and certain examinations of the London University are held annually in Ceylon by arrangement. Technical education is given in the "Technical Schools" (137 students in 1910), and by means of Government scholarships obtainable at Madras Engineering College. There is a Government Training College and thirty six industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism.

The law is Roman-Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1910-11 (18 months) the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates courts was 119,431. The number of "true" cases of cognisable crime in the same period was 693, and the convictions and committals, 15,408. 8,149 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force, 30 June, 1911, 2,300 of all ranks.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government varying from Rs. 1 to Rs. 12 each per mensem.

The principal items of expenditure are (1911-12) (1) establishments, 12,243,997 Rs., (2) military expenditure, 1,724,681 Rs., (3) pensions and retired allowances, 1,474,528 Rs., (4) interest on loans, 4,333,121 Rs., (5) public works (annually recurrent), 2,890,124 Rs., extraordinary, 2,060,108 Rs., (6) other charges, 11,086,205 Rs.

Public debt on June, 1912, 5,935,100¹, incurred entirely for public works, such as the construction of railways, harbour works, waterworks, etc. There is also a local debt of about Rs. 600,000, incurred on account of irrigation and harbour and railway works.

Defence.

The harbour of Colombo, on the west, is protected, the colony having erected batteries of the newest form, the Imperial Government supplying the armaments. Considerable additions are being made to the defences of Colombo by the Imperial and Colonial Governments.

The establishment of British forces in Ceylon in 1912-13 was 1,283, including 928 Colonial troops. The Colonial contribution in 1912-13 was Rs. 500.

Production and Industry.

The estimated area of the colony is 16,307,940 acres, 2,800,000 acres being under cultivation and 660,000 acres pasture land. Of this, 644,763 acres were (1911) under rice, 96,484 under other grains, 1,512 under coffee, 34,535 under cacao, 457,777 under tea, 253 under cinchona, 1,032,282 under coconut, 11,581 under cinnamon, 14,374 under tobacco, and 184,551 under rubber. Cardamoms, cola, and camphor are also produced, cotton, mango, and various fruits and vegetables are being introduced. Live stock 1911, 1715 horses, 1,465,410 horned cattle, 90,844 sheep, 195,155 goats, and 86,558 pigs. There is a Government Dairy and Model Farm, possessing over 200 head of cattle, imported from Scinde. In 1911 there were roughly 420 plumbago mines. Ceylon contains also gold, monazite, thorium, and mica. Moonstones, rubies, cat's eyes, sapphires, &c., are worked. There are 2,159 gum quarries. The pearl fisheries which were leased to a company for a term of 5 years, from January 1, 1906, at an annual rent of £10,000 Rs. have been resumed by the Government. Native manufactures include weaving, basket work, tortoise shell boxes, &c., earthenwares, jewellery, metal work, lacquer work, carving, &c.

1 Including bullion and specie.

The values of imports and exports are declared, and represent the wholesale values at the place of import or export. Declarations are subject to scrutiny and penalty. The Chamber of Commerce representing the trade of the island, assists by supplying the value on which a rated duty is levied. Quantities of imports are ascertained from documents, shippers being liable to penalties for misstatement. The destination of goods are also obtained from the shipping documents. In some cases, however, goods intended for transshipment abroad are not entered, e.g. to New York and London. The transit trade includes all goods transhipped direct in port as well as goods landed into transshipment warehouses. The transit trade of Colombo has largely increased in late years, but, as no bills of lading are required in respect of transshipment goods, the returns as to quantity are only approximately correct and no returns as to value can be prepared.

Exports in 1911—cacao, 158,052; cinnamon, 139,086; (and manufactures), 176,174; copra, 878,189; nut oil, 876,371; tea, 5,660,020; plumbago, 445,764; areca nuts, 477,876; rubber, 2,428,486.

Imports in 1911—cotton manufactures, 719,538; rice, 3,027,302; coal and coke, 788,574; spirits, 109,047; sugar, raw and refined, 275,048; manures, 446,763; bullion and specie, 508,113.

According to Ceylon returns total imports from the United Kingdom in 1911 amounted to Rs. 2,896,257, exports to Rs. 5,823,973.

In 1911 (Board of Trade Returns) the value of tea imported into the United Kingdom from Ceylon was 4,096,099/; in 1900, 4,096,241/. Other imports in 1911 were rubber, 1,302,868/; nut oil, 492,139/; nuts and kernels, 273,234/; plumago, 123,030/; cocoa, 123,357/. The exports of United Kingdom produce to Ceylon in 1911 were cottons, 512,863/; coal, 219,047/; iron and steel and manufactures thereof, 327,933/; machinery, 195,25/.

Shipping and Communications.

Shipping entered and cleared, 1911, 14,926,764 tons (British, 9,385,882 tons). On January 1, 1911, 120 sailing vessels of 9,460 tons, and 7 steamers of 1,889 tons, total 127 vessels of 11,349 tons, were registered as belonging to Ceylon.

11 miles of railway were open at the end of 1911.

In 1911 there were post offices, 454; money order offices (1911), 168; telegraph offices, 118; postal packets or postcards passed through the post office (1911), 39,715,353. 4,868 miles of telegraph and 1,200 miles of telephone wire (1911); telegrams despatched (1911), 1,212,465.

Money and Credit.

The estimated amount of paper money in circulation on December 31, 1908, was 15,283,575 Rs. In circulation are also English sovereigns, silver, Indian rupees, and subsidiary Ceylon 50, 25, and 10 cent pieces; Copper, Ceylon 5, 1, and 1/2 cent pieces. Five banks have establishments in Ceylon: the Mercantile Bank, the Bank of Madras, the National Bank; the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, and the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China. The Ceylon Savings Bank on December 31, 1911, had 87,099 depositors, and deposits amounting to 5,152,880 Rs.; and the Post Office Savings Bank 89,074 depositors, and deposits (1911), 3,048,570 Rs.

The weights and measures of Ceylon are the same as those of the United Kingdom. The money of the country is the rupee of British India with cents in place of annas and pice; thus Ceylon has a decimal coinage. By Ordinance No. 6 of 1903, gold was made a legal tender (at 15 rupees = 1l.).

Dependency.

The Maldivé Islands, 400 miles west of Ceylon, are governed by an elected Sultan, who resides in the island of Male, and pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon Government. Next to the Sultan is 1st Wazir, the Prime Minister, then the Fandiari, the head priest, a judge, and besides them 11 Wazirs are Ministers of State. The Maldives are a group of 12 coral islets (atolls), richly clothed with cocoa-nut palms, and yielding millet, fruit, and edible sea-weeds. Population about 50,000 Mohammedans. The people are civilised, and are great navigators and traders.

HONG KONG.

Government.

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841; the cession confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, August, 1842; and the charter bears date April 5, 1848. Hong Kong is the great centre for British trade with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Registrar General, and the Director of Public Works (special appointment), and two unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Captain Superintendent of Police, the Registrar General (the last two being special appointments), and six unofficial members—viz, four nominated by the Crown (two of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace.

Governor—Sir Francis Henry May, K.C.M.G. Appointed 1912
Salary 6,000*l*

Area and Population.

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 29 square miles, separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyeemoon Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in 1861, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mirs Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan-tao. Its area is 376 square miles, with about 91,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments (4,468 and 2,513 respectively), and that portion of the territory outside New Kowloon, was, according to the 1911 census, as follows:—

	Male		Total
Chinese	242,455	111,732	354,187
European and American	4,448	3,828	8,074
Other nationalities	2,774	1,110	3,884
Total	249,675	116,470	366,145

The population of the New Territories (exclusive of New Kowloon) was 90,594 in 1911 census, making a population of 456,739.

Of the coloured civil population at the census of 1911, 2,012 were Indians, 444,664 were Japanese, and 1,110 were Chinese. Their figures were as follows:—

of the New Territories. Of the resident white population nearly half is British and one third is Portuguese. A considerable proportion of the military strength consists of Indian troops.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Deaths	Births per 1 000 ¹	Deaths per 1 000 ¹
1907	1,420	7,286	4.31	22.12
1908	1,412	9,271	4.17	27.55
1909	1,412	7,267	4.4	21.13
1910	1,533	7,639	4.3	21.76
1911	1,768	7,748	4.7	20.74

¹ Birth and death rates are calculated only on the population of Hong Kong and Kowloon there being no jurisdiction by the sanitary authorities over the New Territories (except New Kowloon).

In 1907 the number of Chinese emigrants was 107,967, and the number of immigrants 145,822. In 1908, 71,081 and 157,809, in 1909, 77,430 and 144,821. In 1910 111,058 and 149,564 and in 1911, 135,565 and 149,894 respectively.

Instruction

The Government schools of the Colony (mostly with English teachers) include Queen's College, average attendance 667 boys, mostly Chinese; the Kowloon and Victoria schools, for children of both sexes of British parentage, average attendance 46 and 30 respectively, the Belknap Girls' School, English side (mixed), average attendance 223; three Anglo-Chinese District Schools, average attendance 728. There is also a Vernacular Girls' school with an average attendance of 204. There are 53 schools (mainly denominational) which receive grants from Government and are subject to Government inspection, average attendance 4,183 in 1911. The total expenditure on the above schools in 1911 was 209,170 dollars.

There is a police school with about 470 pupils and about 307 unaided schools with about 9,913 pupils.

There is a College of Medicine for Chinese which does good work without Government support. A Technical Institute maintained by the local Government, was started in 1906. Number of pupils in 1911, 310.

The Hong Kong University was formally opened in March, 1912, and the first session commenced in the following September. On December 31, 1911 the endowment fund amounted to £9981.

Justice and Crime

There are Courts of Justice consisting of a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court—Appellate Court, a police magistrate's court, and a magistrate's court. In 1911 1,256 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences, in 1910, 1,212. The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 595 in 1911, and 547 in 1910. There is a police force in the colony numbering 1,080 men, of whom 111 are European, 399 Indians, and 570 Chinese.

Finance.

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in five years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value, for 1899 it is here taken as 1s 8½d., for 1910, at 1s 9½d., and for 1911 at 1s 9½d. —

Year	Revenue	Expenditure
1907	570	(1770)
1908	770	15,710
1909	73,319	41,750
1910	(109,078)	(104,111)
1911	(77,438)	(111,111)

The revenue is derived chiefly from land, taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor duties, and the opium monopoly, which together more than cover the expenses of administration. A large portion of the expenditure has to be devoted to the maintenance of a strong police force. Expenditure on establishments in 1911, 3,662,511 dolrs (331,9167).

Public debt, 341,8007, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,937 in Inscribed Stock at 3½ per cent, was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction. On December 31, 1911, the assets of the colony exceeded its liabilities by 1,926,978 dolrs (165,6707).

Defence.

The military contribution payable to the Imperial Government was 1,842,554 dolrs (121,6687) for 1911. The volunteer corps cost 48,014 dolrs (4,3517) for 1911. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce and Shipping.

The chief industries of Hong Kong are cotton spinning, sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope making, the manufacture of cement, and now brewing, and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important, especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain (about one-half of the total imports and exports), India, Australia, the United States, and Germany. Hong Kong is a free port (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor), and there are no official returns of trade, but only mercantile estimates, according to which the imports average four, and the exports two millions sterling. Hong Kong is the centre of trade in many kinds of goods. Among the principal are opium, sugar and flour, salt, earthenware, oil, amber, cotton and cotton goods, sandal wood, rice, coal, timber, hemp, bulk and refined oil (kerosene), ivory, betel, vegetables, live stock, granite, &c. The Chinese tea and silk trade is largely in the hands of Hong Kong firms.

The trade between Hong Kong and the United Kingdom (Board of Trade returns) for five years is given as follows—

	1905	1909	1910	1911	1912
Imports (consignment)	£	£	£	£	£

The registered shipping (Dec., 1911) consists of 73 sailing vessels of 14,822 tons, and 110 steamers of 35,162 tons, total tonnage, 49,984, 22,675 vessels, including 12,862 junks and 1,617 (4/5) steam launches, representing altogether 11,538,429 tons, entered in 1911, and 22,808 vessels including 12,472 junks, and 1,646 (4/5) steam launches representing 11,529,679 tons, cleared in 1911. The number of baling and other boats frequenting the harbour and bays of Hong Kong in 1911 may be estimated at 19,000.

There is an electric tramway of 9½ miles, and a cable tramway connecting The Peak district with the lower levels of Victoria. The British section of the Hong Kong Canton Railway was begun in 1907, and opened to traffic on 1st October, 1910.

Money and Credit.

The British banking institutions in the Colony are the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whose head office is at Hong Kong, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and the Mercantile Bank of India, Ltd. There are also several foreign banks.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The money, weights, and measures are at Hong Kong, and the British equivalents, are—

The Mexican Dollar = 100 Cents

„ British =

„ Chinese Tael = 10 Mace

100 Candareens = 1,000 Cash = about 3½ d

Hong Kong 50, 20, 10, and 1 cent pieces, and 1 cent pieces (copper) imported from England, and the Mil (copper) no longer coined.

The Tael .

„ Picul = 13½ avoirdupois

„ Catty = 1½ lbs

„ Chek = 14½ inches

„ Cheung = 12½

the above weights and measures of China, those of Great Britain are in general in the colony.

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES.

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a matter of the Foreign Department of the Government whose agent resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR-BOOK among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include native States. The term is so used unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow. The symbol Rs. stands for rupees. Rs. 1 = Re. 10.

Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian empire is established by the Government of India Act, 1858 (21 & 22 Vict. cap. 106), which received the Royal Assent on August 2, 1858. By this Act, all the territories theretofore under the government of the East India Company were vested in His Majesty, and all powers were exercised in His name; all territorial and other revenues, and all tributes and other payments, are likewise received in His name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1853 (17 & 18 Viet. cap. 10), the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the title of Emperor of India.

The administration of the Indian empire in England is committed to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of Ministers, and ten and not more than fourteen members, appointed for seven years by the Secretary of State. At least nine members of the Council must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. A member may be removed upon an address from both Houses of Parliament, and the Secretary of State for India may for special reasons reappoint a member of the Council for a further term of five years. No member sits in Parliament.

The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. The expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council, which meets at least once a week, five being a quorum. In dealing, however, with questions affecting the relations of the Government with foreign Powers, in making peace and war, in prescribing the policy of the Government towards native States, and in matters of internal policy where the Government of India have addressed the India Office in a secret despatch the Secretary of State may act on his own authority. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business.

The supreme executive authority in India is vested in the Governor-General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor-General, or Viceroy, is appointed by the Crown and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of the Empire and the seat of government was moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912 the latter being termed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner.

Viceroy and Governor General of India —The Right Hon. Baron Hardinge of Penshurst, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., I.S.O., born 1858. Raised to peerage 1910. After filling other posts in the diplomatic service, was Ambassador at St. Petersburg 1904-06, permanent head of Foreign Office, 1905-10, present appointment, November, 1910.

The salary of the Governor General is Rs. 2,50,800 (16,720 l.) a year.

The following is a list of the Governors-General of India, with the dates of their assumption of office:—

Warren Hastings	1774	Earl (Marquis) of Dalhousie	1846
Sir John Macpherson	178	Lord Canning	1850
Earl (Marquis) Cornwallis	1791	Earl of Elgin	1819
Sir John Shore (Lord Cornwallis)	1793	Sir John (Lord) Lawrence	1844
Marquis Wellesley	1798	Duke of Mayo	1869
Earl Cornwallis	1805	Lord (Earl of) Northbrook	1872
Sir Geo. H. Barlow	1805	Lord (Earl) Lytton	1876
Earl of Minto	1807	Marquis of Ripon	1880
Earl of (Marquis) Hastings	1813	Earl (Marquis) of Dufferin	1884
Earl of Amherst	1819	Marquis of Lansdowne	1886
Lord W. C. Bentinck	1828	Earl of Elgin	1893
Lord Auckland	1836	Lord Curzon	1899
Lord Ellenborough	1842	Earl of Minto	1905
Sir (Lord) Hardinge	1910	Lord Hardinge of Penshurst	1910

Until 1858 these were Governors General of Fort William in Bengal, not of India.

The Council of the Governor General consists of six ordinary members, and the Commander-in-Chief, who is an extraordinary member. The ordinary members are appointed by the Crown, and usually hold office for five years. There are six departments—Home, Foreign, Finance, Army, Public Works, Revenue and Agriculture, Commerce and Industry, Legislative,

Education and Railways At the head of each, except the Railway Department is one of the secretaries to the Government of India. The President of the Railway Board is the head of the Railway Department and he is authorised to act as if he were a Secretary to the Government of India. Each department, except the Foreign Department, which is under the immediate superintendence of the Governor General, is assigned to the special care of one of the members of the Council.

The Council is expanded into a legislative council by the addition of other members nominated by the Viceroy or elected under the Act of 1909. The Legislative Council now consists of 68 members, 12 being official and 56 unofficial, special provision being made for the representation of Mahomedans. A Governor or a Lieutenant Governor is also an additional member when the Council sits within his province. This Council has power subject to certain restrictions to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within the Native States, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The proceedings in the Legislative Council are public.

As the result of administrative changes in 1912, India is now divided into ten great and five smaller provinces as follows —

Madras Governor, Rt Hon B. B. Pentland, P.C., G.C.I.E. (1912), salary, Rs 120,000 a year.

Bombay Governor, Baron Willingdon (April 1913), Rs 120,000.

Bengal Governor, Rt Hon Baron Carmichael of Skirling, G.C.I.E., K.C.M.G. (1912), Rs 120,000.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh Lieut Governor Sir J. S. Meston, K.C.S.I. (1912), salary, Rs 100,000.

The Punjab Lieut Governor, M. F. Odwyer C.S.I. (May, 1913), Rs 100,000.

Burma Lieut Governor, Sir Harvey Adamson, K.F., K.C.S.I. (1910), Rs 100,000.

Bihar and Orissa Lieut Governor, Sir Charles Stuart Bayley, K.C.S.I. (1912), Rs 100,000.

Central Provinces and Berar Chief Commissioner, Sir B. Robertson, K.C.S.I., C.I.E. (1912), Rs 62,000.

Assam Chief Commissioner Sir Archdale Reith, K.C.I.F., Rs 62,000.

N.W. Frontier Province Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner Lt Colonel Sir G. O. Ross-Koppel, K.C.I.E. (1912), Rs 54,000.

Ajmer Merwara Chief Commissioner, Sir L. Colvin, K.C.S.I., Rs 4,000.

Coorg Chief Commissioner, Lt Col Sir H. Daly, K.C.I.F., C.S.I., Rs 4,000.

British Baluchistan Chief Commissioner, Lt Col J. Ramsay, C.S.I., C.I.E., Rs 4,000.

Delhi Chief Commissioner, W. M. Hall, C.I.E.

Andaman and Nicobars Chief Commissioner, Lt Col A. Browning, Rs 3,000.

The Governors of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal are appointed by the Crown, and each of them has an executive council, consisting of two members of the Indian Civil Service, appointed by the Crown, and, under a recent Act of Edw. VII Ch. 4, the Secretary of State may increase the number to four, of whom two at least must have been in the Crown in India for not less than twelve years. The Lieutenant-Governors are appointed by the Governor-General, with the approval of the Crown ; Chief Commissioners by the Governor-General in Council.

Governors of Madras, Bombay, Bengal and the four Lieutenant-Governors each have legislative councils of their own. The Legislative Councils of the provinces are constituted as follows : Madras, 12 members (20 official, 2 unofficial, 2 experts) ; Bombay, 12 (18 official, 28 unofficial, 2 experts) ; Bengal, 50 (17 official, 2 unofficial, 2 experts) ; United Provinces, 20 (20 official, 2 unofficial, 2 experts) ; Bihar and Orissa, 17 (17 official, 2 unofficial, 2 experts) ; Punjab, 26 (10 official, 14 official, 2 experts) ; Burma, 17 (6 official, 2 unofficial, 2 experts).

Although all the provinces are under the control of the Government of India, they enjoy much administrative independence varying with their importance. Each province is usually broken into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which form the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector, magistrate, or deputy-commissioner), who has entire control of the district, and is responsible to the governor of the province. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there is a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy-collectors and other officials. There are 117 of such districts in British India.

The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Native States varies in degree ; but they are all governed by the native princes, ministers or councils under the political supervision of a resident, or agent, in political charge either of a single State or a group of States. The chiefs have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States ; they are not permitted to maintain a military force above a certain specified limit ; no European is allowed to reside at any of their courts without special sanction ; and the Supreme Government exercises any degree of control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important chiefs are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute.

A new Native State was constituted in 1911, comprising the greater part of what was known as the "Family Domain" of the Benares semindari. The parts affected are Bhadohi or Korb, a compact and homogeneous tract lying between the Ganges and the Rama, in the Mirzapur district, and Kaimangraur, or Chakia, a large tract in the same district. The native state thus formed has an area of 887 square miles and a population (1901) of 362,000. The Maharaja is Sir Prabhu Narayan Singh.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

There were at the end of 1910-11, 715 municipalities, with a population of about 17 millions. The municipal authorities have the control of roads, water supply, drains, markets, and sanitation ; they impose taxes, make bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1910-11 was about 4,600,000*l.* exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts. By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1882-84, the elective principle has been extended, in a large or small measure, all over India. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by ratepayers ; everywhere the majority of town committees consists of natives, and in many committees the members are natives. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were in 1910-11 and local boards, which are charged with roads, district schools, hospitals. Their aggregate income, including items, was about 3,250,000*l.*

124 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

The following was the educational expenditure in certain years, more than half from fees and provincial resources, the rest from local rates, municipal funds, endowments, &c. —

There are the five Universities of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, and the Punjab, which, though merely examining bodies, have numerous affiliated colleges. There are normal schools in every province, and inspectors visit all departmental schools. Medical colleges furnish a limited number of graduates and a larger number of certificated practitioners. There are eight art schools.

The following table shows the number of students in each of the provinces in British India who matriculated at the five Universities in the years named —

Of the total number of educational institutions in India (viz 172,292), 33,189 are public, 81,116 are aided and 57,987 are private and unaided.

Notwithstanding the recent great progress of education, the proportion able to read and write is still very small. In British India only 28.1 per cent. of the boys of school-going age attend school, and of girls 4.6.

During 1910 the following vernacular newspapers were published in Eastern Bengal and Assam, 53, Baluchistan 1, Burma 30, Bengal, 200, Bombay, 334, Burma, 31, Central India, 9, Central Provinces and Berar, 31, Madras, Mysore, and Hyderabad, 289, United Provinces 220, Punjab, 209, Rajputana 8 total, 1,416. They were published in the following languages or dialects—Assamese, Bengali, Hindi, Oriya, Kanarese, Sindhi, Sanskrit, Burmese, Chinese, Urdu, Persian, Gujarathi, Marathi, Kairei, Pwo Kairei, Sargu Kairei, Lami, Ilong, Malayalam, Arabic, Hindustani, Khari, Ajmeri Marwari, and Gujurikhi. In 1909-10 there were in India 2,736 printing presses at work, 726 newspapers were published, 2,829 periodicals, and 12,046 books of which 9,844 were in Indian languages.

Justice Crime

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh have each a supreme high court, with appeal to the Privy Council in England. The Punjab has a chief court, with five judges, the Central Provinces and Berar, Oudh, North West Frontier Province, Coorg and Sind have judicial. Burma has a judicial and a chief court. For Assam, and Bihar and Orissa the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority.

The number of officers exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction on December 31, 1910, follows —

The following table shows the receipts from the most important of revenue, land, opium, customs, excise and salt in 1900-1 and 1906-7 to 1911-12. The falling off in the land revenue in 1911-12 is due to unfavourable agricultural conditions. The decrease in the opium revenue in 1911-12 is due partly to a curtailment of exports as a result of the policy adopted by the Government of India to co-operate with China towards the eventual extinction of the opium habit among the Chinese, and partly to a lower average price obtained at the monthly auctions, which also is due to the fluctuations in previous years; the increase in 1911-12 is due to the exceedingly high prices realised at the monthly auctions. The large falling off in the salt revenue in 1908 is attributable to the reduction of the duty to 1 anna a maund with effect from 20, 1907; it had previously been reduced from 2 annas a maund to 2 annas with effect from 18, 1908, and to 1½ annas with effect from 22, 1905. The duty on ports of beer, and spirits tobacco, silver and petroleum were raised from February 25, 1910

¹ Exclusive of Portion of Land Revenue due to irrigation

The most important source of public income is the land. The land revenue is levied according to an assessment on estates and holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, about one-fourth of Madras and districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently over one hundred years ago; while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India. In the permanently settled tracts the land revenue falls at a rate of about two thirds of a rupee per acre of cultivated land, and represents on an average about one fifth of the rental, or about one twenty-fourth of the gross value of the produce. In the temporarily settled tracts the land revenue averages about 1½ rupee per acre of cultivated land, represents something less than one half of the actual or estimated rental, and is probably about one tenth or one-twelfth of the gross value of the produce. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR-BOOK for 1886, p 799. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was contributed in 1910-11 as follows:—

Administrations	Rs	Administrations	Rs
India, General	11,61,000	Punjab	2,18,14,072
Central Provinces and Berar	1,81,31,124	N W Frontier Province	21,57,781

In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is only permitted in parts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. A limited amount is grown in the Punjab for local consumption and to produce poppy seeds. In the monopoly districts, the cultivator advances from Government to enable him to prepare the land for the crop, and he is bound to sell the whole of the produce at a fixed price. Government agents, by whom it is despatched to the Government factory at Ghazipur to be prepared for the market. Chests of manufactured opium are sold by auction in Calcutta at monthly intervals for export to China. A reserve is kept in hand to supply the contingencies of bad seasons, and a considerable quantity is used by the Indian excise departments. Opium is grown in many of the Native States of Rajputana and Central India. N. N.

States have agreed to conform to the British system. They levy varying rates of duty on opium exported from their territories for the China market, and such opium pays the Indian Treasury a duty which is at present fixed at Rs. 1,225 per chest when the pass is granted at Ajmere, and at Rs. 1,200 when it is granted elsewhere.

The expenditure for the army for 1911 years is given as follows —

Defence

The military forces in India consist in the first place of the British troops and of the Native army, there are also the volunteers and the Imperial service troops. The army as a whole, is divided into a Northern and a Southern army. The Northern army comprises the Peshawar, Rawal Pindi, Lahore, Meerut, and Lucknow divisions besides the three independent Kohat, Bannu and Dera Ishtad Brigades. The Southern army comprises the Quetta, Mhow, Poona, Secunderabad, and Burma divisions, and the Aden brigade.

The British troops are made up of 9 cavalry regiments, 11 horse artillery batteries, 45 field batteries, 8 mountain batteries, 6 heavy batteries, 21 companies of garrison artillery, 52 infantry battalions, and a small proportion of engineers and departmental services. Units are supposed to be relieved after 14 years in India by units from home or the Colonies. They are maintained practically at an establishment. The total establishment (1912-18), 76,886 of all ranks.

The Native army comprises 40 cavalry regiments, 12 mountain batteries, 11 regiments (19 companies) of sappers and miners, 140 battalions of infantry, besides departmental services. The superior officers are British. Service in the ranks is voluntary and lasts for 8 years, with the option of extending to 22 years, 25 per cent of the men are Mahomedans, 63 per cent Hindoos, the rest are Christians, Jews etc. The infantry for the most part formed into single battalion regiments, but there are 10 regiments of Chukha rifles (each of two battalions). 5 battalions are stationed in China, the Straits Settlements and Ceylon, paid for by the home government. About a third of the cavalry and infantry units are "class regiments", regiments consisting of a particular race and religion—Mahatta, Sikhs, etc. Units are kept practically at an establishment. The establishment is 159,144 of all ranks. There are 36,000 Europeans.

The volunteers consist practically entirely of Europeans and Eurasians, the latter predominating. The establishment is 1,461 officers, 29,597 other ranks, and 5,982 cadets. They are organized as 7 regiments of cavalry, 8 regiments of mounted rifles, 7 batteries of artillery, 7 companies of engineers, and 11 battalions of infantry.

The Imperial service troops are raised and maintained by Native states, and are trained under the supervision of British officers. They number all told about 20,000 and consist of all arms of service, but they provide a specially strong force of cavalry, about 6,600 all told. The two largest contingents of Imperial troops are provided by the States of Gwalior and Kashmir.

On mobilisation a proportion of the military forces are to be in cantonments, it is proposed to place 11 divisions and a proportion of cavalry brigades in the field. The mobilized divisions do not exactly correspond to the divisional commands existing in peace time. They vary in strength and composition.

tion, the Secunderabad division, ■ instance, comprising two cavalry and five infantry brigades, while the Quetta division only comprises two infantry brigades

A division in the field consists of 3 infantry brigades (1 brigade British infantry, 2 brigades Native infantry) and divisional troops, viz., 1 regiment Native cavalry, 1 battalion pioneers, 3 field batteries, 1 mountain batteries, 1 ammunition column, 2 companies sappers and miners, 1 signal company, 2 British field ambulances 3 Native field ambulances ■ training section, 1 photolitho section, 1 field post office divisional troops supply column, 1 divisional supply column Its establishment consists of ■ 708 British and 9 168 native troops total, 12,876, with 80 guns

A cavalry brigade consists of 1 horse battery 1 British cavalry regiment, ■ Native cavalry regiments 1 British field ambulance 1 Native field ambulance, field post office 1 supply column, 1 ammunition column

A British infantry brigade consists of ■ battalions 2 British field hospitals, 1 field post office 1 supply column

A Native infantry brigade consists of ■ battalions, ■ Native field hospitals, 1 field post office, 1 supply column

The total strength of the field army would be about 150,000

The military forces in India are administered by the headquarters staff and the army department both under the supreme control of the commander in chief The headquarters staff comprises the division of the chief of the general staff, the adjutant general's division, the quarter master general's division, the medical division, the ordnance division and the military works division The army department deals with supply and finance The separation of the forces into the Northern and Southern army ■ chiefly for inspection and training purposes, the commanders of divisions and independent brigades deal direct with headquarters on most questions

The estimated net charge for the military service for the year 1912-13 is 17,930,000

Production and Industry.

The chief industry of India has always been agriculture In every province of India there is a Department of Land Records and a Department of Agriculture, with one exception under separate heads Both collect agricultural statistics, the former primarily for assessment purposes and the latter with a view to survey and improvement of agriculture The latter also is concerned with the management of experimental and seed farms, the introduction of new appliances and ■ staples and the management and control of Colleges for teaching the ■ of agriculture There are ■ of experts in the provinces and there ■ an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of those who have proceeded to Land Agriculture ■ provincial colleges There ■ also ■ Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases and for the improvement of the breeds of cattle, horses, &c There ■ an Imperial Laboratory for research and the preparation of ■ and anti toxins

In provinces where the zamindari tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors ■ proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds ■ thousands of acres), ■ State revenue is assessed ■ an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental The ■ is payable on each ■ as ■ whole; ■ assessment remaining unchanged for ■ period of settlement In provinces where the ryotwari tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from ■ State, as a rule cultivates ■ own land, and has ■ landlord, the ■ and ■ Government), the ■

■ separately assessed ■ each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable ■ once (or after a short term of grace in the ■ of uncultivated lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The raiyatwari proprietor may throw up his holding, ■ any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamindar ■ large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

Of the exports of merchandise in 1912 Rs. 221,73,10,433 represented the products of the country, Rs. 62,613 were re-exports of foreign imports.

The returns of quantities and values of imports and of exports are based on the bills of entry and shipping bills respectively, but the declarations contained in these documents are subject to scrutiny in all cases, and penalties may be inflicted where they are found to be false. The value is the wholesale value at the place of import or export, less trade discount, duty not being included in the value of dutiable goods. Up to the year ended March, 1911, the published returns showed, not the prime origin of imports and ultimate destination of exports, but only the countries whence the goods were shipped to India and to which they are shipped from India, as declared by the shipping documents.

But beginning with the official year 1911-12, imports have been classified with reference to the countries whence they are consigned to India, and exports credited to the country of final destination as declared by the exporters in the shipping bills, whether that country possesses a harbour or not. A retrospective record from the year 1907-08 was also specially constituted under the stated system of registration, and the figures given in this article for the year 1907-08 and succeeding years relate to countries of consignment and countries of final destination. No distinction is maintained between general, special, and transit trade, but goods of foreign origin, when re-exported, are shown in detail separately from those of Indian origin. Apart from the comparatively insignificant imports and exports by parcel post, of which only the total values are known, there are special circumstances which affect the value of the statistical results.

The amount of import duty collected in 1911-12 was Rs. 9,14,21,211 and export duty Rs. 1,80,24,207. The largest import duty is derived from cotton goods, Rs. 1,80,16,101 and from salt, Rs. 1,41,87,555 in 1911-12, the export duty is entirely on opium.

The imports and exports, excluding Government stores and Government treasure, are distributed as follows in five years:—

An Act providing for the closing of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of silver for the public [redacted] passed in 1893. Notifications [redacted] issued simultaneously providing (1) for the receipt of gold coin and gold bullion at the Mints in exchange for [redacted] a ratio of 1s. 4d. per rupee; (2) for the receipt of sovereigns and half-sovereigns of current weight at treasuries, in payment of Government dues, at the [redacted] of fifteen rupees for a sovereign and seven and a half rupees for a half-sovereign; and (3) for the issue of currency notes in Calcutta and Bombay in exchange for gold coin or gold bullion at the rate of one Government rupee for 1s. 4d. By a Notification of the 11th September, 1897, sovereigns and half-sovereigns of current weight [redacted] also received [redacted] the Reserve Treasuries, at the rate of Rs. 15 for the sovereign.

An Act (XXII. of 1899) declared the sovereign legal tender, 15 rupees to the sovereign. It was, however, decided not to coin gold in India; a proposal to [redacted] gold is now under consideration.

The Coinage Act of [redacted] provided for the introduction of a subsidiary nickel one-anna piece and the substitution of [redacted] bronze currency for the existing copper coins. The coinage of copper [redacted] accordingly discontinued with effect from August 1, 1906. The issue of the nickel [redacted] piece [redacted] commenced with effect from August 1, 1907.

Since [redacted] rupees have been coined [redacted] required to meet public demands, the Government purchasing the silver and paying for it mainly with the gold accumulated in the Paper Currency Reserve. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and half such profit for the years 1907-08 and 1908-09 have been placed [redacted] the credit of [redacted] separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, [redacted] the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source in future will be credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve, until such time as the gold and gold securities in [redacted] Gold [redacted] Reserve shall attain to a total of [redacted] millions sterling.

On July 26, 1861, an Act was passed by the Government of the Empire, providing for the issue of a paper currency through a Government of Public Issue, by means of promissory notes. Circulars [redacted] [redacted] [redacted] from [redacted] time, as found necessary, [redacted] the notes were [redacted] within [redacted] circle for which they were issued, and rendered [redacted] [redacted] place of issue, and also [redacted] the capital city of the Presidency.

legislation has relaxed the rigidity of the circle system. Notes of the values of five, ten, fifty, and hundred rupees are now legal tender throughout British India, and the limitation of currency to the circle of confined notes of higher denomination.

There are now seven circles of currency—Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Cawnpore, Lahore, and Karachi.

Total values of notes in circulation on March 31 in six years —

	Rs		Rs
1906-7	46,95,19,260	1909-10	54,40,84,250
1907-8	46,88,50,345	1910-11	54,99,05,815
1908-9	45,48,79,505	1911-12	61,86,25,095

Nearly two-thirds of the total note circulation is the currency circles of Calcutta and Bombay.

Currency, Weights, and Measures

The money, weights, and measures of India, and the British equivalents, are as follows —

Five Pie		= 1/4 Farthing
8 "	= 1 Pie	= 1 Farthing
4 Pie, or 12 Pie	= 1 Anna	= 1 Penny
16 Annas	= 1 Rupee	= 1s
15 Rupees		= 17

The rupee weighs 180 tola (1 tola = 180 grains) fine.

The sum of 1,00,000 rupees is called a 'lakh' and of 1,00,00,000 a 'crore' of rupees.

The Maund of Bengal of 40 seers	= 82½ lbs avoirdupois.
" " Bombay	= 28 lbs nearly
" " Madras	= 25 lbs nearly
" Tola	= 180 gr
" Guz of Bengal	= 48 inches

An Act to provide for the ultimate adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures of capacity throughout British India was passed by the Governor-General of India in Council in 1871. The Act orders: Art. 1 'The primary standard of weight shall be called a seer, and shall be the weight of metal in the possession of the Government of India, equal, when weighed in a vacuum, to the weight known in France as the kilogramme, and containing 497,896 milligrammes.' Art. 2 'The units of weight and measures of capacity shall be, for weights, the said seer; for measures of capacity, a measure representing such quantity of water at 4°C density, weighed in any one vessel it be otherwise ordered, the subdivisions of all such the money measures of capacity shall be expressed in decimal parts.' This five years — has been brought into operation.

BALÚCHISTÁN.

A country occupying the extreme western corner of the Indian Empire, approximately between lat. 24° 54' and 32° 4' N., and between long. 60° 56' and 70° 15' E.; extreme length from E. to W. about 550 miles; breadth about 450; area, 134,638 square miles; population (1911 census), 834,703. Bounded on the N. by Afghanistan and North-West Frontier Province, on the E. by Sindh, the Panjáb, and a part of the Frontier Province, on the S. by the Arabian Sea, on the W. by Persia, the boundary disputes with which were settled in 1905. The main divisions are: (1) British and administered territory in the north of the Province; (2) the native States of Kalát and Las Bela, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the to Bela; (3) tribal occupied by the Marri and Bugti tribes, semi-independent, but subject to the control of the Political Agent in Sibi.

1. British and Administered Territory.—British Residents appointed to the courts of the Kháns of Kalát from the middle of the nineteenth century, and British expeditions passed through the Bolán on their way to Kandahar and Afghanistan, but up to 1876 the country was considered independent. In 1875 Robert Sandeman, the founder of the Balúchistán Province, first entered the country; in 1877 the cantonment of Quetta, which is now the head-quarters of the Administration, was occupied by British troops, and in 1879 the administration of the district was taken over on behalf of the Khán of Kalát. After the Afghan war, 1878-81, the districts of Pishin, Shorard, Duki, Sibi, and Shahrig were assigned to the British and in November, 1867, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán. In 1883, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British. The annual quit-rent of 25,000 rupees was reduced to 30,000 respectively. In 1886, the valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887, the Khetran country, now known as the Khetran tahsil, was brought under British control; in 1889 British authority was extended to the Zhob valley and Kakar Khurdán, in 1896 Chagai and Western Sinjrání included administered territory, in 1899, the Nuskhi Nisbat was made over by the Khan of Kalat on an annual quit rent of 9,000 rupees, and in 1903 the Nasirabad tahsil was acquired from the Khan on an annual quit rent of 117,500 rupees. The area of British and administered territory is 46,960 sq miles, and the population (1911) 379,646. The head of the civil administration is the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General. Next authority is the Revenue Commissioner, who is also the Judicial Commissioner, and such is the power of a High Court, except in of Europeans for whom the Chief Court of the Punjab is a High Court. The under the direct administration of the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General, is divided into districts, each in charge of a Political Agent follows Quetta Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Bolan Pass, Chagai. The Political Agents are also the Collectors, District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, and are assisted by European Assistant Political Agents and either native European Extra Assistant Commissioners and a staff of subordinate and judicial officials. The Political Agent in charge of the Bolan Pass is also Political Agent for Kalát and Las Bela.

In the directly administered territory the chief items of are Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines, &c. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. This is usually sixth of the crop, but in the Sibi tahsil it is two ninths, and on the lands of the Shelo and Khushdil irrigation canals, constructed by the Government, the proportion is one third. In Nasirabad the assessment per acre of the cultivated area from Rs 1 to Rs 4 according to the crops raised and means of water supply. For purposes each district is divided into tahsils, each of which is in charge of a native official known as a Tahsildar, who has a Naib Tahsildar, Kamungos and Patwaris subordinate to him. The revenue from all sources averages approximately Rupees 18,74,000.

Regular troops are stationed at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob militia, Makran and Chagai Levy Corps. The latter are recruited from the local tribes, and have their own leading as officers.

The medical work of the Province is under the Chief Medical Officer, and there are Civil Surgeons at Quetta, Loralai, Fort Sandeman and Chaman, and Civil Assistant Surgeons at Sibi, Shalung, Mach, Kalat and Panjgiri.

2 The Native States of Kalat and Las Bela—The leading chief of Kalat is Sir Mir Mahmúd Khan, G C I E, Beglar Págh Khan of Kalát, who succeeded on the abdication of his father, the late Mir Khudádad Khan, November, 1877.

From March, 1863, to May, 1864, Mánnad (Throne) usurped by Khan's cousin, Sherdil.

The power of the Kháns of [] founded by the Mirwáris about the fifteenth century. Authentic history begins with [] Ahmad I, whose successors gradually made themselves supreme from Kalát to the Arabian Sea, and rose to the height of their power in the time of Mir Nasir Khán I., who [] the first to take the title of Khán. The districts of Quetta and Mastung [] granted to him by Ahmad Sháh, the Durrání King of Afghánistán. Nasir Khán's grandson, Mohráb Khán, [] killed in the storming of Kalát by a British force in 1839. His son, Nasir Khán II., was acknowledged by the British Government in 1840; and in 1854 a treaty was executed with him, under the [] of which [] received a yearly subsidy of 50,000 rupees. In 1857 Nasir Khán [] succeeded by his brother, Khudádád Khán, with whom a fresh treaty [] concluded in December, 1876, by which the subsidy was raised to 100,000 rupees a year. Owing to the state of anarchy which prevailed in the State, and which reacted on British interests in India, it became essential that a settlement should be effected, and Major (afterwards Sir Robert) Sandeman was deputed to Kalát for this purpose, in 1876, with most successful results. Mir Khudádád Khán died in May, 1909.

The Khán of Kalát is the head of a confederacy of chiefs, but the extent of his control has now been considerably reduced. In all important matters he is amenable to the advice of the Agent to the Governor-General in Balúchistán, who also arbitrates in disputes between the Khán and minor chiefs. The area of Kalát State, is 73,278 square miles, and the population 359,086 (1911 census.)

The Khán's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to 8,00,000 rupees annually. The Khán has an irregular force of 461 cavalry and artillery. The chief towns in the State [] Kalát, Mastung, Bhág, Gandáwá and Dádhar.

The ruling chief of Las Bela has the title of Jám. Jám Mir Khán, the grandfather of the present chief, succeeded in 1840; Jám Ali Khan, his father, succeeded in 1889; and Jám [] Kamál Khán, the present chief, succeeded in 1896. The [] of the State is 7,139 [] miles; population, 61,205 (1911 census); [] varies from 2 to 3 lakhs; military force, 380 infantry, [] cavalry, and [] guns; military police force, 100 men. Before the British occupation the ruler of Las Bela was a feudatory of the Khán of Kalát, but in recent times the connection has almost entirely ceased. The State is under the control of the Political Agent in Kalát.

3. The Tribal Areas.—These territories comprise 7,268 square miles, with a population of 34,766 (1911 census), chiefly Marri and Bugti, under the Sibi agency.

General.—The most [] in Balúchistán [] the Brahúi, Pathan and Baloch, 554,800. The Brahuis occupy the centre of the country stretching through Chigai to meet the Baloch of Western Sanjrání, and southwards to [] Lásis and the Baloch of Makrán. The Pathans are chiefly contained within British and administered territory. The [] are distributed through the southern regions in the Marri and Bugti country, the Kachhi plain, the Nasirábád tahsil, the Dombki, Umrání, and Kahári country, and Makrán. [] Lásis (27,779), [] almost wholly confined to Las Bela, the term Lási being of modern invention. The [] inhabitants [] either scattered, as [] Chuttás and Saiads, or are subject races and occupational groups such [] the [] cultivators of [] plain, the Dehwár [] of the uplands, the [] Naqibs of Makrán, and the Ghuláms who are of servile origin. There are also indigenous Hindus (1 []) living under the protection of the tribes and carrying [] country.

The religion of the native population is either Mussulman, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu. The Mussulmans number (1911) 782,648, Hindus, 37,602, Christians, 5,085, Sikhs, 8,390, others, 978. In 1904 a joint Inspector General of Education (now designated Director General of Public Instruction) was appointed for Baluchistan and the Frontier Province, and an Assistant was posted to Quetta. At the close of 1911-12 there were 1,000 Government aided schools in the province, 9 of these were for girls and 2 for Europeans. Of the 2,896 pupils 449 were girls. Nearly half the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade or Government service. Besides these there were 180 private schools with 1,224 pupils on the rolls.

The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains, its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rain fall is uncertain and scanty. Here and there the mountains are tree clad, and cultivation is carried on wherever water is found. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, milk, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes, while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgur in Makran is famous for its dates. Among wild animals are the markhor, urial (wild sheep), Sind ibex, deer, bear, and panther, and the chief domestic animals are the camel, horses, oxen and cows, and donkeys.

Little is yet known of the geology of the country. Iron and lead are found near Khurd, coal is worked at Khoist on the Sindhi Pishin railway, and in the Sor hills near Quetta. Asbestos and chromite have been found in Zhob, and chromite also in the Quetta Pishin district. There are oil springs at Khattan in the Marri country, but these are not now worked. Sulphate of iron has been found in Kalit and sulphate of aluminium in Chagai. Salt is manufactured in Pishin in the Zhob district, and in the Kalat State. Local manufactures are unimportant. A few matchlocks and other weapons are made, and various kinds of ironwork for agricultural purposes. The nomad tribes make kilts, rough blankets, and rugs. Brahui women are famous for their needle work. Leather work and pottery are manufactured in Kalat. There is a brewery as well as a government distillery for the manufacture of country spirit at Quetta, and mills for grinding flour, pressing chaff, and manufacturing patent coal fuel. A [REDACTED] at Quetta was opened in 1906. The Indian Staff College was opened at Quetta in 1907.

The land traffic with India passes either by railway or by the routes from Kalat and Las Bela to Sind, and through the Loralai district to the Panjab. The value of the trans-frontier imports (exclusive of treasure) from Kalat and Las Bela into India in 1911-12 was Rs. 11,80,291, and of the exports from India to Kalat and Las Bela, Rs. 10,01,070. The chief exports from the Province are mustard and rape, raw wool and food grains. Imports consist of piece goods, chiefly of Indian manufacture, ghee, fruits, hay and [REDACTED] and other articles carried mostly by rail.

Over sea trade is carried on through ports on the Makran coast with India, the exports consisting of dates, mutton and dried fish, and the imports chiefly of [REDACTED] goods and food grains. The greater part of this trade is with the Bombay Presidency.

The principal imports into Baluchistan from foreign countries, viz., Afghanistan, Persia, are fruit, ghee, wool, sheep, horses and ponies. Piece goods in large quantities, indigo, sugar and metals are sent to [REDACTED] countries through Baluchistan.

Good roads connect the more important centres in the directly administered places. There are 810 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 1,921 of unmetalled roads and paths. The road via Nushki to Persia opened during 1905.

The North-Western railway, which has the standard gauge of 4 ft 6 in., enters Baluchistan at Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain at Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and re-unites at Bostan, whence the line runs to Chaman. A line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, which cost about 7,000,000 rupees, was opened for traffic in 1905. A survey for a short line from Khanai to Hindubagh, a distance of about 10 miles, was carried out during 1909.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalat and through Nushki to Seistan in Persia.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalat, and westwards via Nushki to Killa Robat, where it connects with the Indo-European system, while a further line laid down in 1907 connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

SIKHIM.

An Indian feudatory State in the Himalayas, bounded to the N. by Tibet proper, on the E. by the Tibetan district of Chumbi, and by Bhutan, to the S. by the British district of Darjiling, and to the W. by Nepal. Extreme length from N. to S., 70 miles; extreme breadth, 10 miles; area, 2,000 square miles.

In March 1890 a treaty was signed by the Viceroy of India and the Chinese representative, by which the British protectorate over Sikkim was recognised by China. The British Government has direct and exclusive control over the internal administration and foreign relations of Sikkim. The Maharaja, after having declined to comply with the conditions, lived for some time under surveillance in British India, and in 1891 was allowed to return to Sikkim. The members of the council carry on the administration, with the assistance of the British Political Officer.

Population in 1911, 87,920. The people are known to their neighbours as Lepchas, but call themselves Bong-pa. Principal towns are Gangtok, the capital, Rhenok, Pakyong, Lachen, and Lachung. The religion is Lamaism.

Gross revenue in 1911, Rs. 14,500. The main sources of revenue are limited jurisdiction within their districts; important being referred to the council.

Sikkim produces rice, Indian corn, millet, oranges, apples, three kinds of cloth. Fruit gardens are maintained by the State. There are extensive forests in the State and wide tracts of unoccupied waste. A few copper mines worked. The principal trade route from Bengal Tibet passes through Sikkim. Imports into Bengal from, and exports from Bengal to Sikkim:—

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 590 miles from the mouth of the Hugli, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Andaman Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The Great Andaman group is about 117 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad, the total being 2,508 square miles. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the padak Andaman redwood (Pterocarpus dalbergioides). The islands hilly, the highest point, Saddle Peak, being 2,402 feet, and Mount Harriet, 1,196 feet in height. The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably, Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Stewart Sound, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The aborigines, 1,882 (1,036 males and 846 females) in 1901, live in small groups over the islands; they are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands in 1911 was 26,459 (19,570 males and 6,889 females). The climate tropical, the rainfall irregular and often excessive. In 1911 the sales, the result of convict labour, amounted to 4,16,778. Tea, coconut, hemp (Musa textilis), Bahamas aloe (Agave sisalana) are successfully cultivated. In 1911 there were 11,374 of cattle. Wireless telegraphy with Burma was established in 1904. A steamer Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and The islands are used by the Government of India as a penal for life long-term convicts. The 26,600 of cleared land and 156 square miles of reserved forest. There in 1912, 11,228 convicts (including women) in the place, of whom some 2,100 were ticket-of-leave the settlement supporting themselves. Of the women, about half are on ticket-of-leave, and married to convicts. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge the Superintendent of Port Blair. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair 1912 was 15,613.

The Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. There nineteen islands, seven uninhabited; gross area, 636 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nancowry, and Car Nicobar. There is a land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nancowry, known Nancowry Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants, numbering 6,310 (3,386 males and 2,924 females) in 1901, are a variety of the Malay race. This people are known to have eagerly pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years. English and Hindustani are understood most villages. The coconut production estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some million are sold by bather and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The climate is tropical and unhealthy for Europeans. A permanent agent, a native of India, maintained sole representative of Government in the Nicobar Islands. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Constitution Government.

The Straits Settlements, a Crown colony, which comprises Singapore (with which incorporated Labuan), Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca, transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 1, 1867. The Cocos Islands were placed under the Settlements in 1886, and Christmas Island in 1889. Christmas Island annexed to the Settlement of Singapore in 1900, and Cocos Islands in 1903.

By a proclamation dated October 20, 1906, the boundaries of the Colony extended so as to include Colony of Labuan, with effect from January 1, 1907. Labuan incorporated for administrative in the Settlement of Singapore.

The administration of the colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the general officer commanding the troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillor of Penang, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, and the Colonial Engineer. There is a Legislative Council presided over by the Governor, of ten official and eight unofficial members, six nominated by the Crown and two by the Chambers of Commerce of Singapore and Penang, but confirmed by the Crown.

Governor — Sir Arthur Henderson Young, K. C. M. G.

The governor is also High Commissioner for the Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, High Commissioner of Brunei, and British Agent for British North Borneo and Sarawak.

There are municipal bodies in each settlement, the members of which are partly elected by the ratepayers, and partly appointed by the Governor.

Area and Population.

Singapore is an island about twenty miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south point of the island. Penang is an island of 108 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian, total area 199 miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 100 from the latter, it is a strip of territory 10 miles in length, and from eight to 10 miles in breadth.

The population, inclusive of the military, according to the census of 1911, is as follows —

	Singapore ¹		Penang -		Malacca		Totals
	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females

² Inclusive of Province Wellesley.

In 1911 there were in the Settlements: 240,206 Malays, 369,843 Chinese, and 82,055 natives of India.

The births and deaths in 1911 were as follows:—

	Singapore	Penang	Dindings	Province Wellesley	Malacca	Labuan	Total
Births	6,550 16,494	3,371 5,823	195 369	3,720 3,979	1,942 7,162	189	18,069 38,07

In 1911, there were 269,854 Chinese immigrants, 216,321 in 1910; Indian immigrants, 108,471 in 1911, and 83,723 in 1910. The number returned to India in 1911 was 46,464 adults, and 1,639 minors.

The Coocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands, lie about 700 miles S.W. of Sumatra and 1,200 miles W. of Singapore. Population in 1911, 749, of whom 100 Europeans.

Christmas Island is 200 miles S.W. of Java and 700 miles E. of the Coocos Islands. It is 10 miles long and about 9 miles wide. In December, 1911, the resident population numbered about 1369, all the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff, being employed directly or indirectly by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits which the island contains.

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north-west coast of Borneo, and since January 1, 1907, it has been incorporated with Singapore. Area 28½ sq. miles; population in 1911, 6,546, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 30 Europeans. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants.

Instruction.

Instruction, not yet compulsory throughout the colony, is partly supported by the Government in the case of grant-in-aid schools, and wholly in the case of Government English and Government Vernacular Schools. In Malacca, Penang Island outside Municipal limits, and Province Wellesley there is compulsory attendance of boys within a certain radius of a school, where free instruction is given in their own language.

The numbers of schools and pupils are as follows in 1911:—

	Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government schools	2	2,619	2,457
Grant-in-aid English schools	28	9,730	8,999
Government boys' and girls schools	108	11,065	10,381
Grant-in-aid vernacular boys schools	2	62	—
Total	140	33,566	21,790

There is a training college for Malay teachers in Malacca.

Justice [REDACTED] Crime.

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds sittings at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Convictions before the Superior Courts in 1911 were 619, before the other courts 34,128. Police force 2,544 in 1911, of whom 120 were Europeans. Criminal prisoners admitted to the gaols in 1911, 4,353.

Defence, Production, and Industry.

The harbour and roadstead of Singapore are defended seawards by forts armed with heavy and medium guns.

The garrison of Singapore is composed of the following regular troops—2 companies of Royal Garrison Artillery, 1 company of Asiatic artillery, 1 company of Royal Engineers, 1 battalion of British infantry, 1 battalion of native infantry, and a few details of R.A.M.C. and A.S.C., etc. The Singapore Volunteer Corps consists of 1 company Coast Defence Artillery, 1 Maxim company, 1 company Engineers (all Europeans), 1 company Chinese infantry, 1 company Malay infantry, 1 bearer company.

In Penang there is a Volunteer corps consisting of 2 companies of infantry (one company composed of Europeans, the other one company of mixed races).

There are Cadet corps and rifle associations in Singapore, Malacca, and Penang.

Twenty per cent of the revenue of the Colony (exclusive of opium sales) is contributed to defence.

The Straits ports are free from duties, and their trade, centred at Singapore, is a transit trade. Import duties are levied only on wine (1 dollar and 1½ dollars per gallon), malt liquors (24 cents per gallon), spirits (2·40 dollars per gallon) and petroleum (5 cents per gallon). The chief exports comprise tin, sugar, pepper, nutmeg, mace, sago, tapioca, rice, buffalo hides and horns, rattans, gutta-percha, india-rubber, gambier, gum, copra, coffee, dyestuffs, tobacco, Para rubber, &c.

Imports and exports for five years (inclusive of treasure and inclusive of trade with the Federated Malay States). Since 1908 the trade of Labuan and Christmas Island is included —

Most of the imports are re-exported.

Imports are divided into three classes:—transit trade, transit trade, actual; passing trade being goods in vessels merely passing through Singapore for China, &c.; transit trade, goods changing bottom at Singapore, or landed and stored awaiting re-shipment. Two-thirds of imports are not included in export statistics, except in the case of rubber from the Malay Peninsula, which is treated as imports and included in export figures when sent out. Actual imports may be defined as goods brought for into Singapore and purchased there, either for consumption or for re-export to other places whether they are said to be exported. Transit trade is the sense only that what is imported is exported without undergoing any process of manufacture. Exchange fluctuations in the value of past statistical results, in times of low exchange the dollar value of goods having their origin in gold countries being enhanced; the dollar probably holding good, to a less extent, in the case of produce exported, but the dollar value having been fixed early in 1906 at 2s 4d., this is the rate adopted since.

The Board of Trade Returns give the trade with Great Britain for five years, the imports including produce from Borneo, Sarawak, and other eastern places, transhipped at Singapore, which is thus entered as the place of export:—

	1905	1906	1907	1908	1909
Imports (consignment) into U.K. from the Straits	7,942,703	4,071,951	11,544,717	12,909,049	14,039,913
Exports of British produce to the Straits	4,322,219	3,370,000	4,142,882	4,819,071	5,021,807
Exports of foreign and Colonial produce to the Straits	44,588	64,673	102,914	107,648	117,904

The principal imports into the United Kingdom in 1911 were tin, 7,566,680 lb. (in 1900, 8,364,718 lb.); rubber, 3,354,761 lb.; yago and yago meal and flour, 251,245 lb.; Cassava powder and tapioca, 185,577 lb.; gutta percha, 191,290 lb.; spices, 190,670 lb. The principal exports from the United Kingdom were:—cottons and cotton yarn, 1,571,757 lb.; iron and iron and steel manufactures, 556,452 lb.; machinery, 245,049 lb.

Shipping and Navigation.

The total number of merchant vessels entered the ports of the Colony during 1911, exclusive of native craft, was 9,849, with a tonnage of 12,047,991 tons. The number of native craft was 20,026, with a tonnage of 812,352 tons. The number of merchant vessels cleared at the ports of the colony and dependencies was 9,849, with a tonnage of 12,038,918 tons, and the total number of native craft was 20,072, with a tonnage of 825,321 tons.

Communications.

There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, communication between Woodlands and Johore being maintained by steam ferries. The Perak State Railway extends from Parit Buntar in Krian to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence steam ferries run to Penang. There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in the Negri Sembilan. All the railways have a gauge of 4 ft. 6 in. metre, and connect with the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1911. There are electric tramway systems in Singapore and Penang. There are cables connecting Singapore, Malacca and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Kuala Lumpur and Penang, and from Malacca to Tampin.

In 1911, 8,157,988 letters and 1,111,111 of all kinds were posted, 6,951,721 delivered.

In Labuan there is a railway 14 miles long, used chiefly for the transport of [] from the [] Victoria []. From Labuan there are telegraph lines connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore, Sandakan, and the Continent.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

There are eleven banks with establishments in [] Colony. The amount of deposits in the Government Savings Bank — December 31, 1911, was 756,538 dollars, equivalent to 88,2637.

The dollar, value 2s. 4d., is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half-dollar and the British sovereign [] legal tender for the payment of any amount. Subsidiary silver coins [] 20, 10, and [] pieces; copper coins are cents, half-cents, and quarter-cents. On December 31, 1911, Government currency notes to the value of 4,300,2527. ($46,859,310) [] in circulation in the Colony and Federated Malay States.

The [] of length in use in the Settlements is [] English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre. The native terms are, however, still in [] Commercial weights [] :—

1 Kati	= 16 Tahil	= 1½ lb. avoirdupois.
1 Pikul	= 100 Kati	= 133½ lbs. „
1 Koyan	= 40 Pikul	= 5,333½ „ „

The kati of 1½ lb. is known [] the Chinese kati. Another weight, known [] the Malay kati, and still in partial [] in Penang, is equal to the weight of 24 Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains. This gives 142·628 lbs. as the weight of the pikul, and 5,705·143 lbs. as the weight of the koyan. The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES.

[] Malay States of Perak, Sélángor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, which occupy a large portion of the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements [] officio H.M.'s High Commissioner for these States [] the other Malay [] in the British sphere.

In Perak, Sélángor, and Sungai Ujong, which [] was subsequently amalgamated with other States [] form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan. Residents [] appointed in 1874, with a [] of European [] whose duty [] to aid the native rulers by advice, [] to [] executive functions. The supreme authority in each [] [] vested [] the [] Council, consisting of the Sultan, [] Resident, the Secretary [] Resident (if there is one), and some of [] principal Malay [] and [] merchants. The Residents [] under the control of the [] Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1893 the relations of [] [] Settlements with [] small Native States on [] frontier of Malacca [] consolidated. These States were [] federated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The Federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Malacca, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and Tampin. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situated on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1898, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

The area of these States, in square miles, is approximately:—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles; Selangor, 3,156 sq. miles; Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq. miles; Pahang, 14,000 square miles; total, 27,506 sq. miles. Perak, by recent agreement with Siam, has been extended by about 1,000 square miles (included in the figures given above).

Population census 1911: Perak, 494,057 (344,238 males and 149,819 females); Selangor, 294,035 (220,939 males and 73,096 females); Negri Sembilan, 180,189 (87,651 males and 42,548 females); Pahang, 118,708 (72,234 males and 46,474 females); total 1,036,999, (725,062 males, and 311,937 females). The population contained 420,840 Malays, 488,244 Chinese, 172,465 natives of India, 3,284 Europeans and Americans, and 2,649 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese immigrants. The largest town in the States is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 47,000 inhabitants.

The military force of the States consists of a battalion of Sikhs and Pathans known as the Malay States Guides, to which is attached an artillery corps armed with field guns. The strength on Jan. 1, 1912 was 858, commanded by 11 European officers. The police force comprised 2,882 men, including 70 European officers and inspectors, besides 141 detectives. The police portion of the force included 1 assistant commissioner, 1 non-commissioned officer, and 1 constable, while the Indian establishment comprised 1 native officers, 182 non-commissioned officers and 1,241 constables.

In Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in 1911, there were 27 English schools maintained or assisted by Government, and 322 Malay Vernacular schools, with 17,007 scholars. The total number of schools was 369, with 22,566 enrolled pupils and an average attendance of 18,884.

The laws in force in each State of the Federation are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, no law is made in any State is affected, by the Federal Council. This Council consists of the High Commissioner, President, the Chief Secretary, the Sultans of Perak, Selangor, and Pahang, the Yam Tuan of Negri Sembilan, four British Residents and four unofficial members, and in addition to legislation deals with the annual estimates of revenue and expenditure. All legislative enactments are submitted to the High Commissioner and the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The courts in the States are:—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judicial Commissioner and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kathi. (5) The Court of Assistant Kathi. (6) The Court of Penghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judicial Commissioners, the chief Judicial Commissioner being President. There is an appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of murder, homicide, robbery, &c., reported in 1909, 943, with 11 discoveries; in 1910, 799, with 11 discoveries; in 1911, 898, with 250 discoveries. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1911, 1,259.

Efficient Government hospitals are established in all districts, with separate hospitals for Europeans. A very complete Institute of Medical Research has been established at Kuala Lumpur.

The revenue and expenditure of the States were as follows for 1910 and 1911:

	Revenue 1910	Expenditure 1910	Revenue 1911	Expenditure 1911
	£	£	£	£
Perak	1,660,143	1,407,066	2,226,500	1,725,227
Selangor	1,077,865	913,710	1,625,227	1,017,000
Negri Sembilan	241,100	227,630	293,116	206,346
Pahang	218,743	204,765	132,241	102,104
Total	3,097,851	2,753,171	4,177,093	2,940,677

Leading items of revenue in 1911 were—customs, 1,319,370*l.*; land revenue (excluding land sales), 206,653*l.*; railway receipts, 821,808*l.*; licences, 1,117,017*l.*; forests, 70,485*l.*; and of expenditure—railways, 880,893*l.*; public works, 684,724*l.*. The staple cultivations of the Federated Malay States may be said to be coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, colleo, pepper, gambier, and nipah palms. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The total area planted with rubber at the end of 1911 was 352,974 acres, and with coconuts, 142,774 acres. The forests produce excellent timber, besides gutta-percha, oils, resins, and cauca. In 1911 the total quantity of timber and firewood taken from the forests, on which royalty was paid, 412,568 tons; of firewood, free of royalty, for use of mining, 295,048 tons. The gross revenue of the Forest Department for 1911 amounted to 70,485*l.*. The duty on the export of tin forms the largest item of the revenue of the States on the West Coast. In 1911 tin export amounted to 45,363 tons, to the value of 8,192,872*l.* sterling. In 1911, 9,228 ounces of gold were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, bismuth, mercury, arsenic, manganese, plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal.

The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1911:—

	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total

There are in the 4 States in 1911, 1,998 miles of metalled cart roads and 1,540 miles of bridle roads and paths. Length of railways open in 1911, 558 miles 2 chains, including the line (21 miles) to Malacca. Branch lines connect the principal mining centres with the sea and river ports. The Johore State Railway (Gemas-Johore Bahru) 120 miles and 72 chains, which connects the Federated Malay States trunk line with the Singapore Government Railway, was opened on July 1, 1909, thereby making through communication from Penang to Singapore. The whole cost of railway construction has been met from revenue. All the lines have a gauge of 1 metre. There are 69 post offices and other places for postal business. In 1911, 12,715,876 postal packets (excluding parcels and registered letters) were received and delivered. In 1911 there were 1,711 miles of telegraph and telephone line (6,162 miles of wire) under the Post Office department. The post and telegraph receipts (including stamp sales) amounted to 82,218L, and expenditure to 83,968L. The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2s. 4d. or 60 dollars = 7l. Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

OTHER BRITISH PROTECTED MALAY STATES.

By the treaty between Great Britain and Siam signed at Bangkok on March 10, 1909, Siam transferred to Great Britain the rights of suzerainty and such rights of protection, administration and control, as she had possessed in the tract of territory lying to the north of the Federated Malay States and embracing the whole of Trengganu, all but the north-east corner of Kelantan, the greater part of Kedah, together with Palit, Perlis, parts of Bahian and Legeh, and adjacent islands. Great Britain agreed to an extension of the jurisdiction of the Siamese International Courts till the new Siamese codes were into force, when the system shall be. Great Britain undertook to facilitate railway construction so that Siamese Railways may be connected with lines in the Federated Malay States. A mixed Siamese and British Commission delimited the frontier. These territories comprise an area of about 15,600 square miles, and contain a population of about 720,000.

Kelantan, on the north-west of the Malay Peninsula, is an area estimated at 6,500 square miles, with a population of 260,750, including 15,000 Chinese and 10,000 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of 10,000. The Sultan has a hereditary Rajah. The village has its own head, who is responsible to a district man, who is in turn grouped into a district, which is in charge of a district. The prevailing religion is Mohammedanism, the 6 districts being divided into 260 Mukim or parishes. A Government elementary school is maintained in each district with an average daily attendance in 1911 of 117 pupils ; there is a Government-aided school and a Chinese school where English is taught. Five new schools were opened during 1911. The Court of the Rajah, and a central Court are at Bharu and other Courts in different parts of the State. There is a police force of 1,100 men (1911), commanded by a Malay Rajah assisted by a British officer. Offences discovered during 1911, 8,786, convictions 2,881. Admitted to prisons during year, 437. The revenue of the State in 1911 amounted to 487,000 dollars, and the expenditure to 574,850. Public debt, 148,860 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 127,000 acres are under cultivation. Products, rice, coconuts (and copra), betel nuts, rubber, and gharu, rattan, bamboo, pepper, tapioca, sugar cane, and maize. A large part of the land is covered with jungle comprising numerous kinds of valuable timber. The principal supports (estimated) 120,000 head, buffaloes (25,000), sheep, goats, and ponies. The mineral resources comprise gold, galena, pyrites, and tin. Extensive planting of mining concessions held by British companies. The principal manufacturing industries are weaving, building, brick making. In 1911, total exports, 1,505,795 dollars, total imports 2,482,871 dollars. Chief exports, 1911. Cattle, sheep and goats, 316 dollars, betel nuts 175,521 dollars, fish, 129,161 dollars, gold, 117,800 dollars, copra, 518,917 dollars, Para rubber, 106,000 dollars. Chief imports, 1911. Opium, 671,200 dollars; salt, 68,115 dollars, gambier, 50,195 dollars, kerosene, 51,169 dollars, cotton goods, 278,874 dollars, silk goods 147,216 dollars, silver specie, 419,517 dollars, Machinery 55,746 dollars.

Tonnage of steamships in arrivals and outwards, 1911, 183,697 tons.

Over 6,000 Malays are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. No direct communication with the capital, communication inland is by the river. Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang. There is a telephone system. There are (1911) 11 post offices in the state. 114,958 letters, postcards, parcels, etc., and 5,048 telegrams were despatched in 1911. The unit of currency is the Straits Settlements dollar.

British Adviser—J. H. Scott.

Trengganu, with an area of about 1,000 square miles has a population as recorded at the census, 1911, of 153,079. Capital, Kuala Trengganu, population, 14,000. There are no main roads, railways, or telegraphs. Communication with the interior is by rivers, good native paths. The prevailing religion is Mohammedanism. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan, and the country is of the same general character. Chief exports, 1911. Fish, 777,000 dollars, tin ore, 457,066 dollars, padi, 285,408 dollars, copra, 225,708 dollars, black pepper, 100,851 dollars. Chief imports, rice 250,104 dollars, cotton piece goods, 75,164 dollars, and opium 120 dollars.

British Agent—W. D. Scott.

Kedah is the western side of the Malay Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 8,500 square miles. The population (census 1911) is 245,986 of whom 195,411 were Malays, 33,740 Chinese, 1,000 Siamese, and 6,074 Indians. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River, about six miles from Penang by sea. The Sultan, Abdul Hamid Halim Shah, who succeeded in 1891, is assisted in administering the country by a Council of five members, whom the Adviser, appointed by the Government, is. There are 17 Europeans in the Government. The police force, distributed in 11 stations, has a strength of 452 men (principally Malays) including 29 Government Vernacular schools (2,481 pupils), 7 telegraph offices, and 11 post offices. An excellent telephone system extends throughout the State. A metalled road connects Alor Star with Perlis, a road, partly metalled only, connects with Senggora (Siam), and a metalled road is being made to connect Province Wellesley. Another metalled road is being made connecting Baling with Upper Perak in the direction of Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. Earth and metalled roads are being made in South Kedah. Arrangements have been made for the Malay railway system. Province Wellesley to Alor Star, with possibly a later extension to Perlis. Construction of the line, which was completed three years ago, already begun. Expenditure, 1,704,644 dollars. The revenue (1911) was 1,848,152 dollars, and expenditure, 1,704,644 dollars. The revenue is mainly derived from opium (42% of land rents (15%)), and customs (15%). The principal produce of Kedah is rice, over 800,000 bushels of rice and 3,000,000 bushels of padi are exported to Penang for consumption in the Malay Peninsula. There are large rubber, coconut and tapioca plantations in Kedah. From the mines in South Kedah over 10 tons of wolfram were obtained in 1911. About four or five steamers ply daily between Penang and the various ports of Kedah.

British Adviser—W. George Maxwell.

Perlis, on the western side of the Peninsula and north of Kedah has an area of about 200 square miles and a population (1911 census) of 32,000. Malays numbered 20,407 the population, Chinese 1,627, and Siamese 1,000. Police force, 56 Europeans and men. The principal agricultural produce is rice. There are valuable tin and ginseng deposits. Syed Alwi, is assisted by a State Council and an adviser appointed by the British Government. Revenue (1911), 181,292 dollars; expenditure, 185,254 dollars.

British Adviser—J. H. Scott.

WEIHAIWEI

Weihaiwei, in the Chinese province of Shantung, with the adjacent _____ was by a Convention with the Chinese Government, dated July 1, 1898, _____ Great Britain. The territory leased comprises, besides the port and bay, the island of Liu Kung, all the islands _____ the bay, and _____ of land 10 English miles wide along the entire coast-line of _____ the bay. The boundary has _____ demarcated and regulations settled for the management of frontier affairs. The area of about _____ square miles contains (1911 census) 147,177 inhabitants, including 8,000 _____ the island of Liu Kung. The native city of Weihaiwei is a walled _____ with about 2,000 inhabitants. Within the limits of _____ territory Great Britain has sole jurisdiction, except that within _____ walled city Chinese _____ may exercise such jurisdiction as is _____ inconsistent with the _____ of _____ territory. _____ addition, within a zone extending _____ from the meridian 121° 40' _____ of Greenwich, and comprising _____ area of 1,500 square miles, Great Britain has the right to erect fortifications, take any measures necessary for the defence of the territory, and to acquire any necessary for water supply, communications and hospitals. There Chinese administration is not to be interfered with, but only Chinese or British troops shall be allowed. Chinese vessels retain the right to use the waters, and within the territory such lands may be required by Great Britain for public purposes shall be bought at a fair price.

Under Order in Council of July 24, 1901, the territory is administered by a Commissioner. Legislation is by Ordinances. The seat of government is at Port Edward on the mainland. There is a High Court for both civil and criminal cases, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, and provision is made for courts of district magistrates. There are 3 European inspectors of police, 100 on the Island of Lau Kung and two on the mainland. There are 10 Chinese sergeants and 10 constables (1911). In the villages the headmen system is maintained. At the Government Free School there were in 1911 about 70 pupils, and about half a dozen Mission schools have 100 pupils. There is also a private school in which the children of Europeans are educated. There are many Chinese schools within the territory. About 6 per cent. of the inhabitants can read and write.

Revenue is derived from (1) land tax and a road tax; (2) junk registration, shipping dues, wine monopoly, (3) dues and miscellaneous. For 1911-12 the actual revenue was $74,673 (6,845 £), and the actual expenditure was $154,690 (14,088 £). The grant in aid for 1910-11 amounted to 6,000 £; for 1911-12 to 6,000 £; for 1912-13, 6,000 £.

The station has not been fortified, but is used as a flying naval base and as a depot, exercising ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron, which assembles at Weihaiwei during the summer. No troops are stationed in the territory, the Chinese regiment having been disbanded.

The leased territory, consisting of rocky hill ranges with fertile valleys, is most picturesque; it is well populated, and the inhabitants are in general well-to-do. Cereals, vegetables and fruits (apples, grapes and apricots) are grown, and oak fed silk is produced. Seedlings of fir trees, acacias, willows, and plane trees have done well. Those of the inhabitants who are not farmers are mostly fishermen. Some rope and line making, boat building, and stone-cutting are carried on. The territory contains gold, and a mining company worked for more than three years, but operations are not carried on. The trade is carried on by junks and steamers. In 1911, 615 steamers of 519,399 tons entered the port, exclusive of Admiralty colliers and government transports; 422 were British, and 193 small Japanese and Chinese coasting boats. The imports are kerosene, flour, cottons, sugar, timber, beverages, provisions, coal. The chief exports are ground nuts and ground nut seeds (in 1911, 181,132 cwts. exported) and salt fish. Weihaiwei is a duty-free port.

Roads have been made round the coasts and into the interior of the Territory. The value of land is rising, which is a sign of the increasing prosperity of the place. There is a regular weekly service to and from Shanghai. Many Europeans visit the place in the summer on account of the excellence of the climate, which is unsurpassed in the north.

AFRICA

ASCENSION ISLAND.

ASCENSION is a small island of volcanic origin, of 16 miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N.W. of St. Helena. It is entirely under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and is fortified. There is an excellent sanatorium up Green Mountain (2,920 ft.) for 100 of ships visiting the island, whose health is impaired from service on the coast. There are 10 acres under cultivation, producing vegetables and fruit for the garrison. The population is estimated (1 September, 1912) at about 186, consisting of officers, their wives and families, sailors and marines, kroomen, members of the staff of the Eastern Telegraph Co., and servants. Garrison station, Georgetown, on north-west.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which comes in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. In 1912, 116 were taken from 10 to 15 lbs. in weight; they were stored in ponds, and eventually killed and distributed among the people, a few being sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. The island is included in the Postal Union, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Company with St. Helena, St. Vincent, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires; with England and with the Cape of Good Hope by telegraph.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland (including the British East Africa Protectorate and the Uganda Protectorate), under the immediate control of the Colonial Office, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, still governed through their Arab Sultan by the Foreign Office. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the Statesman's Year Book for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

The East Africa Protectorate.

Government.—The British East Africa Protectorate extends from Umm al-Juba River, and as far as the borders of Uganda. It includes certain dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz.—a strip extending inland along the coast from the German frontier to Kipini, the Lamu Archipelago, and an area of 100 miles round the area of these territories having been leased to Great Britain for an annual including 8,000. On April 1, 1905, it was transferred from the authority of a walled Umm al-Juba Office to that of the Colonial Office. By Order in territory dated November 9, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the city Chinese Governor and Commander-in-Chief. An Order in Council of 1906, constituted an Executive Council and a Legislative Council, the from the consisting of 12 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of official and unofficial members. The foreign consular jurisdiction the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Court, and the whole Protectorate is now virtually a British Crown Colony. It consists of 7 provinces and a tract of territory partially organised lying to the north. The provinces are each under a provincial commissioner, and are divided into districts and sub-districts, as follows: Seyidie (capital Mombasa), comprising the districts of Vanga, Mombasa, Malindi and Mwatate, and the sub-districts of Rabai and Taveta; Ukamba (capital Nairobi), including the districts of Kitui, Kikuyu, and Machakos; Taland (capital Lamu), with districts of Lamu and Tana River; Jubaland (capital Kisumu), consisting of the districts of Kisumu and Goiba; Kenya (capital Fort Hall) with districts of Fort Hall, Nyeri, Embu, and Meru; Naivasha (capital Naivasha), including the districts of Naivasha, Eldama Ravine, Rumuruti, Baringo, Turkhina, Uasin Gishu, and Southern Masai Reserve; the Nyanza Province (capital Kisumu), including the districts of Kisumu, Lumbwa, Nandi, and North and South Kavirondo, and the Northern Frontier District with headquarters at Marsabit and posts at Kulal and Moyale.

Area and Population.—The Protectorate has an area of about 250,000 square miles, population estimated at 4,033,000, including 25,000 Africans and 2,000 Europeans and Eurasians. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate, further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Masai, the Somalis, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town, population about 30,000, of whom 130 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Uganda Railway. Kikindui harbour on the south western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. There is good warehouse accommodation and is well connected with the Uganda Railway. The two principal rivers in the North are the Tana and Juba which flow into the Indian Ocean. They are both navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital of the Protectorate and the headquarters of the Protectorate administration, has 14,000 inhabitants, of whom about 800 are European and 3,000 Indian. There are also European farmers and 50,000 natives in the immediate neighbourhood of Nairobi.

Religion, Instruction, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan, but on the coast Mohammedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian societies, British, French, German, Italian, Swedish, and American, two being Roman Catholic. There are Government schools at Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru, and Uasin Gishu. Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. The High Court is held at Nairobi, Naivasha, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native local ideas and customs are considered. The legal system of slavery has been abolished throughout Africa. In the Protectorate slavery is non-existent.

Defence.—The military force consists of 20 officers and 1,000 men forming the 3rd battalion of the King's African Rifles, also two companies of the 1st battalion. There are 1,800 police under European and non-commissioned officers.

Finance.—Revenue, 1911-12, 729,078*l.*; expenditure, 772,554*l.*, which included 27,929*l.* for Special Expenditure for Mombasa, grant-in-aid, 190,000*l.*, which is 75,000*l.* special grant to Mombasa. Of the revenue for 1911-12, customs inland accounted for 101 088/ , licences and internal revenue, 178 617/ , Government railways, 340,553/ , rents, 23,209/ , posts and telegraphs, 28,594/ , fees of court and other fees, 21,142/

Agriculture and Mining — The agricultural products of the lowlands are essentially tropical, and include rice, maize, native grains, cassava, coconuts, etc. The cultivation of sisal hemp and Ceara rubber is now being undertaken on an extended scale. Cotton growing is receiving attention on the banks of the Juba River. Other plants of economic value are being experimented with. In the highlands almost all crops of the temperate zone are grown, viz. oats, barley, wheat, potatoes, all European vegetables, beans, peas, linseed, etc. There is now a large acreage under wheat. Maize culture is rapidly extending, and a large export in this commodity is likely to be developed. Many coffee plantations are established. The growing of black wattle is becoming one of the principal industries of the country and suitable land commands a high price in the market. Ostrich farming has practically been established as an industry. Sheep farming is proving very profitable and many pure bred merinos have been imported. Dairying is also proving a profitable branch of farming.

The forest area of the Protectorate extends over 3 200 square miles, of which the tropical forest covers about 183 square miles, the remainder being upland or highland containing valuable timber trees. Near the coast are mangroves, and various rubber trees, besides ebony, copal, and other trees. The Taveta forest, on the German boundary, is supposed to contain useful timber. The Scotch forest which covers a large lowland area is capable of being turned to useful purposes. The Juba and Juba rivers are bordered by trees of tropical growth, and the Witu forest timber trees and furniture woods. But the valuable forests are within the highland area to the west and north of Nairobi. The Kenya forests of about 625 square miles contain cedar, yellow woods, camphor, jarrah, cork, iron wood, pillai wood, olive, and many other useful species. The Akikau forests (about 750 square miles) contain abundance of similar trees. The Mau forest (about 1,200 square miles) is incompletely surveyed, but is known to contain many excellent timber trees. The forest on Mount Elgon (about 10 square miles) is little known.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored, but do not appear to be very extensive. There are large deposits of natron in the Rift Valley, particularly Lake Magadi, on the border of German East Africa. Diatomite also occurs in large quantities in the same region. Gold has been discovered in S. Kavirondo, but not in sufficient quantities to warrant mining. Graphite and marble are found in the metamorphic rocks in localities, and limestone is worked in several places for building purposes. Manganese is found in the sandstone near the coast, opals have been found in the sands of the streams on the west side of the Rift Valley, but up to now have not been considered of commercial importance.

In five years land was disposed of as follows:—

1911-12	1,330,437	1,016,898	122,940	2,886,331

In 1911-12 the chief imports were: cotton goods, £715,151; grain, 100,903; provisions, 76,878; machinery, 50,392; sugar, 42,571; wearing apparel, 40,932; iron and steelwares, 26,517; agricultural implements, 24,418; spirits and liqueurs, 20,406; other articles, 552,707.

Of imports, 549,274 from the United Kingdom; 278,090 from British Possessions; 132,618 from the United States of America; 128,758 from Germany; and 85,035 from Holland. Of exports, 409,944 went to the United Kingdom; 104,966 to British Possessions; 148,304 to Germany; and 146,182 to France.

The vessels of the British India Steam Navigation Company under a four weekly mail contract, tranship passengers and mails to the P. and O. at Aden via Marseilles and the Suez Canal; the Clan Eilerman and Harrison joint service steamers have a four weekly service of cargo steamers from Liverpool; the Società Anonima Nazionale have a four weekly service between Genoa and Mombasa calling at the ports of Italian Somaliland. The vessels of the British India Steam Navigation Company and of the Messageries Maritimes, call monthly at Mombasa; of the German East Africa line every three weeks, and the Union Castle line have a four weekly service from Southampton via the Suez Canal. Vessels from Bombay call once a fortnight. Communication between the ports of the Protectorate is kept up by small steamers, owned by Messrs. Cowasjee Dinshaw Bros. at Aden.

The Mombasa-Victoria (Uganda) railway is a State railway of the Protectorate; length 364 miles, gauge 39-38 inches. The construction cost to March 31, 1912, £5,734,335. There is a telegraph along the line, and four steamers on the Lake in connection with the railway. In 1911-12, 115,767 tons of goods, exclusive of railway material, and 442,479 passengers were carried; revenue, 360,224; expenditure, 228,000.

The Post Office of the Protectorate (exclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Protectorate Post Office) received and despatched 2,710,593 letters, packets, &c., and 116,781 telegrams during the year 1911-12. The telegraph system has 2,284 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). The lines connect Mombasa with Lamu (200 miles), with Kisumu (584); and Kilindini (2 miles) (double line); Kisumu with Entebbe (226) (75 miles double line in German East Africa and rest in Uganda); Londiani with Eldama Ravine (22); Lumbwa with Kericho (18½); Nairobi with Fort Hall and Nyeri (81); Kibigori with Eldoret (48); and Ruero with Juja (11½); Mazaras and (2 miles). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

Uganda Protectorate.

The territories comprised within this Protectorate under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are as follows:—On the north, the 5th degree of north lat., the east, a line drawn down the middle of Lake Rudolf, and along the north boundary of the East Africa Protectorate and the N.E. shores of Lake Victoria, on the south, by the German frontier and by the 1st degree of south lat., and the west, by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Albert Edward, nearly all Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, half of Lake Rudolf, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Lado. Gondokoro, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total 117,681 square miles. For administrative purposes it is divided into 5 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province comprising the districts of Karamoja, Bunoga, Bukedi, Lober, Teso and Lango, (2) the Rudolf Province, comprising the districts of Turkwel, Lusaka and Dabosa (this province is present unadministered), (3) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Nimule, Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua and Gondokoro, (4) the Western Province, comprising the districts Foro and Ankole, and (5) the Kingdom of Buganda with islands. Owing to sleeping sickness the islands of Lake Victoria have been entirely depopulated and the inhabitants, numbering about 20,000, settled the mainland in five free districts. Most of the districts and the whole of the Kingdom of Buganda are less directly under British administration, but the native kings or chiefs whose rights in cases regulated by treaties are encouraged to conduct the government of their subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a "Kabaka," with the title of "His Highness." The present Kabaka, H.H. Daudi Chwa, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa, a minor, and under a regency of three native chiefs. He is assisted in the government by a Lukiko, or native assembly. In the Kingdom of Buganda, and in Ankole and Foro, purely native cases dealt with by the Lukiko, but in all other cases there is an appeal to higher courts, an abridgment of the Indian Penal Code being prepared. For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by his Majesty's. The principal British representative is the Governor, who makes Ordinances for the administration of justice, the raising of revenue, and other purposes. There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the courts for Zanzibar, Uganda, and the East Africa Protectorate. In 1911, there were 37 criminal cases tried, 37 of which were of serious nature. There is a battalion of the King's African Rifles, 850 rank and file, and 1,026 constabulary, under a British Commissioner of Police and a British Resident. There are also 101 efficient Europeans.

The population of Uganda (year ending 31. 12. 1911) is given as 2,343,825, distributed as follows: Natives, 2,840,469; Asiatics, 2,216; Europeans, (including 156 females). Of the Europeans, the majority (342 males and 124 females) are French, second order. Of the white population Government servants. Among 650,000 (rapidly diminishing in number) belong to the intelligent, civilised Uganda, converted to Christianity by French missionaries, Missionary Society having 1,124 church buildings, 46,000 baptized Christians, and about 200,000 adherents. Two Catholic missionary societies have 114,400 baptized Christians and 230,000 adherents, besides 114,400 places of worship with native teachers. There are 114,400 Protestant schools with about 57,000 children, and Catholics with about 26,000 (1911-12). The various Missionary Societies receive grants amounting to 1,250/ towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. About 1,700,000 natives speak Bantu languages, there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river, the rest of the natives belong to the Masai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups. The soil is very fertile, except in the Rudolf region. Commercial products are cotton, the output of which is rapidly increasing, sugar, chillies, ghee, ground nuts, coffee, ivory, hides and skins, and rubber. While arrowroot and cocoa are being experimentally cultivated. Iron is found abundantly in Bunyoro, and Buganda, copper in the Central province, gold in unworkable quantities in a few places. Alum, graphite, coalshale, mica are found. Concessions have been granted for prospecting and for collecting rubber in specified districts. In 1910-11, imports, 555,358/; exports, 340,326/; in 1911-12, imports, 624,537/; exports, 392,591/ (inclusive of specie). The imports are chiefly provisions, yarns and textiles (204,500/ in 1911-12), ironwork and hardware, and apparel. The exports are chiefly goat skins, hides, rubber, chillies, ivory, and about 230,850/ worth of cotton (5,247 tons). The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, Germany, Belgian Congo, and India. The revenue and expenditure for 2 years (ending March 31) were 1910-11 revenue, 181,094/; expenditure, 252,374/; 1911-12, revenue, 203,492/; expenditure, 283,689/. Grant in aid, 1910-11, 96,000/; 1911-12, 100,000/ (not included in the preceding figures).

The Fleet of the Marine Department consists of three steamers and a number of subsidiary craft. One steamer on Lake Victoria (the Unweke) of the traffic there being under the Uganda Railway Administration), another with a steam launch, lighters and dug-out canoes constitutes the Lake Kioga service, while the third runs between Butaba on Lake Albert and Nimule.

The British headquarters are at Entebbe (population, 9,569), the administrative capital of Uganda, the native capital of Uganda is Mengo Kampala (population, 32,441). Nile steamers from Khartum ply to Gondokoro, on the northern boundary of the Protectorate. The railway steamers visit Entebbe, Port Bell, and Jinja weekly, and make fortnightly voyages round the Lake. Vessels also ply on Lake Albert and the Nile to Nimule. A short railway, of the same gauge as the Uganda Railway, 32 miles in length, has been constructed from Jinja to Namagali, a point on the Nile below the rapids. It was formally opened for business on January 1, 1912. This railway is known as the Busoga Railway and was built to deal with the cotton output of the regions round Lake Kioga.

In June, 1912, the Alix received a loan of 500,000/ from the Imperial Government. Uganda's share amounts to 125,000/ and will be devoted to a railway connecting Kampala with Port Bell, its port on Lake Victoria (a distance of 7½ miles), and to the improvement of communication in the Eastern Province, with a view to bettering the conditions of cotton transport.

A mail service by relays of runners radiates from Entebbe, and is being extended. Money and postal orders and parcel post exchange systems are working in all districts. A Sudan-Egyptian telegraph line is established at Gondokoro. The telegraph line from Jinja to Wundanyi and Nimule, 115 miles from Gondokoro. The length of telegraph line in the Protectorate is 891 miles, with 14 telegraph offices and 7 telephone stations.

The currency is based on the Indian rupee, and consists of 100 rupees with nickel cent and half-cent pieces. There are also in circulation nickel 1 cent pieces, and silver 1 and 25 cent pieces. British 100 and 50 pence and Africa Government currency notes of 500, 100, 50, 20, 10, and 5 rupees circulate. New central bank notes were issued during 1907-08. The 1 and 2 1/2 silver, and quarter anna copper coins have been called in. The Savings Bank had 8,597 deposits and 100 depositors on March 31, 1912. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened a branch at Kampala.

Governor and Commander in Chief—Sir Frederick John Jackson, K C M G, C B.

Chief Secretary—H. R. Wallis, C M G.

Zanzibar Protectorate.

Sultan and Government.—The Sultan, or, more correctly, the Seyyid, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub (born 1879) succeeded on the abdication of his brother in law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 1, 1911. Six of his predecessors in the Sultanate were—Burghash, Khalifa bin Said Ali bin Said (1890), Hamed bin Thwain (1893), Hamoud bin Mohamed (1896), and Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed (1911).

Zanzibar dominions were gradually acquired by the Imams of Muskat at various dates between 1698 and 1807, partly by conquest from the Portuguese and partly from native chiefs. They were held as an appanage of Muskat until the death of Seyyid Said when, on a dispute as to the succession arising between his sons Seyyid Thwain, of Muskat, and Seyyid Majid, of Zanzibar, the dominions in Africa were made independent and confirmed under Majid by an arbitration of Lord Cairn (dated 1861) then Governor General of India. Besides the islands of Zanzibar, Pemba, and smaller islands, the Sultan's authority nominally extended along the coasts and indefinitely inland, from Waiheke, in 3° N. lat., to Tunghi Bay, in 10° 42' N. lat. The Sultan's dominions were however gradually restricted until (1890) they included only the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, the coast of the British East Africa Protectorate up to ten miles inland, of which his Highness is still the titular sovereign. The most important ports on the Somali (Benadi) coast, which were leased to Italy, have been purchased outright by that Government.

In October, 1891, a regular Government was formed for Zanzibar, with a British representative as First Minister. In 1908 Captain Barton was appointed First Minister. A 7½ per cent ad valorem duty is imposed on all imports.

Area, Population, Religion.—Area of Zanzibar 1,660 square miles, Pemba 1,000 square miles. Population of Zanzibar 1911, 115,477, Pemba 83,437. The Arabs, about 10,000, are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. There is a considerable foreign population, mostly engaged in trading. There are about 100 Europeans, comprising 121 Englishmen, 35 Germans, a few Americans, Frenchmen, Italians, Greeks, and Rumanians, about 10,000 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 35,000.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi'i school), the Sultan and relatives are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions. The Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Catholic Mission (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

There is a hospital at the Universities Mission.

Justice.—For the administration of justice in Zanzibar, the Court, His Britannic Majesty's, consisting of a Judge and one or more Assistant Judges, deals with all actions to which a British, or British protected, person or the subject of a foreign Power is a party, and others, the Sultan's Local Courts, deal with cases in which the subjects of the Sultan alone concerned.

Appeal lies to the High Court of Bombay, of the cases tried being affecting British Indians, whose hands is a large proportion of the trade of Zanzibar. The British Court has also certain Admiralty jurisdiction by virtue of the Zanzibar Order in Council 1906. Since 1902 the three British Judges sitting at Zanzibar have acted as the Appeal Court for all appeals from the High Courts of East Africa, Uganda and Nyasaland. The Judges of these Courts are also members of this Appeal Court, and act when required.

The Sultan's Courts, under the general superintendence of the Legal Member of Council, administer justice in the town of Zanzibar by two European Magistrates, assisted by Arab Kathis. In Pemba, and the country districts, criminal or civil cases are tried by a Magistrate or a Collector, or Assistant Collector. The final appeal, in all cases, lies to the British Judge sitting as Sultan's Judge.

—The regular army disbanded in October 1906 and a police force of 500 strong was established in its place, under the command of a British officer. A detachment of companies of the King's African Rifles at the same time drafted to Zanzibar from British East Africa.

Finance and Commerce.—The revenue is mainly derived from customs dues and taxes on produce, chiefly cloves, copra and ivory. The Sultan's privy purse is kept separate from the general revenue, and the remainder of the revenue is devoted to the administration and improvement of the country. All the public expenditure must receive the sanction of the British Agent and Consul General.

MAURITIUS.

Constitution and Government.

Mauritius, acquired by conquest in 1810, was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814. Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904 and 1912, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diego Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur General, the Receiver General, and of such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor, through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty-seven members, ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex-officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

Governor of Mauritius — Major John Robert Chancellor, C.M.G., D.S.O., R.E., salary, Rs 50,000 (one Rupee = 1s 4d).

⁴ Excluding Imperial Grant-in-aid

Direct imports from Great Britain, 1909-10, 78,901; 1910-11, 150,630; 1911-12, 194,783; direct exports thence, 76,172, in 1909-10, 140,651; 1910-11, and 179,011; in 1911-12. These figures exclude the transit trade.

The imports consist chiefly of textiles, hardware and provisions; the exports are coffee, cotton, tobacco, strophanthus, bees' wax, rubber, chillies, maize and ground-nuts.

Annual grant in aid 30,000. for 1909-10, for 1910-11, 31,500; and for 1911-12, 31,500. Local is derived from Customs, tolls, licences, &c., and from a hut-tax of 8s. (in cases 6s.) each hut, yielding in 1909-10, 41,580; in 1910-11, 46,534, and in 1911-12, 50,924. The hut-tax for 1912-13 has been raised to 4s. and 8s., and a revenue of 55,000 is anticipated.

There is military, volunteer reserve, and civil police forces. There is a Marine Transport Department on the Upper Shire River and on Lake Nyasa, consisting of three vessels. For ordinary traffic there are small steamers, besides small sailing vessels.

There is communication with the coast at Chinde by river steamers. Chinde is situated the only navigable mouth of the Zambezi, and the Portuguese Government has ceded a small piece of land, called the 'British Concession,' where goods in transit for British Central Africa are free of duty, and in addition a large purpose styled 'the Concession.'

There are post offices through which, in 1911-12, 1,454,854 postal packets passed. A postal savings bank was opened on July 1, 1911. Depositors end of 1911, 140; deposits, 2,576. A railway, of ft. 6 in. gauge, from Port Herald, near the Portuguese boundary on the western of the Shire, Blantyre has been constructed (113 miles) and negotiations are in progress its extension to Coast Nyasa. There is a telegraph through the Protectorate to Tanganyika and Ujiji connecting with Cape Town, with a branch to Fort Jameson. At Zomba there is a water power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre there is a branch of the Standard Bank of South Africa.

Public debt nil

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1911, 12,570/ belonging to 126 depositors. Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, cedars in St. Helena, potatoes formerly exported to the Cape, a prohibitive duty has been imposed on importation by the Cape Colony. Cattle do well, but there is no market for the flax.

(phormium) industry is established, and a Government mill commenced operations in December, 1907. Large areas of land are under flax. A lace-making industry has been started and is making very satisfactory progress. The total and British tonnage entered (the tonnage also cleared):—

The Post Office traffic from St. Helena in 1911, 43,375 letters and post-cards, besides books, papers and parcels. The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 40 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the three cruisers of which the Cape of Good Hope Squadron consists visit St. Helena every year.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half-way between the Cape and S. America, in 37° 5' S. lat. 12° 1' W. lon. Until the death of Napoleon I. they were occupied by a garrison. Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. The population consists mainly of the families of shipwrecked sailors and wives from St. Helena, and numbered 75 (36 males and 39 females) in February, 1903. There is no form of government among them. All can read and about half can write. On the island potatoes grow well, but grain crops are destroyed by rats. Apple and peach trees are productive. There are over 600 head of cattle, 700 sheep, a few pigs, and 100 donkeys. Fish are plentiful in the waters. An annual visit has long been paid by the island by one of His Majesty's ships, but this seems likely to be discontinued.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE

The Somali from Labadu, of Zeila, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E long, administered by a Commissioner. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory administered by the Government of India, but taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898, and transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905. The area about 68,000 square miles, population about 300,000 Mohammedan, and entirely Muslim, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation. By an arrangement with Italy the limits of the British Protectorate defined, but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country determined, and about 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo-Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded March 18, 1907. The chief town, Berbera had, at the 1911 census, 30,000 inhabitants in the trading season, Zeila, 7,000, and Bulhar, 7,300. At these three ports there are British officers. There are Government schools average attendance, 1911-12, 153. Police, 191 officers and on March 31, 1912. Convictions in 1911-12, 848. The revenue 1911-12 £32,572, the expenditure, 74,845, the deficiency being met by unexpended balance of p. y. The grant aid for 1911-12, nil. Imports (1911-12), Zeila, Berbera, Bulhar, Kismayo, and Hara, 266,511, exports (1911-12), 240,636. Bullion and specie are included. The imports are chiefly rice, piece goods, shintugs, and dates, the exports, skins and hides, ostrich feathers, gum, cattle and sheep. Tonnage entered and cleared 1911-12, 141,851 tons of which 111,717 tons were British. The rupee is of the value as in India. Transport is by camels, there are porters. In the length of telegraph line 200 miles, but since the withdrawal to the coast the Protectorate maintains only 40 miles length of telegraph line from Berbera to Bulhar, and has established one telegraph station at Berbera and one at Aden.

The protection of the coast towns of Berbera, Bulhar, and Zeila is entrusted to small garrisons of Indian troops, supplemented by native police force. In March, 1910, British posts were withdrawn from the interior, and administration confined to the coastal region.

NORTH AFRICA

BASUTOLAND

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province. The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been directly under the authority of the Crown since 1864. The territory is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority, which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into six districts, namely Maseru, Leribe, Moshale's Hoek, Breda, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qacha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

In 1891 the population consisted of 578 Europeans and 218,324 natives. The census of 1911 gave a total of 404,507 natives and 1,396 Europeans. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of (approximately) 1,200 natives and 300 Europeans.

The productions are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts. Stock, &c (1911) 433,000 cattle, 86,600 horses, 22,800 ploughs, 1,722 waggons.

There are 100 schools with about 17,410 pupils; expenditure in connection with education amounted during the nine months ended March 31, 1912, to £9,804. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There are also a large and well fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru.

The police force numbers 15 white officers and 287 natives, also 231 special native police for Border work. Total convictions (1911-12), 567. Prisoners in gaol, 31 March, 1912, 100.

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports of stock, grain, wool, &c. Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union, and separate statistics are not available.

The currency is exclusively British. The revenue is derived from the Post Office, native tax, the sale of licences, and customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1/ per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1/ per wife for his wives up to a maximum of 3/.

There is no public debt.

There are no navigable waterways, the rivers being low in winter and generally flooded in summer. Bridges have been built over the Caledon river at Maseru and Ficksburg, over the Hlotai river in Leribe district, over the Little Caledon river at Maseru, over the Makhaleng river at Mole's Hoek, over the Phutantsana River near Teyateyaneng, over the Khomokhoana River at Hlotse Heights, and over the Tlametla and Tsoaing rivers. The roads in the country are now in fair condition for any kind of transport. There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C.S.A.R., 15 miles, connects Maseru with the Bloemfontein-Modderpoort line at Marseilles Station.

Bechuanaland Protectorate.

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River to the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to German South-West Africa. Area is about 275,000 square miles; population, according to the census taken on the 7th May, 1911, 125,350, of whom 1,692 were Europeans. The important tribes are the Bamangwato (85,000), under the chief Khama, whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000) 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road; the Bakhatla (11,000) under Lenchwe; the Bakwena (13,000) under Sechele; the Bangwaketse (18,000) under Gaseitsiwe; the Batwana under Mathibi; and the Bamaliti (4,500) under Baitlotle, who is acting during the minority of Seboko, a boy about 10 years of age, the eldest son of the late chief Mokgosi. In 1885, the territory was declared to be within the British sphere; in 1890 it was included in the sphere of the South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company; in 1895 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1895, the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, and arrangements made for the administration of the Protectorate, special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. The king of the chiefs rules his people as formerly, under the protection of the British King, who is represented by a Commissioner, acting under the High Commissioner. The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, ample buildings. There are also commissioners at Gaborone in the Bechuanaland Protectorate, in the northern portion of the Protectorate.

There is a tax, of 1*l.*, on each hut, yielding about 30,000*l.* Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations.

Cattle-rearing and agriculture (production of mealies and Kafir corn) are the chief industries. Cattle numbered on the 7th of May, 1911, 323,900 head, sheep and goats, 558,000. During the year 1911-12 nearly 15,000 head of cattle were exported for slaughter, the majority going to the Johannesburg market. The police force consists of 63 Europeans and Basutos. Education is provided, with Government assistance, in the London Missionary Society and the Dutch Reformed Church schools. There are schools for Europeans subsidised by the Government at Francistown, Serowe and Uagapye. Government grant for education 1911-12, 1,169*l.* Revenue, 1911-12, 59,305*l.* (mainly hut tax, 34,365*l.*, and customs, 13,287*l.*); expenditure, 65,936*l.* (mainly police, 34,748*l.*); grant-in-aid, 1911-12, 10,000*l.* There is no public debt. The Protectorate is within the South African Customs Union, and when the Union of South Africa is completed, an agreement made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the Annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement figures relating to imports and exports are no longer available.

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate and is owned by the British South Africa Company. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 16 post offices; receipts, in 1911-12, 5,073*l.*; expenditure, 2,681*l.*

The currency is British money. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Resident Commissioner.—Lt.-Col. F. W. Panzern, C.M.G.

Government Secretary.—James C. Macgregor.

Under the title of Rhodesia is included the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Congo State and German East Africa, bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and German East Africa, and on the west by the Congo State, Portuguese East Africa, and Bechuanaland. The whole territory is under the administration of the British South Africa Company, which holds a Royal Charter dated October 29, 1899. The region south of the Zambezi is called Southern Rhodesia, that north of the Zambezi, formerly divided into two parts, called, respectively North-Western Rhodesia, and North-Eastern Rhodesia, is now one territory known as Northern Rhodesia.

The administrative system is that of the British South Africa Company in Southern Rhodesia, is prescribed by the Orders in Council of 1898, 1903, 1909, and 1911. To assist the Company's Administrator there is an Executive Council consisting of not less than three members appointed, for three years, by the Company with the approval of the Secretary of State.

The Legislative Council consists of the Administrator (president), five members of the Company approved by the Secretary of State, and five members elected by the registered voters.¹ The duration of each Legislative Council is three years, unless it be sooner dissolved. Ordinances passed by the Legislative Council when assented to by the High Commissioner take effect immediately, but within a year may be disallowed by the Secretary of State. There is a Resident Commissioner (who is also Commandant General) appointed by the Secretary of State; he has a seat on both the Executive and Legislative Councils, but without a vote. For the administration of justice there is a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. In the districts there are Magistrates' Courts. There is a secretary for Native Affairs, two chief Native Commissioners, with subordinate Native Commissioners and Assistant Native Commissioners, and, except with respect to arms, ammunition, and liquor, natives and Europeans are under the same conditions. Land has been set apart for tribal settlements, the mineral rights being reserved to the Company, but, if the native occupation is disturbed, new land must be assigned, disputes being ultimately referable to the High Commissioner. There is in Rhodesia about 100 million acres of unalienated land (excluding native reserves), about half being in Southern Rhodesia.

Southern Rhodesia has an area of 148,575 square miles, and is divided into two provinces, Matabeleland and Mashonaland. According to the census taken on May 7, 1911, the European population of the former was 11,039, and of the latter 12,543. The native population of Southern Rhodesia in the same date was 743,640 (Mashonaland 497,165, and Matabeleland 246,475). There were also 2,249 Asiatics and other coloured persons. Both tracts of country are rich in gold reefs and other minerals, and are well adapted for agriculture and European settlement. Unimproved land in Southern Rhodesia can at present be obtained from the British South Africa Company from about 4s. an acre, and, subject to the fulfilment of a simple occupation condition, it can be purchased outright or leased with option of purchase.

A Land Bank has been established which makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment, for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings.

The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital of Southern Rhodesia), Bulawayo, Victoria, Umtali, Gwelo, Enkeldoorn, Melsotto, Rusapi, Hartley, Selukwe, Tuli, Gwanda, and Gatooma.

Southern Rhodesia is widely mineralised, and gold-bearing deposits have been discovered in many districts. Numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals in the country, while the principal feature of the gold-mining industry of recent years has been the large number of properties worked on tribute or small scale. The number of separate properties actually producing gold during October, 1911, was 1,068,239 ounces, valued at 19,240,263s. The output of minerals in 1912 was: gold, value, 2,707,369s.; silver, 170,582 oz.; chrome ore, 69,260 tons; lead (1911), 1,111 tons, value, 7,821s.; coal (1911), 212,529 tons of asbestos (1911), 460 tons, value, 6,396*l*. Small amounts of wolframite, schistite, and antimony have also been produced.

The total value of imports into Southern Rhodesia in 1911 was 2,975,112*l*. The value of merchandise was 2,569,976*l*, of which 1,525, came by the Cape route and 1,422,837*l* by Beira. The gross duties collected in 1911 amounted to 316,139*l*. The value of the exports of South African produce during the year 1911 was 3,098,400*l*, the chief being gold, 2,544,077*l*, gold concentrates, 32,980*l*, chrome ore, 118,064*l*, tobacco, 34,749*l*.

The Rhodesian Railway system begins at Vryburg in the Bechuanaland Protectorate, and extends northwards to the Congo River border, through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles). At the Victoria Falls the river is crossed by a bridge 650 feet long and 30 feet wide; the structure, which is about 100 feet above the water, was commenced in October, 1904, from both sides of the river, linked up on April 1, 1905, and formally opened on September 12, 1905. Salisbury is connected by rail with Bulawayo (via Hartley and Gwelo), a distance of 100 miles. There is a railway from Salisbury to the Ayshire Mine, a distance of 100 miles, and a branch, 11½ miles long, from the 67th mile-post on this line to the Eldorado. The total mileage of the Rhodesia Railway Systems (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1912, was 2,406 miles.

On December 31, 1911, there were in Southern Rhodesia 100 post offices, 85 of which are money order offices. In Southern Rhodesia during the year ended December 31, 1911, 4,952,272 letters and post cards were despatched. The total number of newspapers, books, and parcels despatched was 1,903,296, and registered articles 84,618. The postal revenue for the year ended December 31, 1911, was 47,521*l*, and the expenditure 31,547*l*. Telegraphic revenue 56,197*l*, expenditure 42,722*l*.

On January 1, 1905, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1911, the deposits amounted to 110,751*l* to the credit of 4,214 depositors.

On December 31, 1911, the mileage of the Rhodesia telegraph system was 5,989 miles. There were 104 telegraph offices open in Southern Rhodesia during the year 1911, 404,963 telegrams were received and 328,488 were despatched. There is, besides, an extensive telephone system in operation.

Northern Rhodesia.—By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North Eastern and North Western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia. The amalgamation took effect from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council, are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South West Africa, Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State, German East Africa, Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

Northern Rhodesia has an area of about 290,000 square miles, and is for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains large areas of good arable and grazing land. In May, 1911, the European population numbered 1,434. The native population is approximately 1,000,000. The territory is divided into ten magisterial districts. The administrative headquarters are at Livingstone, on the Zambezi. The most important centres are Fort Jameson, Fife, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Broken Hill, Ndola, and Lealui, the residence of Lewanika, Paramount Chief of the Barotse. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

In most parts of the country cattle thrive. Pure bred animals have been introduced into the country by several of the farmers in the East Luangwa and Batoka districts.

Rubber, cotton and tobacco are grown. Altogether over 1,000 acres have been planted with cotton by white farmers. The indigenous rubber of Northern Rhodesia has been strictly protected since 1903, with the result that the number of young vines shows a great increase. It is estimated that five rubber forests alone cover upwards of 21,000 acres, and contain about 800,000 vines. There is plenty of timber of many kinds in Northern Rhodesia. Wheat and European fruits are grown and fibre plants provide material for a paper industry which promises satisfactory results. There are gold, copper, zinc, and lead mines in the territory, and coal has been discovered.

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

In Northern Rhodesia there are 35 post offices, 6 being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border.

The Northern Rhodesia Order in Council (May 4, 1911), provides for the appointment of an Imperial officer, styled the Resident Commissioner, who may be the officer holding the position in Southern Rhodesia, and of an Administrator appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. The capital of the Company was originally 1,000,000*l.*, in 1908 it amounted, by successive additions, to 9,000,000*l.* amount issued and paid up at September 30, 1911, 8,056,865*l.*, debentures (5 per cent), 1,250,000*l.*, (5½ per cent) 2nd mortgage debenture stock authorised March, 1908, amount issued September, 1911, 20,154*l.*

For the year ending March 31, 1911 the revenue from the three territories (including the head office receipts) was 1,168,874*l.*, and the expenditure, 993,264*l.*

Administrator of Southern Rhodesia—Sir W. H. Milton, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O.

Administrator of Northern Rhodesia—L. A. Wallace, C.M.G.

Resident Commissioner and Commandant-General—Colonel R. Burns Bagg (Salisbury).

Swaziland.

Swaziland, at the South-eastern [REDACTED] of the Transvaal, was, by the Convention of 1894, placed under the administration of (but not incorporated with) the South African Republic; the British Government has now the control of the territory. The paramount chief, Sobhuza, [REDACTED] of the late paramount chief Bunu, [REDACTED] a minor about fourteen years of [REDACTED] and the regency is [REDACTED] the hands of his grandmother, Nabotsiboni, widow of Mlandani. On June 25, 1903, [REDACTED] Order in Council [REDACTED] issued conferring [REDACTED] the Governor of the Transvaal authority [REDACTED] Swaziland, and by Order [REDACTED] Council of December 1, 1906, this authority was transferred [REDACTED] the High Commissioner for South Africa. The numerous mineral and land [REDACTED] and monopolies granted by Mbandini, many of which carried exemption from customs [REDACTED] [REDACTED] invested private individuals with powers properly exercisable by the Crown, rendered any satisfactory form of Government difficult. A Proclamation, therefore, provided [REDACTED] the constitution of a Commission to inquire into the question of these concessions. Under this Proclamation the High Commissioner has exercised the power to expropriate monopolies conferring exclusive rights, compensation [REDACTED] which has been made out of loans raised for the purpose. [REDACTED] [REDACTED] subject to a tax of [REDACTED] per cent, on profits; base metals to a royalty of [REDACTED] per cent. [REDACTED] output in addition to any rentals [REDACTED] payable.

The agricultural and grazing rights of natives have been safeguarded, and delimited, a general survey of the territory in connection with concession claims has also been carried out. A Special Court having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorised strength (1911-2), 1,111 Europeans and 171 natives. During the year ended March 31st, 1912, 1,788 persons summarily convicted, while 11 persons were convicted before the Superior Court.

Native chiefs are allowed to continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner. The present seat of the administration is at Mbabane, altitude 4,300 feet.

Area, 6,536 square miles; population (1911), 99,959, of whom 98,788 are natives (of Zulu type), 143 other coloured persons, and 1,088 whites. The Government maintains 6 European Schools at different centres, and 1 native school at Zombodze, the home of the Regent, in which the young paramount chief attends. Average European attendance, 1911-12, 120, at Zombodze. The Government also subsidises other native schools to the extent of 300*l* per annum. Total expenditure on education, 1911-12, 1,704*l*.

	1908-9	1909-10	1910-11	1911-12
Expenditure	91,127	4,217	62,255	12,191

Since 1904 a sum of 175,725*l* has been spent on the expropriation of monopolies and in connection with the Swaziland Concessions Commission, and the Partition of Concessions. 6,197*l* was spent during 1911-12 on eradication of cattle disease. The excess of expenditure over revenue accounted for by the costs of the Swaziland Concessions Commission, the Partition of Concessions, and of the expropriation of monopolies. The public debt of Swaziland amounts (1912) to 100,000*l*, which interest at 3½ per cent per annum is payable.

The agricultural products are tobacco, maize (the staple product), millet, pumpkins, ground nuts, beans, and sweet potatoes, grown only in sufficient quantities for local supply. Attempts are being made to introduce cotton growing. Stock in 1912 numbered approximately horses, 550, cattle, 59,000, native sheep and goats, 170,000, pigs, 2,000. The territory is reported to be rich in minerals, but it has not yet been systematically prospected. Alluvial tin is being mined and shipped. In 1911-12 the output of tin was 313 tons, valued at 34,397*l*. Several gold mines are worked in a small scale, and during the year 1911 the output was 14,781 oz of fine gold, valued at 62,783*l*. By arrangement with the Union of South Africa, Swaziland is treated for customs purposes as part of the Union and receives a pro rata share of the Customs dues collected. During the year 1911-12 Swaziland's share of the Union Customs dues amounted to 7,175*l*. Separate returns of Swaziland imports and exports are not shown.

There is bi-weekly communication by coach between Mbabane and Breyten, the Springs, Ermelo Extension. Elsewhere communication is by runners. There are telegraph offices at Mbabane, Pigg's Peak, Bremersdorp, and Ezulweni. Post Office Savings Bank deposits, 2,323*l* March 31, 1912, belonging to 118 depositors.

Commissioner.—R. T. Coryndon, C.M.G.
Government Secretary.—D. Honey.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Constitution and Government.

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, Ch. 9) passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom, on September 20, 1909. In terms of that Act the four governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony became united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative Union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal and the Orange Free State provinces, respectively. Under the Act constituting the Union, the Sovereign appoints a Governor General, who with an Executive Council (of which the members are chosen and summoned by him), administers the executive government of the Union. The Governor General and Council. Departments of Government have been established, the Governor General appointing not more than ten officers to administer them. Such officers are the Kings Ministers of State for the Union and members of the executive Council.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, the Senate, and the House of Assembly. The Governor General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone, but the Senate may not be dissolved within 10 years of the establishment of the Union. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members. For ten years after the establishment of the Union eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races) are nominated by the Governor General in Council and thirty-two are elected, eight for each Province. The first election was made prior to the establishment of the Union by the two Houses of each of the Colonial Legislatures sitting in one body, and a vacancy will be filled by the choice of the Provincial Council in respect of whose Province a vacancy occurs. The Constitution of the Senate after ten years may be provided for by Parliament, but if no such provision is made the arrangements made in the South Africa Act are to hold good. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union, an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of £100 or a mortgagee.

The House of Assembly consists of 121 members, 60 in Electoral Divisions, 61 as follows:—The Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 36; Orange Free State, 17, provision being made for increase of representation proportional to increase of European population. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union. Each electoral district in each province returns one member. A member of the House of Assembly must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union.

A session of Assembly is continuous for five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved. A member of each House must take the Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House may be elected to the other, but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as is also insolvency, or insanity.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not ~~pass~~ a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor General during the Session. Restrictions ~~are~~ placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made ~~for~~ adjusting disagreements between the Houses, and for the Royal Assent to bills to be given, reserved, and for laws assented to by the Governor-General being disallowed.

The first Parliamentary election under the South Africa Act ~~was~~ held ~~on~~ the 15th September, 1910, ~~since~~ when there have been several by elections. The position of the various parties towards the end of 1912, ~~was~~ —South African Party, 78, Unionist Party, 34, Labour Party 5, Independents, 4.

Pretoria ~~is~~ the ~~seat~~ of government of the Union, and Cape Town ~~is~~ the seat of Legislature.

The Right Honourable Viscount Gladstone of Lanark, P.C., G.C.M.G. (salary £10,000 per annum), was ~~the~~ in as the first Governor General of the Union ~~on~~ 31st May, 1910. The executive council is constituted ~~as~~ follows —

His Excellency the Governor General

Minister of Justice and Minister of Native Affairs — Honourable J. W. ~~Law~~

Minister of Education and of Mines — Honourable E. S. Ma'at

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and Minister of Public Works — Honourable Sir T. H. Hall

Minister without Portfolio — Hon. Sir D. P. de Villiers Ormrod, Bart.

In each province there ~~is~~ an Administrator appointed by the Governor General for five years, and ~~a~~ provincial council elected for three years, each council having ~~a~~ executive committee of four (either members ~~of~~ not of the council), the administrator to preside at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council ~~are~~ elected ~~on~~ the ~~same~~ system ~~as~~ members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is ~~as~~ follows — Cape of Good Hope, 51, Natal, 23, Transvaal, 36, Orange Free State, 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), agriculture, charity, municipal institutions, local works, roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other ~~matters~~ may be delegated to ~~the~~ Councils. All ordinances passed by ~~a~~ Provincial Council ~~are~~ subject to the veto of ~~the~~ Governor General-in-Council.

~~The~~ Provincial elections for the Cape of Good Hope and the Transvaal ~~were~~ held on ~~the~~ 15th September, ~~1910~~, those for Natal and the Orange Free State on ~~the~~ 18th October, 1910.

There ~~is~~ ~~a~~ provincial Revenue ~~in~~ in each province. The old colonial capitals are ~~the~~ capitals of ~~the~~ provinces.

Justice ~~is~~ administered by a Supreme Court of ~~the~~ Africa and ~~the~~ within the Union and ~~in~~ the provinces.

There is a Railway and Harbour Fund for the Union and into it is paid from the administration of railways, ports, and harbours, and such Fund will be appropriated by Parliament into a Consolidated Revenue Fund and paid all other money received for the purposes of the Union. On this fund the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge.

To the Union is transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies. A Harbour and Railway Board of not more than three commissioners appointed for five years, with a Minister of State as chairman, have the management of the railways, ports and harbours.

Compensation is to be given to colonial capitals which are injuriously affected by the Union. The English and Dutch languages are both official. The administration of native lands and affairs specially is differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor General in Council. It is provided that the British South Africa Company territories may be received into the Union, and the government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

Governor General — H. C. The Rt Hon Viscount Gladstone, P C, G C M G.

Chief Justice of South Africa — The Rt Hon Brian de Villiers, P C, K C M G.

High Commissioner in London — Sir Richard Solomon, G C M G, K C B, K C V O, K C, 32, Victoria Street, S W.

Secretary — T S. Nightingale.

Area and Population.

Statistics of the Provinces of the Union are given as follows. For other and more detailed statistics reference should be made to the sections dealing with the Provinces separately.

	Area square miles	Population Census, May, 1911
Cape of Good Hope	276,995	2,564,965
Natal	35,290	1,194,043
Transvaal	110,426	1,686,212
Orange Free State	50,389	528,174
Total	473,100	5,973,394

Of the total 5,973,394 persons (1911), 3,069,392 were males and 2,904,002 females.

The population for the Union (1904-1911) was 11.11 per cent. For the Provinces it is as follows — Cape, 6.11 per cent, Natal, 7.11 per cent, Transvaal, 32.78 per cent, Orange Free State, 36.37 per cent.

The population comprised (1911) 1,276,242 Europeans (whites) (591,078 females), 4,019,006 natives (1,996,057 females), and 678,146 other coloured (316,867 females). In 1904 the figures were: — Europeans, 1,116,806 (increase 1904-11 of 14.11 per cent), natives, 3,491,056 (increase 1904-11 of 15.11 per cent), and other coloured races 567,982 (increase 1904-11 of 19.11 per cent). The total non-European increase (1904-11) was 15.11 per cent. The proportion of Europeans in the total population in 1904 was 21.58 per cent; in 1911, 21.37 per cent.

INSTRUCTION, FINANCE

Some of the principal urban centres in the Union, with 10,000 inhabitants in 1911, had a white population as follows:—

Instruction.

In the South Africa Act, section (iii.), it is provided that "Education, other than higher education, for a period of five years and thereafter until Parliament otherwise provides," shall be and remain under the jurisdiction of the respective Provincial Councils. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post matriculation instruction shall be deemed constitute higher education.

The Department of Education, under the Minister, is therefore concerned with:—

(1) The University of the Cape of Good Hope, Capetown, established in 1878. It is empowered to grant degrees, but it has no attached teaching institutions. (2) The South African College, Capetown, founded in 1829. (3) Victoria College, Stellenbosch, incorporated in 1881. (4) Rhodes University College, Grahamstown, incorporated in 1904. (5) Huguenot College, Wollington, incorporated in 1907. (6) Grey University College, Bloemfontein, incorporated in 1910. (7) Transvaal University College, Pretoria, incorporated in 1910. (8) South African School of Mines and Technology, Johannesburg, incorporated in 1910. (9) Natal University College, Pietermaritzburg, incorporated in 1909.

The total number of students at the above Colleges in 1912 was 1,238, and the State expenditure on Higher Education during 1911-12 107,888*l*.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

Under 2 of the 1909 Act a Commission was appointed to enquire into the financial arrangements of the Union Government and the Provincial Councils. The Commission made certain recommendations which were embodied in a Bill and presented to Parliament, but the Bill was dropped. Consequently the only Provincial Revenue amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies performance Defence.

The defence forces at present consist partly of the garrison of regular troops maintained in the country and paid for out of the Imperial Exchequer, and partly of local forces

The garrison consists of 4 cavalry regiments (4,368 of all ranks), 11 horse artillery batteries, 6 field batteries, 2 of garrison artillery (1,572 of all ranks), 5 engineer companies (599 of all ranks), 6 battalions of infantry, 11 companies of mounted infantry, and a due proportion of departmental services, total establishment 11,485 of all ranks. These troops are distributed in various stations in the Transvaal, the Orange Free State, and Cape Colony. Headquarters is at Pictoria.

The local forces are at present in a transition state. Under the new defence act (which became law 14th June, 1912), service is made compulsory on all citizens but as this would provide an unnecessarily large force, only a proportion of young men will annually be enrolled, and it is hoped to get these to volunteer, men who do not undergo training will be liable to pay 1/2 a year for twenty four years; if sufficient volunteers do not forward the ballot will be resorted to. The period of training is for four years, between the ages of 17 and 25; there is to be a preliminary recruits training, followed by annual trainings of from 11 to 15 days. This forms the Active Citizen Army. It is to be from 20,000 to 25,000 strong. After completing the four years period, the men join the Citizen Reserve Force till they are 45.

In addition to the Active Citizen Army there will be a Coast Garrison Force which will be partially paid, the men being voluntarily enlisted. It will consist of the South African Garrison Artillery, organised from existing corps of the class, and the South African Defence Corps—an engineer and electric light corps. There will also be a Permanent Force formed by converting existing mounted police forces into 5 regiments called the South African Riflemen, which will include batteries of artillery as well as mounted rifles, the establishment of this force will be about 2,500. The Defence Force and the Permanent Force will both have their reserves, formed from the men who have passed through their ranks.

Finally there will be the National Reserve comprising all citizens between 17 and 60 who do not belong to any of the above. The cost of the scheme is expected to be £ 1,172,000.

Boys between and 17 will be compulsorily enrolled in when this is practicable, but admits that such enrolment and training cannot be enforced in rural districts. Trained cadets will enjoy certain advantages when they are enrolled in the Active Citizen Army.

Production and Industry.

Until recent years, South Africa was almost entirely dependent on overseas markets for the supply of foodstuffs and other necessities, but great progress is being made towards the supply of its own domestic wants.

Slight changes have taken place in imports of sugar, butter, cheese, milk, meat, and several other agricultural products. Nevertheless, in actual fact, local production in these articles has increased very much. Cream, extending in all provinces, farms are being fenced and improved by the making of dams and by the erection of farm buildings, etc. Moreover, live stock is increasing in numbers and improving in quality, and far greater care is now taken of stock than formerly. Perhaps the truest indication of progress lies in the greatly enhanced prices of agricultural land, which in some parts has doubled in value during the past year or two.

Wheat exported to the value of 419,531/ in 1911. The production of wheat and oats last season was probably the greatest ever known in South Africa, and the area of land under cultivation is rapidly extending, while the improved methods of farming are very noticeable. Drills and steam threshing machines are being more largely employed, and much more interest is being displayed in other labour saving appliances. As regards wool, the quantities and values exported were 121,071,351 lbs., valued at 3,830,903/ in 1910, and 132,222,285 lbs. valued at 3,900,142/ in 1911. Orchard farming is carried on on a large scale.

The chief source of the country's wealth lies in the Gold Mining and Diamond Mining Industries, the former of which, in 1911, was responsible for no less than 65 per cent of the total exports of the country, and the latter for 14.35 per cent, while the total export of all minerals accounted for over 84 per cent of the total exports of South Africa.

The total value of the mineral output of the Union in 1911 was 47,679,294/ , the items being gold 35,049,041/ , diamonds, 8,746,724/ , coal, 1,935,153/ , copper, 552,145/ , tin, 411,871/ , lime, 135,190/ , silver, 98,507/ ; salt, 61,160/ , asbestos 20,839/.

In the Transvaal 23,888,258 tons of gold ore were milled during 1911, an increase of nearly two and a half million tons on the previous year.

Shipping and Communications.

In 1911 4,371 vessels of 20,515,599 tons gross entered, and 4,370 vessels of 20,548,224 tons gross cleared.

Before the Union, which took effect in May, 1910, the railways of the several colonies comprising the Union were owned and operated by the separate Governments. Now, however, they are all merged into one system, the South African Railways, under the Union Government control. The total open mileage of this system (1912)—Government Lines, 7,545 miles (comprising Cape 3,397 miles, Orange Free State 1,076 miles, Transvaal 2,020 miles, and Natal, 1,052), of which 7,104 miles 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, and 441 miles 4 ft. 0 in. gauge; privately owned lines, 545 miles: total, 8,090 miles. Capital expended on Government Railways up to 31st December, 1911, 79,371,654*l*. Total revenue (1911) 12,104,769*l*., against 12,157,738*l*. in 1910. Working expenditure (including renewals) 7,217,070*l*., 59·8 per cent. of the gross revenue, as compared with 6,852,890*l*. 54·8 per cent. in 1910.

At the end of 1911 there were in the Union 2,587 post and telegraph offices. Correspondence received and dispatched (1911): letters and cards, 124,462,030; newspapers, books, and circulars, 65,006,942; parcels, 1,853,298; telegrams, 6,118,676. The number of money orders issued during the year was 484,424, and the value 2,844,675*l*., while 370,255 orders of the value of 2,105,593*l*. were paid. 2,919,002 postal orders amounting to 1,862,551*l*. were issued, and 2,194,950, valued at 1,345,772*l*. paid.

The revenue of the Post-office in 1911 was 951,035*l*., and the expenditure 924,840*l*. The revenue of the telegraph and telephone service (excluded from the previous figures), was 512,881*l*., and expenditure, 528,981*l*.

14,920 miles of telegraph line, carrying 55,934 miles of wire and 47,852 miles of telephone were open. 9,081 miles of telegraph wire maintained by the Post Office on behalf of the Railway Department. Telephonic communication is established between certain of the principal centres. Pretoria has been selected one of the Imperial wireless stations for purposes of defence. The cost of installation (80,000*l*.) will be defrayed by the Union Government.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank in the Union at the end of March, 1911, was 225,238, and the amount to their credit, 6,128,453*l*.

Province of the Cape of [REDACTED] Hope.

Constitution [REDACTED] Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope [REDACTED] originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession [REDACTED] that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814. The original Colony has been extended from time to time. East and West Pondoland were annexed [REDACTED] 1894 and Bechuanaland in 1895. For many years the form of government in the Colony depended on the terms of the Royal Letters Patent and Instructions to governors. Letters Patent issued [REDACTED] 1850 to Governor Sir Henry Smith declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly. A Constitution Ordinance was enacted by Order in Council of March 11, 1853, and took effect [REDACTED] May 1 ensuing. This Order [REDACTED] Council provided that nothing it contained should prevent the Parliament of the Colony from making Acts (subject to the power of Her Majesty in Council either to disallow or assent to such Acts) in amendment of the said Ordinance. This power of amending the Constitution was exercised from time to time [REDACTED] the bounds of the Colony were extended. In 1872 an Act was passed at the Cape and assented to by Order in Council, providing for the system of executive administration known as Responsible Government. The Constitution formed under these various Acts vested the executive [REDACTED] the Governor and [REDACTED] Executive Council, composed of certain office holders appointed by the Crown. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming [REDACTED] original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administration—The Hon Sir Frederik de Huvel, K.C.M.G. (Salary 2,600*l.*)

The Colony is divided into 119 magisterial districts, and the Colony proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into [REDACTED] fiscal divisions. In each division there [REDACTED] a Civil Commissioner, who is, in all cases where the fiscal and magisterial areas coincide, also the Resident Magistrate. Each division has a Council of [REDACTED] least [REDACTED] members (18 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the [REDACTED] occupiers of immovable property. These Councils look after roads, boundaries, and beacons; return [REDACTED] members to the Licensing Court, and perform other local duties. There [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor [REDACTED] Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom [REDACTED] elected annually by the rate-payers. There [REDACTED] also 85 Village Management Boards.

Production and Industry—In 1911, 1,712,250 acres of Crown lands were alienated, the amount realised being £2,015/. Up to December 31, 1911, the total area disposed of was about 140,000,000 acres, the quantity undisposed of being 30,904,004 acres.

Regarding the area under cultivation there are no recent statistics.

In the year ending February 15, 1910, the chief agricultural produce of the Province, excluding the native territories, was—wheat, 2,345,223 bushels (385,294 acres); barley, 660,336 bushels (63,165 acres); oats, 2,995,401 bushels (331,766 acres); maize, 1,428,987 bushels (221,631 acres); potatoes, 587,247 bushels (73,737 acres). There were in 1909, 21,652 of vines, and 3,494,656 gallons of wine and 675,072 gallons of brandy, &c., were produced. In 1911, there were 2,715,330 cattle, 333,962 horses, 17,134,512 sheep, and 505,730 pigs. Some irrigation works have been or are being executed, chiefly in the Breede and Fish river valleys, and surveys are in progress for more works. The alluvial lands are of great area, and the difficulties in the way of irrigation are considerable.

The sheep farms (mostly owned by the occupiers) are from 3,000 to 15,000 and upwards; those in tillage are comparatively small.

Mineral output for the year 1911—

Diamonds	2,250,000 carats	value 5,506,000/
Gold	73 oz	310/
Copper ore, &c.	18,767 tons	503,908/

Coal	79,485 "	51,550/

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Cape and Good Hope Provinces and the United Kingdom for five years.—

Imports from Cape	£ 6,091,557	7,698,042	7,785,642	7,814,280	6,660,044
Exports of U.K. produce and manufactures to Cape	5,996,891	6,188,013	8,044,198	8,462,886	9,821,901

The Government Savings Bank Returns are now compiled for the Union as a whole. In private Savings Banks in the Cape Province there were 9,881 depositors with 4391,373 deposits at the end of 1911.

Money, Weights, and Measures.—The coins and the standard weights and measures are British, but the following old Dutch measures are still used—Liquid Measure Leagner = about 1 imperial gallon; half anm = 15½ imperial gallons; anker = 7½ imperial gallons. Capacity: Mund = 3 bushels. The general surface measure is Morgen, equal to 2.1165402 acres; 1,000 Cape lineal feet = equal to 1,033 British imperial feet. Recently a Bill was introduced to provide for the standardization of the metric system for weights and measures, with the optional use of imperial standards, except in the case of chemists, who are compelled to use the metric system.

Province of Natal

Constitution and Government.—Natal, which had been annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, was placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, was erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The district of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, was in January, 1903, annexed to the colony. On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The system of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg

Administrator—The Hon. C. J. Smythe

Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,461 square miles, and Northern districts, 6,981 square miles) has an of 35,290 square miles, with a seaboard of about 100 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 10 Magisterial Divisions.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population in 1891, 1901 and at the censuses of April 17, 1904, and May 7, 1911, were —

Europeans	46,788	63,821	97,109	98,582
Indians and Asiatics	41,142	74,385	100,918	141,568
Natives	455,983	786,912	910,727	951,808
Grand totals	543,913	925,118	1,008,754	1,191,958 ^a

^a Including, in 1904, 6,880 mixed and others.

Including 3,774 British troops and their dependents, in 1904 and 1,192 in 1911, and 474 policemen on the railway in 1904 and 765 in 1911.

The figures for 1891 include Zululand; those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango. The number of miles in 1911 was 567,574, and of females, 624,384.

Population of the borough of Durban according to the census of May 7 1911, 72,512, consisting of Europeans, 33,271, natives (including half-castes), 18,662, Indians and Asiatics, 20,579, and of Pietermaritzburg, 30,599, consisting of 14,848 Europeans, 7,691 Indians and Asiatics, 8,000 natives, including half-castes.

As far as registered, the births in 1911 numbered 5,924, deaths 1,955, and marriages, 2,092. Immigrants (1911), 17,583 (including 293 from the United Kingdom), emigrants, 13,325 (including 5,576 to the United Kingdom). These figures exclude inter-provincial migration.

Instruction.—With the exception of Higher Education, which has been placed under the control of the Union Government, Education is under the Provincial Administration. There are 1 Government high schools, 57 Government primary schools, 1 Government art schools, 1 Government Indian schools, 2 Government schools for coloured children, besides 119 Government aided schools, and 111 Government aided farmhouse schools for European children. Also there are 1 Technical Institute, 81 Indian schools, 11 native schools, and 1 coloured schools, all of which are Government aid, and a considerable number of private schools in the province. Four of the aided schools are secondary schools for girls. The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 15,968 for 1911, the average daily attendance 85 per cent of the number on the registers. At the Government high schools there is an average daily attendance of 100 pupils. About 3,300 children attend private unaided schools, and it is estimated that only a small percentage of white children are receiving no education. The number of European children receiving gratuitous education in 1911 was 2,707. The direct Government expenditure on Government schools for 1911 was 92,576*l.* (excluding expenditure for furniture, buildings, but including maintenance). Fees paid by pupils in Government schools for 1911, 19,367*l.*

The 198 Government-aided schools for natives had a total enrolment of 15,286, and received in 1911 a grant in aid to the amount of 11,778*l.*; and the Government-aided schools for the children of Indians had a total enrolment of 8,089 in 1911, for which a grant of 3,866*l.* was expended.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only provincial statement present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. The following figures show the estimate of expenditure to be defrayed by the Natal Province during the year ending March 31, 1913, and a comparison with the approximate expenditure in the preceding year:—

TABLE	ESTIMATES 1912			ESTIMATES 1911-12
	Union Subsidy 1912-13	Grants and Savings from 1911-12	Estimated Total Expenditure 1912
General Administration	31,100	—	21,100	19,402

Total	12,010	10,755		27,090	27,010

Industry.—Up to the end of 1911, 8,311,000 acres of land had been alienated, 2,203,000 acres conditionally alienated, and 6,999,000 acres remained unalienated. These figures exclude 4,495,000 acres granted and the end of 1911 in Zululand and Northern Territories. On the Coast in Zululand there are vast plantations of tea, while in the interior the kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, acacia molaris, the bark of which is much used for tanning, and other crops are produced prolifically. The production of maize in 1909 was 5,022,460 bushels; tea, in 1910, 2,090,000 lbs. In 1909, 2,527,000 lbs. of tobacco were produced. The leading crops for export are sugar, tea, maize, and wattle bark.

Cotton cultivation has been recently introduced, but is, as yet, only at the experimental stage, though decidedly promising.

The live stock in 1911 numbered 75,567 horses, 456,087 cattle, 1,519,258 sheep, 110,832 pigs.

The Colony is rich in mineral wealth, and while the coal industry is advancing, several gold mines on a small scale have successfully worked. During the year 1911, the output of coal and gold is as follows:—Coal, 2,392,456 tons, valued at 725,448*l*; gold (fine), 1,706 ozs., valued at 7,246*l*. The average number of persons employed at coal mines in 1911 was 11,591.

Among the valuable minerals known to exist in the Colony are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin. Attention is being increasingly devoted to prospecting for gold, that metal being found very widely distributed both in quartz and 'banket' reefs.

A Whaling Industry has been established at Durban, and is carried on by six companies. In 1911 the number of whales killed and landed were humpbacks, 2 blue, 7 hval, 3 herring, 2 right, and 12 seiwale. To July, 1912 the captures numbered 188.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces, the Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

	1908	1909	1910	1911.	1912
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Natal	1,271,260	1,521,969	2,081,907	2,092,447	2,477,800
Exports of U.K. produce and manufactures to Natal	2,908,894	2,597,600	2,090,172	4,540,341	4,877,000

The most important imports and exports in 1911 were—Imports maize, 181,490*l*; raw hides, 250,051*l*; sheep's wool (29,509,781 lbs.), 1,047,029*l*. Exports cotton, 364,767*l*; machinery, 472,004*l*; iron and steel goods, 114,055*l*; apparel, 497,532*l*.

Province of Transvaal.

Constitution and Government.—The territory comprised within the limits of The Transvaal was colonised by Boers who left Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government. In 1880 the Boers took up arms for the restoration of their independence, and, in 1881, a Convention was signed restoring to the inhabitants of the territory their self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the Queen. This arrangement was modified by a Convention made in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State, but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to Her Majesty. These Conventions, however, did not preserve harmony within the Transvaal territory, or with the British Government. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties from which the two Boer States sought release by military action. The result of this was the military occupation of the two countries, and their annexation to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902, when an agreement as to terms of surrender was signed by the representatives of the belligerent forces in the field. [See Statesman's Year Book for 1906, under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, letters patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union.

Administrator—The Hon J. F. Riek (salary, 2,500*l*.)

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,426 square miles, divided into districts. The census of May 7, 1911, showed for the Transvaal a population amounting to 1,686,212, of whom 966,793 were males, and 719,419 females. The population comprised 420,831 Europeans—whites, 1,224,155 natives, and 31,625 other coloured.

The white population of Pretoria in 1911 was 29,618. The largest town is Johannesburg, the mining centre of Witwatersrand goldfields, with a population (1911) of 237,220, consisting of 119,953 whites and 117,267 coloured.

Births, 1911, 19,495; deaths, 16,836; marriages, 1,100.

Religion, Instruction, etc.—Statistics (1904) for the Transvaal and Swaziland combined (exclusive of the military forces):—

The system of education was embodied in the Education Act which passed during the first session of the Parliament elected under responsible government, and which provides that all education except that of a university type shall be under provincial authority. The Colony has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into twenty-seven school districts, each under a School Board chosen by the Parliamentary electors. All the schools within the school district, with the exception of schools for natives and certain secondary schools, are under the supervision of the Board. Each school may have a Committee elected by the parents and guardians of the children enrolled. Recommendations of Committees are under the sanction of the Boards and may be modified or rejected by them.

The following table gives statistics of education for Dec. 31, 1911 :—

	Schools	Total Enrolment	Average Enrolment	Average Attendance
High Schools	1	1,416	1,417	1,307
Secondary Departments of Primary Schools	—	960	1,006	917

Coloured Schools	11	1,639	1,697	1,400
Total	697	53,733	54,097	42,225

The Normal Colleges had 1,000 enrolled students. There are 10 native schools, which have 13,367 pupils. The number of pupils in secondary schools on December 31, 1911, was 2,396.

In respect of the question of language, the medium of instruction up to and including the fourth standard is the home language (English or Dutch) of the pupil, but parents may request that the second language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard provision is made for the instruction of pupils through the medium of English and Dutch, and the parent of each pupil may choose one of the two languages as the sole medium of instruction, or both of the languages as the media of instruction. If the parent of any pupil fails to exercise his right of choice, that pupil is instructed through the medium of the language which is the better known and understood by him, the other language being also used as far as possible as a medium of instruction. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—Since the coming into being of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only Provincial Revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. While the three other Provinces publish particulars of the estimate of this grant, Transvaal does not. The only available figures are the following :—

1913, £1,382,900

Production ■ Industry—The Transvaal Province is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are portions of it well adapted for agriculture. The production of wheat ■ 1910 ■ 774,800 bushels; barley, 23,800 bushels; oats, 55,000 bushels; maize, 10,065,000 bushels; potatoes, 773,000 bushels; tobacco, 5,346,000 lbs.

Live stock, 1911 Horses, 89,160; cattle, 1,339,298; sheep, 8,415,250; pigs, 302,882.

The value of the output of gold in 1912 was about 38,750,000/ , and the total value of gold production from 1884 to the end of 1912, about 864,000,000/. The number of natives employed at gold mines at the end of 1912 was about 191,000. At diamond mines the number of natives was 15,000, and at coal mines, 8,600.

In 1904 Chinese labour was introduced for mining purposes under ■ Ordinance with restrictive conditions. In December, 1905, the granting of permits for the importation of Chinese was stopped. The month of January, 1907, shows the highest number in the country, viz, 58,856. The last Chinese to be repatriated, left in March, 1910. The Transvaal has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain-mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are ■ special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

Imports from ■	7,137	305,845	455,180	302,183

Province Orange Free State

The Orange River first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, several Europeans settled in the southern parts of the Orange Free State. The Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. At first no settled government was established. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. A British Resident was appointed at Bloemfontein, with Assistant Commissioners at Winburg and Caledon River. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854 the Convention of Bloemfontein, by which British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised, was signed by Sir George Russell Clerk.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. Mosheesh was lengthily conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of Mosheesh was incorporated in the Orange Free State. This part is still known as the Conquered Territory.

A great deal of unpleasantness was caused by the dispute over the Kimberley Diamond Fields, which belonged to the Orange Free State, but were annexed to the Cape Colony by the British Government.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899-1902), and was annexed to the British Dominions by proclamation of Lord Roberts, on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator.—The Hon. A. E. W. Ramsbottom (salary, 2,000*l.*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, and all local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is estimated at 50,892 square miles; it is divided into districts. The population at the 1911 census was as follows—

	White			Coloured			Total
	Males	Females	Total	Males	Females	Total	Males	Females	In all
1911	40,571	37,145	77,716	57,791	61,996	119,787	108,362	99,161	207,523
	51,571	51,108	102,679	138,504	116,112	254,616	210,095	177,220	387,315
	94,517		176,189		168,820	345,005	278,782	249,892	528,674

The capital, Bloemfontein, had in 1911, 14,720 white inhabitants (9,005 males and 5,715 females), 12,169 coloured (6,204 males and 5,965 females); total, 26,889.

Births, 1911, 5,093 (among Europeans), deaths, 1,350 (among Europeans), marriages, 2,452

Religion.—The principal body, according to the census of 1904, is the Dutch Reformed Church with 101,079 adherents, of Wesleyans there are 5,121; English Episcopalians, 17,879, Lutherans, 706, Roman Catholics, 8,286, Jews, 113. The State Government used to contribute 10,050*l* for religious purposes. It was divided into parochial districts for ecclesiastical purposes, and it contained about 80 churches.

Education.—Higher education is under the control of the Minister of Education for the Union, while primary and secondary education is controlled by the Administrator of the Province. Under the School Act of 1908 the Province is divided into a number of School Districts. Each Government School is under the supervision of a School Committee elected by the parents. For each District there is also a School Board, appointed partly by the School Committees and partly by the Government, which exercises general supervision over all schools within its district. The School Committees have the right of nominating teachers, subject to the approval of the Department. Grants are given conditionally to private schools. At present there are Government or Government aided schools in the Province with a total enrolment of 21,800. Fees are charged at all schools, and attendance is generally compulsory. Both English and Dutch are taught to all children. A Government Boarding and Day School for Girls, in Bloemfontein, has about 200 pupils. There are also the Convent School, St Michael's Home, and the "Orange" Merges School, all Boarding Schools for Girls, the last named receiving a grant from Government.

A Normal School was established after the war. From 30 to 40 teachers are trained annually. Since January, 1910, there is also a chair in Education at the Grey University College. In connection with the Normal School technical classes have been instituted, and teachers of cookery, dress making, etc. are maintained throughout the Colony. There is a Home Industries Board, which controls the Spinning and Weaving Industry. A Government Industrial School was opened at Bloemfontein in the beginning of 1907. The boys (about 50) are apprenticed to various trades in the railway workshops in the town, and reside in the institution. At the Preparatory Technical School, also in Bloemfontein, instruction is given in basket making and other similar industries, in addition to the ordinary school course. All the leading Town Schools of the Colony have advanced departments which prepare pupils up to the standard of matriculation. The gross expenditure on education for the financial year 1911-12 was approximately 200,000*l*.

Justice.—The Roman Dutch law prevails. The superior courts of the provinces are the Provincial Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa and the circuit courts. The inferior courts are the courts of the Resident Magistrates and the courts of the special Justices of the Peace. The circuit courts, at which the judges of the Supreme Court preside in turn, are held twice a year in the chief town of certain districts. Criminal cases of the Supreme Court are held at Bloemfontein four times a year. In these courts criminal cases are tried before a jury. The Resident Magistrate's court has both civil and criminal jurisdiction. There are also special justices of the peace who try minor offences and settle minor disputes.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four Provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only Provincial revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. The following figures show the estimates of expenditure to be defrayed by the Orange Free State Province during the year ending March 31, 1913 and a comparison with the approximate expenditure in the preceding year.

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracks for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock-farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts. The Department of Agriculture encourages practical and scientific farming of all kinds and is divided into branches dealing with experimental farm work, forestry, horticulture, dairying, sheep and wool, stock diseases, &c. Experimental farms, forest stations, horticultural plots, &c., have been established, and lectures are given in the various districts by specialists of the Department with a view to enabling the farmers to benefit by the latest improvements in agricultural methods. The Land Board, created in 1901, has been engaged in facilitating the settlement of British farmers. This Board was replaced on October 1, 1907, by the new Land Board provided for in Letters Patent, who have since administered the affairs of Land until the 1st of January 1913. On October 1, 1901, up to 1905, when the Board made no further purchases, 1,109,081 [REDACTED] had been purchased at a cost of 846,184/ In addition to this 519,632 acres [REDACTED] inherited from the late Orange Free [REDACTED] Government, valued at 320,000/, [REDACTED] that Government had at its disposal 1 023,718 acres, valued at 1,166,184/ The whole of this [REDACTED] distributed among 647 settlers, or an average of a little under 2,270 acres each The Board created in 1907 ceased to exist, in terms of the Constitution providing for the establishment of Responsible Government in the late Orange River Colony, on September 30, 1912, on which date there were 550 settlers' heads of families, under its control and well established upon the land, exclusive of 97 men who had completed purchases, thus becoming freehold owners During the existence of the two Boards, over 1,200 settlers were placed upon the land the majority of whom are still farming in the Province In order to meet the wishes of the settlers who were sufficiently established to dispense with further assistance the Union Government brought forward a new Act which, after receiving the approval of Parliament during the last Session came into force on July 1, 1912 Under this Act (No 15 of 1912) facilities are given settlers in the Orange Free State to obtain Crown Grants of land [REDACTED] perpetual quit rent tenure and practically every settler applied to the Board to come under this Act, thereby making it unnecessary for the Government to [REDACTED] for the continuation of any Administrative Body in respect of these settlers, after the demise of the Board [REDACTED] September 30 1912, in accordance with the provisions of the Letters Patent The capital sum of 1,250,000/ received from Inter Colonial funds has been expended on the experiment, and the Board handed over to the Union Government, in addition to some 70 000/ in cash, assets in land and other securities amounting in value to a sum equal to, if not greater than, the capital sum above mentioned, which will be recoverable during the next 20 years or so, with meanwhile [REDACTED] assured income, in interest at 4 per cent, of 50,000/ per [REDACTED]

In 1910 11 there were 223,328 acres under wheat The live stock within the Province [REDACTED] 1911 was as follows—Horses, 220,725, cattle, 1,286,284, sheep, 8,587,638, pigs 162,656

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Northern Nigeria Protectorate, Southern Nigeria, comprising the S Nigeria Protectorate and the Colony of Southern Nigeria (Lagos), the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories, Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate, and the Gambia Colony and Protectorate

Northern Nigeria.¹

Area, Population, &c.—Area 255,700 square miles, divided into 13 Provinces, viz., Sokoto, Kano, Bornu, Yola, Muri, Nassarawa, Kabbia, Baasa, Illorin, Niger, Bauchi, Zaria, Kontagora, population estimated (1911) 9,269,000 (4,084,000 males and 5,235,000 females) [For Protectorate boundaries see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, p 262] In each Province there is a Resident with several assistants In where the old Emirs would not acknowledge the régime, Emirs of the s dynasty, and recognised by the people, have been appointed In 1900 a proclamation issued which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declares all children born after January 1, 1900, free; forbids removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer, and extends all inhabitants of the Protectorate penalties for dealing in slaves. Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers, Religion and Education—Mohammedanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but ■ ■ ■ parts of the territory paganism ■ predominant. Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations. An Education Department has been established. The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed in the Protectorate. Secular subjects only are compulsory, the acceptance of religious teaching is optional, but at present as the schools are situated at Kano ■ great Mohammedan centre, all the pupils are Mohammedan and instruction ■ the Koran given by Mallams (Moslem scholars) is generally adopted.

Defence.—The military force consists of ■ companies of mounted infantry, ■ battalions of infantry, and 1 battery of artillery with 101 European officers, 61 European non-commissioned officers, and 2,969 native ranks. The police force consists of ■ European officers and about 700 native police.

In 1911 there was established in each native State a Treasury locally known as "Bait al Mal" which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. The establishment of a Bait al-Mal consolidates the rank and authority of the Emirs and Chiefs in each province. It strengthens the position of the native judiciary and diminishes extortion and corruption.

Production — Industry — The products of the low country are palm oil and kernels, of the inland regions, rubber, ground nuts, shea butter, ivory, hides, live stock, ostrich feathers, capeskins, kola nuts and various drugs. Cotton growing is carried on and several ginneries are at work. Tobacco is also grown. Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. A geological survey under the direction of the Imperial Institute has been completed and the final reports have been published. The natives have worked iron, lead and tin for centuries. Rich alluvial deposits of tin ore have been discovered in the Bauchi, Kano, Zaria, Nassarawa and Kabba Provinces. Lodes have also been found and mining operations have commenced. At present the ore is being won almost entirely by panning or calishing, but the ground is suitable for sluicing operations, and some of the companies have imported and are erecting extensive sluicing plants. The ore is exported in the form of washed and dressed concentrates which average 70 per cent of metallic tin. It is anticipated that the tin mining industry will ultimately develop into one of the greatest sources of wealth of the Protectorate. The tin bearing area as it is now known extends over 9,000 square miles of territory, its general direction is point of length being from north to south west. The output of tin in 1911 was 1,471 tons.

Rich reefs of galena carrying a considerable silver return are known to exist in the province of Mun, these reefs which are to some extent worked by the natives for Poral, are now being closely prospected and assayed. Pockets of native silver have from time to time been discovered in the vicinity of Orifu and Wukari.

The whole of the mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, the Niger Company will receive half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals between the main stream of the Niger the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce — Communication — Considerable trade is carried on in Northern Nigeria, and several trading stations have been recently opened. There is, besides, a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga the west, Tripoli, Morocco, and the Sahara the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east, make of Kano an emporium. It is anticipated that the railway reaching Kano this trade will be diverted and from the south. The imports are chiefly cottons, hardware, building material, machinery, and tinned provisions, which are bartered for the produce of the country. (For statistics of trade, see 234-5.) Spirits are prohibited throughout the Protectorate.

The construction of a railway of 111 miles from Baro (at the head of permanently navigable portion of the Niger) to Rida, Zungeru, Zaria, and Kano, was completed in March, 1911. This railway has a 3ft 6in. gauge. The Lagos railway was opened to Kano in August, 1909, and was joined up with the Minna-Zungeru link in June, 1913. A weekly boat train with sleeping accommodation and a restaurant-car runs between Lagos and Zaria. A Government land transport system by pack and draft animals is in operation. The Government has for transport — the Niger and its tributaries 1 twin screw steamer, 6 stern-wheelers, 5 steam canoes, 1 motor canoe, 1 steam pinnace, 1 steam tug, 17 steel poling canoes, 3 steam stern-wheel tugs, and a number of 11 90 — barges. Telegraph lines — laid from the Lagos frontier to Jebba, thence to Lokoja, Zungeru, Kano, Yola, Sokoto and Maidugeri. The N. Nigeria telegraph system is now connected with the French Dabonney system. The total mileage telegraph line — 4,200.

British coinage is beginning to displace the native system. There are branches of the Bank of British West Africa at Lokoja, Jebba, Zungeru and Zaria.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir Frederick D. Lugard, G.C.M.G., D.S.O., C.B.

Chief Secretary.—C. L. Temple, C.M.G.

Commandant.—Colonel E. P. Stuckland, D.S.O.

Southern Nigeria.

By Royal Letters Patent dated the 28th of February, 1906, the Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria is made to comprise the old Colony and Protectorate of Lagos, together with the old Protectorate of Southern Nigeria.

The Colony and Protectorate is divided into three Provinces, namely: the Western Province, consisting of the old Colony and Protectorate of Lagos, the Central Province and the Eastern Province. The two latter comprise the old Protectorate of Southern Nigeria. Each Province is presided over by a Provincial Commissioner, and divided into Districts under the charge of District Commissioners and Assistant District Commissioners.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir Frederick D. Lugard, G.C.M.G., D.S.O., C.B.

Colonial Secretary.—A. G. Boyle, C.M.G.

Provincial Commissioners.—P. S. James, C.M.G., H. Bedwell, Major H. C. Moorhouse, D.S.O.

The seat of Government is at Lagos, where is also the Supreme Court. There are Executive and Legislative Councils, the latter consisting of 15 members—8 official and 7 unofficial.

The total area is about 79,880 square miles, and the native population (census 1911), 7,855,749, consisting of the Yoruba and Ibo people and a congeries of tribes of varying degrees of size and civilisation. European population — about 1,650, consisting of Government officials, traders, — and others. The climate is not healthy for Europeans. The strength of the police force at the end of 1911 was 1,888, namely: Western Province, 617; Central Province, 332; and Eastern Province, 437. Persons apprehended 1911, 13,893; summarily convicted, 10,974; committed for trial, 652.

Government has instituted a system of primary and secondary schools, with a staff (1911) of 189 teachers, including 19 technical instructors. There is a residential school — Bonny, supported by Government grants, and by Chiefs' subscriptions. There is a Government secondary school — mission grammar school at Lagos, and a — high school — Calabar. — 1911 there — 60 Government schools, — being girls' schools, and a large number of mission schools, 115 of which received assistance from the Government. There — 5,637 pupils (238 girls) in the — schools, average attendance of 3,538 (145 girls), in the assisted schools 14,216 pupils (3,478 girls), average attendance of 10,414 (1,700 girls) ■ number of children attending non-assisted schools ■ estimated at ■ less than 13,000 Government grant (1911), 8,048*l*. Total expenditure, 27,159*l*.

Four British Protestant Societies and two French Roman Catholic Societies ■ established, each with several stations.

Revenue, 1911, 1,956,176*l* (mainly from Customs dues, 1,489 986*l*, railways and tramways, 307 912*l*, and Court fees &c 93 940*l*). Expenditure, 1,717,259*l* (the chief items being railways, 175 229*l*, marine, 120,141*l*, debt charge 228 042*l*, West African Frontier Force ■ 803*l*, works and buildings, ■ 412*l*). Total debt, March 31, 1912, 6,471,288*l* (for further statistics of finance, and also statistics of trade and shipping, see pages 243-6).

The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados, Sapele, Brass, Degema, Bonny, Ojubo, and Calabar. Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are ■■■■ well made roads driven through the country. At Lagos, Calabar, and Forcados, there are engineering and repairing workshops and slipways for the repair of hulls.

At Lagos ■ mole ■ being constructed and a deep channel is being made over the Bar to admit ocean steamers entering the harbour.

The chief products are palm oil and kernels, rubber, cotton, cocoa, coffee, gum, copal, ivory, hides, maize, yams, cassava, plantains, earth nuts and fruits. There are nurseries for rubber seedlings, and botanical stations at Calabar, Onitsha, Oloke Meji near Lagos, and Agege. Mahogany is exported in large quantities. Arab caravan traders ■ being attracted from the northern territories, who deal largely in leather and skins.

There ■ deposits in Southern Nigeria of manganese ore, argentiferous lead ore (galena), tin ore (cassiterite), lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium). Laterite ■ abundantly used for making roads. The only manufactures are the weaving of native cloths and mats, boat and canoe building, and brickmaking. The cotton industry is rapidly growing both ■ extent and value.

There is ■ railway from Lagos to Jebba (306½ miles), in Northern Nigeria, and is extended to Zungeru and Kano. Routes for other railways have been surveyed. There is ■ steam tramway from Lagos to Iddo, the southern terminus.

There ■■ at the end of 1911, 1 ■■ miles of telegraph lines, and 4,169 miles of wire, connecting important towns and Northern Nigeria. There were 374 miles (wire mileage) of telephone.

In 1911, 3,732,325 letters, postcards, newspapers and book packets, and 114,973 parcels passed through the post office. The savings bank, ■ December 31st, 1911, had 4,368 depositors with 33,437*l* to their credit.

A nickel coinage (penny and tenth of a penny) has been introduced.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd, has branches at Lagos, Calabar, Burutu, and Onitsha.

Western Province—This province includes that part of Southern Nigeria known ■ ■ "Colony." Its ■■ is approximately 28,600 square miles, while that of the Colony alone ■ 4,006 square miles. The population (1911) ■ 2,152,848. The coastline is about ■■ miles. Northwards the territory extends over Yorubaland to ■■ confines of Northern Nigeria. The population of Lagos Town including ■■ Metta, the headquarters of the railway, is 73,000, and includes roughly 500 Europeans. The largest ■■ is Ibadan, population 175,000, where there ■ a British Resident. District Commissioners are stationed at Abeokuta, Badagry, Epe, Ikorodu, Ilesha, Ijebu Ode, Meko, Ondo, Oshogbo, and Oyo.

Eastern and Central Provinces—The approximate area of these two provinces together is 51,280 square miles and population (1911) 5,705,841 (Eastern Province, 1,297,247; Central 2,408,594). The prominent tribes are the Binis, the Ibos, the Iekris, the Sobos, the Igaris, the Ijaws, and the Efiks. The Aros are a large trading tribe of the Ibo family and are to be found all over the Eastern Province. Cannibalism and human sacrifices exist to some extent, but these practices are rapidly being stamped out. Agriculture is extensively carried on.

The headquarters of the Central Province are at Warri. The other most important towns in the Central Province are Aho, Aghor, Asaba, Awka, Benin, Forcados, Idah, Ifon, Ubiaja, Kwale, Otuohia, Okwaga, Sapele, and Udi. Calabar is the headquarters of the Eastern Province. The other most important towns are Aba, Abak, Abakiliki, Afikpo, Abioda, Aio, Chuku, Forcados, Bonny, Brass, Degema, Eket, Ikou, Ikof, Ekpene, Oboin, Obuhri, Oludu, Ogoja, Okigwi, Opiho, Owerri, and Uyo.

There is a weekly mail service between Liverpool, Forcados, and Calabar and Lagos.

Gold Coast

The Gold Coast stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and German Togoland. The Colony is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council, both nominated, with four unofficial members in addition. The area of the Colony, Ashanti, and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles, population, census 1911, 1,502,899, Europeans 1,700. Chief towns: Accra, 19,585; Sekondi, 7,725; Cape Coast Castle, 11,364; Quitta, Saltpond, Winneba, Axim, and Akuse. There are 9 Government primary schools, and 168 assisted schools which are under the control of the various religious bodies, the Israel, Wesleyan, Roman Catholic, Brethren Missions, Church of England (S.P.C.K.), and African Methodist Episcopal Societies. Average attendance of primary and secondary schools 13,619 (1911), enrolled 18,680. Government grant 1911, 7,502/ Revenue, 1911, 1,111,632/ (customs 668,071/; railways 294,670/). Expenditure, 914,500/; (railways, 127,909/; public works 130,709/; public debt charges, 80,677/). Gold Coast Regiment, 65,096/; medical, 51,469/; education 19,587/). Public debt, December 31, 1911, 2,489,118/ (for further statistics and for statistics of trade and shipping, see pages 233-6). In 1911 the Bank of the Gold Coast had 3,137 depositors with 34,781/ to their credit. The strength of the police (1911), 10 European officers and 770 of other ranks. This includes 1 European officer and 105 other ranks in Ashanti. The constabulary (Northern Territories) consists of 11 officers and 319 of other ranks. Staple products and exports, palm oil, palm kernels, cocoa, and indiarubber, the export of valuable native woods is increasing. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior. The botanical station at Aburi aids in the plantation of coconut trees, rubber, cocon, coffee, cotton, pepper, nutmeg, pimento, and croton.

Gold is found in quartz, in banket, and in alluvium. The output of gold in recent years: 1907, 273,898 oz (1,163,510/), 1908, 257 (1,194,743/), 1909, 230,494 oz (979,074/), 1910, 204,617 oz (790,282/), 1911, 253,976 oz (1,079,024/), 1912, 1,350,000/. There is a Government railway, from Sekondi on the coast to Coomassie, a total length of 168 miles, capital expenditure to end of 1911, 2,044,840/. A line between Accra and Marguase (40 miles) is under construction. Road is proceeding rapidly; about 200 miles kept up for vehicular traffic and 1,988 miles maintained as tracks and bridle paths. There in the Colony 1,492 miles of telegraph line and offices, and telephone exchanges. Accra, Cape Coast, Seccondree, Tarknah and Dodowa; telegrams in 1911, 273,422. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1911 5,506,636.

placed under British protection August 27, 1896, and a British Resident appointed to Coomassie. Under orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast do not apply to the annexed territory. The population (census 1911) 287,814. Coomassie, the chief town, has 8,850 inhabitants. In Ashanti 8 religious missions at work, with a total (1911) of 3 schools, and 1,296 pupils, and a Government school with pupils. Police force, 100, convictions (1911), 1,961, but there little serious crime. Rev. (1911), 50,819/ (from post office, liquor licenses, rents, fees, &c.) Expenditure, 146,317/. Agriculture is extending, cocoa plantations are being formed. Gold output (1911), 124,878 (580,8587.). In the western parts of the Gold Coast Colony and especially of Ashanti rich forests with excellent timber trees (mahogany, cedar, &c.), trees yielding fruits, rich in oil, rubber bearing plants, and species yielding gum copal. The country is well watered, and with proper restraints on wasteful native farming and on over exploitation, would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game plentiful; the products there are chiefly maize, koko, yams, bananas, ground nuts, and cocon, the plantations of which are rapidly extending. In 1901 the Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N. lat., bounded the west and north by the French possessions and on the by the German possessions, were placed under British protection. They are administered, under the Governor, by a Chief Commissioner with his headquarters at Tamale. By the taken in 1911 the population of the region to the north of Kintampo (variously estimated at from 88,000 to 50,000 square miles) is put at 357,569. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques, there are Catholic and other missions, and one Government school at Tamale. The revenue (1911) amounted to 2,4267.; expenditure, 65,0857. Good permanent roads are being made. A silver currency has been introduced with good results, but for small purchases cowries still need. The Northern Territories capable of producing various agricultural crops (cereals, indigo, tobacco), and said to contain wide auriferous.

There is one bank (with 2 branches), the Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. The legal currency of the Gold Coast is British sterling; silver coins are legal tender to any amount, and bronze up to one shilling. French, Spanish, and American gold coins legal at fixed values.

CANADA

Constitution and Government

The territories which constitute the Dominion of Canada were under British power at various times, some by settlement and others by conquest or purchase. Nova Scotia was occupied in 1627 the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, conferring rights in the territories to the east and west of the Bay, was granted in 1670. Canada was conquered in 1763 and, along with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763. Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was occupied in 1861. As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of the Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in March, 1867, known as 'The British North America Act, 1867.'

which was brought into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom', that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried out by the Governor-General and Privy Council, and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons'. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion, Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869, the extensive region known as the North West Territories was added to the Dominion by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company, the province of Manitoba was set apart out of a portion of it, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871, the provinces of British Columbia, and by Imperial Order in Council of May 16, in the same year, Prince Edward Island, were admitted into the confederation. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabasca, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and were admitted to the Union as provinces on September 1, 1905.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor-General under the Great Seal of Canada. There are now 87 senators, namely, 24 from the province of Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Manitoba, 3 from British Columbia, 4 each from Prince Edward Island, Alberta, and Saskatchewan. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised subject, and must reside in, and be possessed of property, real or personal, of the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved, at the rate at present of one representative for every 25,367 persons, the province of Quebec always having 65 members, and the other provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The House of Commons consists of 221 members—86 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 18 for Nova Scotia, 18 for New Brunswick, 10 for Manitoba, 7 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 10 for Saskatchewan, 7 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. For the next parliament the unit of representation will be, on the basis of the population of Quebec at the census of 1911, 30,811.

The members of the House of Commons are elected by constituencies, the electors of which are supplied by franchises under the control of the several provincial assemblies. The qualifications for voting at provincial elections vary in the several provinces. Voting is by ballot.

Last Election, September, 1911. State of parties.—Conservatives, 124, Liberals, 87.

The Speaker of the House of Commons has a salary of 4,000 dollars per annum, and each member an allowance of 2,500 dollars for the session with a deduction of 15 dollars a day for absences. The Leader of the Opposition has 7,000 dollars in addition to his ordinary sessional allowance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same allowances as in the House of Commons with extra allowances.

Governor-General—Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, P.C., K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.B., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O., (Simpson). Present appointment January 1911. Salary, 10,000 per annum.

Instruction.

Each province has one or more universities (20 in all, with about 500 professors and teachers, and 10,000 students), and several colleges. There are in all about 20 degree-granting bodies in the Dominion, with about 40 colleges; estimated attendance, 25,000.

The Provincial Governments have control of education; the systems are all based on the principle of free education, the funds being supplied in nearly all the provinces by Government grants and local taxation. Education is more or less compulsory, but the law is not very strictly enforced. In Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are separate schools for Roman Catholics; in the other provinces the schools are unsectarian.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, the powers are provided by the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890' There is a Superior Court in each province, county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces. The judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor-General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

In 1910, 15,305 persons were charged with indictable offences, of these 11,700 were convicted, 91,203 summarily convicted.

Finance.

Financial accounts are under three headings—first, 'Consolidated Fund,' comprising the general sources of revenue and branches of expenditure, secondly, 'Loans'—revenue, and 'Redemption' with 'Premiums and Discounts' in expenditure, and thirdly, 'Open accounts.' The headings 'Loans' and 'Redemption' include the deposits and withdrawals from the Post Office and Government Savings Banks, the amount on deposit forming part of the floating or unfunded debt of the country. Under the head of 'Open Accounts' are included investments, trust funds, Province accounts, and expenditure on capital account on public works.

The following relates to the Consolidated Fund (the fiscal year 1905-6 ended June 30, the succeeding years ended March 31. The fiscal year 1906-7 contained only 9 months) —

DEFENCE

The Militia Act of 1904 placed the Canadian land forces under a Militia Council, with the Minister of Militia and Defence as president; it further includes a civil member, four military members, and a finance member. There is also an Inspector-General whose duty it is to inspect the forces, and to report to the Minister of Militia and Defence in Council on their readiness for service.

The Canadian land forces are divided into the 'Active Militia' and the 'Reserve Militia.' The country is divided into 11 divisional commands and 3 military districts.

The active militia is raised by voluntarily three-year enlistments; but it can also be compulsorily recruited, should the necessity arise, by ballot. It consists of a 'permanent force,' and of a non permanent force composed of various corps which are classified either as 'city' or 'rural.'

The permanent force consists of a small number of permanently embodied units, viz., 4 squadrons, 11 batteries, 1 regiment of garrison artillery, 11 companies of engineers, and 1 battalion of infantry. It provides personnel for the various schools of military instruction, and it furnishes the garrisons of fortresses with that permanent element which is necessary for defence, for the maintenance of works, and for the preservation of armaments.

The non permanent part of the active militia comprises 27 regiments of mounted troops, 26 field batteries, 6 regiments of garrison artillery (including 13 heavy batteries), 2 corps of guides, 11 field companies of engineers, and 106 regiments (battalions) of infantry. The period for annual training for city and rural corps varies, according to arms and branches of the service, from 12 to 18 days. Rural corps perform the whole of their training in camp; city corps can be trained partly in camp and partly at their own headquarters; and a proportion of the officers are trained at the Royal Military College at Kingston.

In 1912, the establishment of the active militia was as follows —

Arms and branches of service	Permanent Force		Remainder of the Active Militia
	ALLIANCE	ARMED	ALLIANCE	ARMED
Cavalry and Mounted Rifles	264	11	12,010	9,775
Field Artillery	264	267	4,123	2,742
Garrison Artillery	791	62	2,896	700
Engineers	303	2	2,109	1,191
Infantry	1,044	11	4,481	490
Non combatant Corps	690	96	7,011	2,786
Total	2,496	111	32,214	17,794

In addition to the active militia, numerous cadet corps and rifle teams are in existence.

The reserve militia remains unorganised. It comprises all male inhabitants who are British subjects, between 18 and 60 years of age, and not exempt or disqualified by law. It is divided into four classes which (except in the case of a levée en masse) would be called out for service in the following order: first, unmarried men and widowers (without children) between 18 and 30 years of age; secondly, unmarried men and widowers (without children) between 30 and 45; thirdly, married men and widowers (with children) between 45 and 60; fourthly, all between 60 and 65.

Schemes for a Canadian Navy have been mooted but are at present what in abeyance. The old cruisers Niobe and Rainbow were used as training ships. The local force consists otherwise of a number of miscellaneous gun-vessels and icebreakers, some of which are on the Great Lakes. In 1911-12 the expenditure of the naval service department was 2,492,812 dollars.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—In 1901, there were 30,166,033 acres of improved land out of 63,422,338 acres of occupied land; 19,763,747 acres under crop. The crops most widely cultivated are wheat, oats, barley and flax. The following statistics are for 1911:—

Other products (1911) were rye, 153,272 acres, 2,694,400 bushels; peas, 288,310 acres, 4,536,100 bushels; mixed grain, 563,846 acres, 16,679,000 bushels; buckwheat, 359,367 acres, 8,155,500 bushels; beans, 60,630 acres, 1,155,600 bushels; sugar beets, 177,000 tons; turnips and other roots, 84,933,000 bushels; and for husking, 18,772,700 bushels. The total estimated production of certain crops in Canada in 1912 were: wheat, 9,758,400 acres, 199,200,000 bushels; barley, 1,415,200 acres, 42,200,000 bushels; oats, 9,216,900 acres, 332,600,000 bushels; rye, 148,700 acres, 2,400,000 bushels; maize, 292,850 acres, 15,500,000 bushels. In Ontario, apples, the vine, and tobacco are grown. The live stock in Canada in 1912 comprised 2,336,800 horses, 2,890,100 milk cows, 4,093,600 other cattle, 2,360,800 sheep, and 2,656,400 swine. In 1912, there was divided among ranches in Manitoba, 111 acres, British Columbia, 406,152 acres, Alberta, 2,001,234 acres, and Saskatchewan, 1,145,266 acres; total, 3,554,297 acres (1,424 ranches). In year 1911-12, 81,1912, 81,725 tons of cheese, and 4,872 tons of butter were exported from Canada.

Forestry.—The forest is officially estimated at about 568,500,000

	Acres		Acres
Columbia	182,000,000	Quebec	20,000,000
Manitoba, Sask., Alberta, and territories	180,000,000	Br. Brunswick	11,000,000
Ontario	70,000,000	Scotia	5,000,000

The forest products exported to the United Kingdom in 1911 amounted in value to $11,965,131, out of a total of $45,439,057. The exportable surplus of the wood pulp industry was $5,715,532 in 1911, chiefly to Great Britain and the United States. The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Railway Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion.

Fisheries.—The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in 1910-11 was $29,965,433, and in 1911-12, $34,667,672. The value of the principal catches in 1910-11 were cod, $5,921,248, salmon, $7,205,871, herring, $1,561,814, lobster, $3,784,099, mackerel, $400,182. In 1910-11, according to provinces, the values were Nova Scotia, $10,119,243, British Columbia, $9,163,235, New Brunswick, $4,134,144, Quebec, $1,692,475, Ontario, $2,026,121, Prince Edward Island, $1,153,708, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Yukon, $1,676,507.

Mining.—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N. and W. Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce was in 1911, $102,291,686 in 1910, $108,823,823. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1910 and 1911 were as follows:—

1 The ton used throughout is of 2,000 lbs.

2 The values for lead, nickel, and silver, are, for statistical and comparison purposes, at the average value of the refined metal. Pig-iron is valued at the value of the products at the mine or point of shipment, structural and clay products at the point of shipment.

3 The total production of pig-iron in Canada in 1911 was 600,797 tons, valued at $11,245,830, of which it is estimated that 500,797 tons, valued at $9,694,000, should be credited to imported. The total production in 1911 was 917,535 tons, valued at $12,806,860, of which it is estimated that 875,949 tons valued at $11,008,456, should be credited to imported.

Commerce.

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and most of the colonies, the duties on direct imports from the United Kingdom and the colonies, &c., being reduced, but alcoholic liquors, liquid medicines, tobacco, and refined sugar from raw sugar produced elsewhere than in British colonies, are excluded from the reduction

Total	104,617	46,300,008	109,081	42,725,112

In 1911 the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports in inland waters between Canada and the United States were Canadian, 19,063 of 13,038,148 tons; United States 28,426 of 12,094,211 tons.

Internal Communications

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to 1911, 99,311,890 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone. In 1911, 35,955 vessels, of 27,408,814 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 304,904 passengers and 38,080,853 tons of freight, chiefly grain, timber, iron ore, and coal. On January 11, 1909, signed at Washington a treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the boundary of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by H. M. the King on the recommendation of the Governor in Council of the Dominion of Canada, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, will have jurisdiction in all matters involving the navigation or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation.

Total length of railways, June 1911, 25,400 miles, of 669 miles in 1910, of the 4 ft 6 in gauge. The Canadian Pacific Railway main line from Montreal to Vancouver is 2,906 miles in length. By means of this railway and a line of Pacific steamers subsidised by the Imperial and Dominion Governments, Japan and Yokohama are brought within 11 days of another. There is a monthly service between Australia and British Columbia, for which the Dominion Government gives 37,000 l. a year, the Australian 26,826 l. a year, and Fiji 2,100 l.

The cost on Canadian railways in two years was:—

Year ended June 30	Passengers No	Freight Tons of 2000 lbs	Receipts	Working Expenses	Net profits	Capital paid up
1910	24 741	8 894 57	71 482 466	£ 7 700	24 750 000	11 007	355,419

In 1911, of the capital, $148,217,072 represented Federal Government aid (exclusive of the cost of Government Railways $101,595,694) and $52,962,184 from Provincial Governments and Municipalities. The latter amount does not include cost of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway ($16,181,835). The expenditure by Dominion Government in National Transcontinental Railway up to March 31, 1911, was $95,428.

Electric railways in 1911 49 mileage 1 224, passengers during the year, 426 296,792, paid up capital $111 532,347.

On March 31, 1911, there were 13 324 post offices. Letters sent during the year, 504,231,000, post cards, 50,000,000, registered letters, 11,584,000, fire letters, 16,382,000 (closed parcels 100 000, and second, third and fourth class mail 1, 103,425,000. Gross revenue, $12,212,952 net revenue, $9,146 999, expenditure, $7,954,270. There is now a uniform rate of postage of two cents to the Dominion, also between Canada and the United States, the United Kingdom, and all other parts of the British Empire. Money order offices on March 31, 1911 3,501 orders issued (1910 11), 4 840,696, value $70,614,862. The Ocean Mail subsidies paid by the Government amounted to $18,941 in 1911.

There were 42,055 miles (8,150 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1911 and 172,897 miles of (exclusive of Government lines), with 2,852 offices. There were in 1911 687,728 miles of telephone wire, of which 576,713 miles were urban and 111,015 rural, and 302,759 telephones. The earnings of telephone companies in Canada in 1911 amounted to $10,068,220, and the operating expenses to $6,979,045.

Money and Credit

The Bank Act of Canada imposes stringent conditions on capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points in all chartered and incorporated banks. The Dominion Government by statute must always hold security for the redemption of Dominion notes issued and outstanding up to and including thirty million dollars, an amount in gold in gold and guaranteed securities of Canada equal to not less than 25 per cent of the amount of such notes, the gold held to be not less than 15 per cent of the amount. To the issue of notes in of thirty millions it must hold a dollar in gold for each dollar of notes. On January 1, 1912, there were incorporated banks making returns to the Government, with 2,639 branches. The following are some particulars of the banks —

Calendar Year	Average Capital up	Average Notes in Circulation	Average Total on Deposit	Average Liabilities	Average	Age of Liabilities to Assets
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1907	95,958,782	75 784	654 679,711	769 028,924	945 685 708

Alberta.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and its several amending Acts; also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision is made for the admission of the _____ provinces from time to time, including the then North-West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North-West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were _____ into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except _____ with respect to school lands and the public domain, were made _____ apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant Governor, who is appointed by the federal government but actually in the Executive Council, _____ the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the _____ of the king. All bills passed by the Legislative Assembly are usually transmitted to Ottawa to receive the approval of the federal government.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. The qualifications are as follows: Every male person who is a British subject of the full age of twenty one years, and has resided in Alberta for at least twelve months and in the electoral division three months immediately preceding the date of the election.

There are 41 members in the Legislature—34 Liberals, 5 Conservatives, and 1 Labour Socialist.

Lieutenant Governor—Hon G. H. V. Bulyt.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:

Premier, President of the Council and Minister of Railways and Telephones—Hon A. L. Dillton.

Attorney General—Hon C. W. Cross.

Minister of Public Works—Hon C. R. Mitchell.

Minister of Agriculture—Hon Dumas Marshall.

Minister of Education—Hon J. R. Boyle.

Minister of Municipalities—Hon Chas. Stewart.

Provincial Secretary—Hon A. J. McLean.

The province has no agent in London.

Local Government—In 1912 the law respecting towns and rural municipalities was revised and brought up to date, in harmony with the conditions and development and growth prevailing in the province at the present time. Rural municipalities comprise an area of 18 miles square, and are laid out on a uniform plan conformable as far as possible to the Dominion Land Survey system. Each municipality is a body corporate and governed by a council of five elected by a general vote of the resident electors. The chief executive officer is called a Reeve. All towns are incorporated under the Towns Act of 1912 except those incorporated by special acts. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. Persons qualified to vote are persons male or female of the full age of 21 years who are assessed for $200.00 or upwards. The cities of Alberta carry on their municipal government by the authority of special charters granted by the Legislature.

Area and Population—The area of the province is 265,285 square miles. The population in 1911 was 374,633, in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022. In 1911 the rural population numbered 232,726 (52,399 in 1901), and the urban 141,937 (20,623 in 1901). Population of the principal cities, (1911)—Calgary, 43,655; Edmonton, 30,434; Lethbridge, 8,050; Medicine Hat, 5,573; Wetaskiwin, 2,411.

The total statistics for 5 years have been as follows:—

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Balance of
1909	6,887	2,864	2,002	7,749
1910	8,271	3,086	3,436	4,921
1911	8,811	3,111	3,618	4,695

Instruction—In the school system all grades, both primary and secondary, are included under the term public school. The board of trustees control the schools. Kindergarten is also included.

university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants. The grants are distributed to encourage the highest grade of teachers, regularity of attendance of pupils and general proficiency based on the report of Government inspectors. All schools are provided with a small library. Two Normal schools, at Calgary and Camrose, are established for the training of teachers. The University of Alberta, organized in 1907 has 50 students. In 1911 there were 1,784 schools with 61,660 pupils, and 1,524,707 dollars were spent on school buildings.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Court of Superior Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, the Supreme Court of Alberta consisting of a Chief Justice and four puisne judges appointed by the Dominion Government holding office for life unless impeached by Parliament and Minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction such as a Police Magistrate Court and a District Court. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to $500.

District courts have power to grant probate of wills and are courts of record for a trial without a jury of any person charged with a criminal offence provided such person consents. The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources:—(1) Dominion subsidies, (2) Sale of school lands and (3) Provincial sources which consist of taxes on the increased mileage of rail ways, corporation taxes on the lot, accident loan and bond companies and the fees regularly charged for departmental services.

Revenue	Dollars 11,161	Dollars 11,145	Dollars 11,145
Expenditure	$7,000	$7,000	$7,000

† Does not include loans

The public debt of the province (1911) amounted to $1,911,000

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre-eminently an agricultural province. Though there are unquestionably valuable assets in her mines of coal and asphalt the future depends upon the growth of agriculture. The important branches of grain, livestock and dairying. The area of arable land is placed at 100,000,000 acres. Less than 3 per cent of this is under cultivation at the present time.

The acreage and yield of leading grains in Alberta for 1912 is as follows:—Spring Wheat 855,000 acres, and 18,000,000 bushels, Fall Wheat 127,000 acres and 2,667,000 bushels, Oats 1,196,000 acres and 57,780,000 bushels, Barley 262,000 acres and 6,536,000 bushels, Flax 96,050 acres and 576,800 bushels, Rye and Speltz 17,725 acres and 354,500 bushels.

Alberta is the greatest ranching country in America from 1900, but the farmer has driven out the rancher and the days of the big herds are past. Horse raising is very profitable owing to the great numbers required by new settlers for farm work and city drays. Good horses will sell from $100 to $400, such as horses. In 1910 there were in Alberta, 197 horses, 94,071 milk cows, 558,100 other horned cattle, 171,857 pigs and 155,801 sheep.

The establishment of packing houses at Edmonton and Calgary has given a great stimulus to the hog industry. Mixed farming combining dairying and hog raising is becoming general. The butter output was about 3,000,000 lbs. in 1911. The output of cheese is about 250,000 lbs.

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons. The output in 1910 was 3,036,553 tons (in 1909, 2,871,929 tons). Natural gas is found at Medicine Hat and Bow Island in inexhaustible quantities.

Alberta has 932 square miles of forest reserves. The northern portion of the province contains belts of forests along the rivers and lakes, consisting of spruce, pine, cottonwood, and poplar serviceable for merchantable timber.

The lakes of the province abound in several species of fish, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. The number of anglers engaged in 1911 was 494, the number of boats 303.

Manufacturing has just begun in the province. Flour mills, oat meal mills, pork and beef packing houses have been established within the last few years. Brewing and malting are carried on at Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge. Coke and briquettes form a considerable industry in the Towns of Pass district, producing (1911) 141,578 tons of coke and 108,498 tons of briquettes.

Commerce and Communication.—As the province has no control of customs or excise the government collects no statistics of the exports or imports. The principal exports of the province consist of grain, fat cattle, butter and coal. Hams and bacon to the value of 500,000 dollars are imported annually and 20,000 carcasses of Australian mutton.

Length of railway lines 2,300 miles. New lines to the length of 1,800 miles are being constructed.

British Columbia

Constitution and Government.—Previous to 1858 British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, formed a portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession but in that year it was constituted a Crown Colony owing to the large immigration consequent on the discovery of gold. Vancouver Island was leased to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1843 and made a Crown Colony in 1849. In 1866 the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united and on July 20th 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by three members in the Senate, and seven in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant Governor and Legislative Assembly of 42 members on the system of executive administration known as "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for four years, every male adult (British subjects) having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

State of parties in Legislature at General Election of 1912.—Conservatives, 40. Socialists, 2.

Lieutenant Governor — His Honour Thomas W. Paterson

The members of the Ministry are as follows —

Premier and Minister of Mines — Hon. Sir Richard McBride, K. C. M. G., K. C.

Minister of Finance and Agriculture — Hon. Price Ellison

Attorney General — Hon. William J. Prowse, K. C.

Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education — Hon. Henry F. Young, M. D., I. L. D.

Minister of Lands — Hon. W. R. Ross, K. C.

Minister of Public Works — Hon. Thomas W. Taylor

President of the Council — Hon. A. M. McPhillips, K. C.

Agent General in London — Hon. T. H. Turner, Salisbury House, Langham Circus, E. C.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean is the largest in the Dominion, its area according to the census of 1911, being 355,855 square miles. It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south with an average width of about 400 miles lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north. It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories, and on the east by the Province of Alberta. From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains, and thence north, the 120th meridian.

The last census (1911) places the population at 92,180 in 1901 the population was 175,657.

Some of the principal cities and towns are: Victoria (the capital), population (1911), 31,660, Vancouver, 123,902, New Westminster, 13,194, Nanaimo 8,168, Nelson 1,476, Prince Rupert, 1,164.

The movement of the population for three years was as follows —

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1909	4,711	3,444	9,794	1,480
1910	4,007	3,290	9,223	1,784
1911	5,541	4,001	9,000	2,181

Instruction.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council. The Minister of Education directs the general management of the schools through the Superintendent of Education.

There are at present 1,179 high schools in the Province. The number of schools in 1911-12 was 538, under 1,179 teachers, with an enrolment of 45,125 pupils. The Legislature has made two million acres of land an endowment for a Provincial university, a site for which has been chosen in Vancouver.

Finance — Revenue and expenditure and debt for three years follows —

	Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars	Debt (Net) Dollars
1910	8,874,741	6,649,994	801,644
1911	10,492,892	8,414,825	1,497,694
1912 ¹	10,326,000	17,000,000

Production and Industry — British Columbia produced in 1911 minerals to the value of $211,816 dollars, lumber to the value of 28,000,000 dollars, fish to the value of 11,000,000 dollars, agriculture valued $20,837,898 dollars, and manufactures of the value of 45,000,000 dollars making a total of 128,049,709 dollars. The acreage and production of certain crops: 1911 wheat, 14,470 acres, 425,000 bushels, oats, 98,661 acres, 1,950,000 bushels, barley 2,180 acres, 81,000 bushels, potatoes, 11,72,021 tons. Number of live stock: 1911 cattle, 52,840, sheep 17,940, pigs 14,400, horses 35,840.

British Columbia's coal measures are estimated to contain 40 billion tons of bituminous coal and 61 billion tons of anthracite coal. It possesses the greatest compact area of merchantable timber in North America, the importance of the fisheries, apart from salmon fishing, is only beginning to be realized. There are immense deposits of magnetite and hematite iron of the finest quality which still remain undeveloped. The area of agricultural and fruit lands is estimated at 60,000,000 acres, and less than one tenth of the available land is settled upon much less cultivated. The Province has millions of acres of pulpwood is yet unexploited petroleum deposits, but recently discovered are among the most extensive in the world and most of the territory is unexplored and its potential value unknown.

British Columbia is the second Province of the Dominion in the value of its mineral production producing all of the Dominion's lead and zinc an increasing proportion of the copper, most of the gold a third of the coal and coke, and over a fifth of the total mineral production.

Recent investigators place the area of British Columbia's merchantable forests at 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres but according to the report of the British Columbia forestry commission the Province exclusive of the Dominion Railway belt has only about 15,000,000 acres representing 192,050,000,000 feet board measure. It is estimated that there are about 50,000,000,000 feet board measure under the control of the Dominion in the railway belt.

Commerce — The trade of the Province is developing rapidly. In 1911 12 imports amounted to 49,345,161 dollars and the exports 23,018,655 dollars. Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, copper and coal), products, (chiefly salmon, halibut, herring, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, etc. A large inter provincial trade is rapidly developing the fruit grown in British Columbia being largely shipped to the Prairie Provinces, where it finds a good market.

Communications — Shipping. — The Canadian Pacific is at present the principal railway of the Province. It has two lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Great Northern Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on inland lakes, besides its large fleet of ocean going and coasting steamers. The railway mileage of the Province is about 2,000 miles, and an additional 1,000 miles is under construction.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is building its line eastward from Prince Rupert, near the mouth of the Skeena River, to the Canadian Northern Pacific under contract. It is about a hundred miles of railway from Tete Jaune Cache to Barkley Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island within four years from June 1910

The number and tonnage of vessels entered and cleared at British Columbia ports in 1911 was as follows —Entered, 31,004 vessels, of 12,948,907 tons and leaved 31,041 vessels, of 12,861,470 tons

Nova Scotia

Constitution and Government—The first settlement made by the French at the end of the sixteenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. The Constitution of the Dominion of Canada and of each separate Province thereof is contained in the 'British North America Act' commonly called the 'Act of Confederation'. This Act passed the Imperial Parliament in 1867 and came into force on July 1st of that year. Under this Act the Legislature of Nova Scotia along with that of each of the other Provinces may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters, and more especially in regard to direct taxation within the Province in order to raise a revenue for provincial purposes, and the administration of justice in the Province, including the constitution, maintenance and organisation of provincial courts both of civil and of criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure of civil matters in those courts.

The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government and holding office for five years, a Legislative Council appointed by the Crown, and holding office for life, and a House of Assembly, chosen by popular vote every five years. The Legislative Council consists of 21 members, the House of Assembly of 38. The members of both Houses receive a sessional indemnity of $700.

The franchise is granted to persons assessed on real property valued at $150 or on personal or personal and real property together valued at $300, tenants yearly of similar property, sons of foregoing persons or of widows in possession of enough property to qualify as stated above and actually residing on such property; persons having an annual income of $250.

House of Assembly (1910), lists of parties—Liberals, 27, Conservatives, 19. The Liberal party has held office continuously for 11 years.

Lieutenant Governor—Hon. James Drummond McGillivray.

The Members of the Ministry are as follows—

Premier and Provincial Secretary—Hon. G. H. Murray.

Attorney General—Hon. O. T. Daniels.

Commissioner of Works and Mines—Hon. H. Armstrong.

Ministers without Portfolio—Hon. James Macdonald, Jason M. Mack, George E. Faulkner, H. M. McGregor, and J. W. Comeau.

Agent General in London—Hon. John Howard, 57^a, Pall Mall, S. W.

Local Government.—In Nova Scotia there are two municipal divisions, viz., county and city or town. The large counties are divided into two municipalities.

The county or municipal councils consist of councillors elected triennially by the ratepayers, one for each polling division of a county electing a member to the House of Assembly. Town or City Councils are composed of a mayor and not less than six councillors elected by the ratepayers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,428 square miles. Area of lake surface, 230,100 acres. The population in 1911 was 492,338, in 1901, 459,574 and in 1891, 450,996.

Population of the principal cities (1911) Halifax, 46,619, Sidney, 17,749, Glace Bay, 16,562, Amherst 8,973, Yarmouth 6,600, New Glasgow 6,382, Truro, 6,107.

The vital statistics for three years were as follows:—

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1898-01	13,111	5,544	6,179	9,476
1901-10	12,888	7,111	7,110	165
1910-11	13,317	6,004	5,317	4,098

Of the births in 1910-11, 317 were illegitimate, as against 361 in 1909-10 and 362 in 1908-9.

Immigration statistics of the Maritime Provinces for the last three years:—1909, 10,644, 1910, 13,204 and 1911 15,265.

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1901 were:—Roman Catholics, 129,575, Presbyterians, 106,381; Baptists, 88,231, Anglicans, 66,107, Methodists, 57,490, and Congregationalists, 2,938.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Instruction.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory and unconditional. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies there is at Halifax a school for the blind and one for the deaf and dumb. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro, also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. Besides this central institution there are working under it coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The Government grant for educational purposes in 1911 was $400,000. The Province has 4 universities, 2,657 schools, with 11,000 teachers and 104,994 pupils.

Pensions.—A pension scheme is an operation whereby teachers under certain conditions receive an annuity. Miners receive pay in the event of accident in pursuit of their calling, and in the event of death a grant is made to the widow and children. A fund is provided to meet the demands, the Government and the employers each half as much as the fund.

Justice and Crime—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts. Courts for the collection of small debts, county courts inferior courts in criminal cases, courts of superior jurisdiction, divorce court, probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also Courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a Court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1911 111 prisoners were arrested for various crimes and misdemeanors. Of these 111 were sent to the penitentiary. The rest served a term in jail or were fined. 84 children were brought before the court for juvenile delinquents, 80 were convicted. Of these 19 were sent to institutions, 61 were paroled.

Finance—In Nova Scotia there is direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy, royalty on coal and other minerals, raised succession duty, tax on banks and incorporated companies, marriage licenses and statutory fees. In 1911 the revenue was $11,088,194 in 1910, $11,725,934 in 1909 $11,659,608. The public debt of the Province (1911) amounted to $10,693,699. In unbalance this the Province had realisable assets to the value of $76,173,703 and real estate to the value of $3,678,000.

Production and Industry—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit growing is especially profitable and apples are the most important fruit grown (2,000,000 barrels were raised in 1911). The potatoes produced are higher in quality than any others raised in Canada. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. There was an increase during 1911 of 90 per cent in the amount of butter manufactured in 1910, the record year for the Province. There were (1911) 332,600 cattle in the Province. Owing to the cool, moist climate which may be raised easily and the pastures are excellent. There are about 351,000 sheep. The annual clip is 1,000,000 lbs. Pigs numbered 70,000 and horses 11,000 in 1911.

The principal crops are hay with an acreage of 478,849, and a yield of 670,890 tons of the value of $8,045,000. Oats 93,148 acres, producing 2,794,440 bushels of the value of $1,676,644, wheat barley, beans and peas. The total Government aid to agriculture in 1911 was $125,000.

The principal minerals found in Nova Scotia are coal, iron, gold, copper, gypsum, fire clays, brick clays, building stone, limestone, antimony, lead, silver, manganese, tungsten, diatomaceous earths. The coal fields embrace 725 square miles. The gold fields cover about 3,000 square miles. Nova Scotia gold is the highest priced in the world, running close to $20 an ounce.

The value of the principal mineral productions in 1911 was—Coal $19,200,000, steel, $8,900,000, pig iron, $4,800,000, and iron ore $2,475,000. The total value of all the mineral products was $35,387,000.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is nearly 8,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The value of the forest products reached the sum of $5,600,000.

The fisheries of the Province are the most extensive in Canada. Nearly $6,000,000 was invested in this industry, 25,568 men were employed, and the number of vessels engaged is 14,771. Cod, lobsters, mackerel, herring and salmon are the principal fish. The market value of fish caught in 1911 was $7,275,685.

The total number of industrial establishments was in 1910, 1,480, with a capital of $79,596,341, employing 28,795 wage earners, and producing commodities to the value of $62,706,184.

Commerce and Communications—The imports for 1911 $16,748,580, the exports, $20,001,324.

Transportation facilities—Nova Scotia is excellent. The country is covered with a network of railways 1,860 miles in extent. Besides this subsidised boats ply around the shores making regular calls at all the important ports. The principal railways are the Intercolonial (Government owned), the Halifax and South Western and Inverness (owned by Canadian Northern), and the Dominion Atlantic (owned by the Canadian Pacific).

There are 8 great banks operating in the Province, with total liabilities amounting to $681,860,761, assets, $794,720,528.

There are 12 Government Savings Banks in Nova Scotia. Total deposits, $4,533,080. There are also Post Office Savings Banks.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was acquired by Great Britain in 1583, exclusive sovereignty the island was ceded by France in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, confirmed by treaties of 1763 and 1783.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barrens and marshes, and intersected by rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and water-courses good land is generally found, and in some cases, about the Exploits the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered. Area, 42,734 square miles. Population in 1911 238,670 (122,259 males and 116,411 females). Dependent Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent with an area of 120,000 square miles and population (1911) of 3,949. Of the total Newfoundland population (1901) 62,674 were engaged in the fisheries, 2,475 were farmers, 3,111 mechanics, 1,576 miners. Capital, St. John's, 32,292 inhabitants (1911), other towns being Harbour Grace, 4,279, Carboneau, 3,540, Twillingate, 3,348, Bonaville, 3,411. The birth rate in 1911 was 23.44 and the death rate 10.02 per 1,000. Immigration (1910-11), 12,034, emigrants, 12,000.

The government is administered by a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 9 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 20 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 36 representatives (27 government party, 9 opposition). Members of the Legislative Council receive 120 dollars per session, members of the Legislative Assembly receive 200 or 300 dollars per session, according as they are resident or not in St. John's. Governor and Commander in Chief—Walter Edward Davidson, C.B., appointed October, 1912, salary 10,000 dollars. The Ministry formed March 8, 1909 was as follows—

Prime Minister, without Portfolio—Hon. Sir Edward P. Morris, P.C., K.C.M.G., K.C., J.L.D.

Colonial Secretary—Hon. Robert Watson

Minister of Justice—Hon. D. Morrison, K.C.

Minister of Finance and Customs—Hon. M. P. Cashin

Minister of Agriculture and Mines—Hon. S. D. Blandford

Leader of the Legislative Council—Hon. R. A. Bishop

Without Portfolio—Hon. C. E. Emerson, K.C., Hon. J. P. Gilbey, and Hon. J. C. Crookshank

Not in the Cabinet—

Minister of Public Works—Mr. William Woodford

Minister of Marine and Fisheries—Mr. A. W. Piccott

For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 16 districts or constituencies. Of the total population in 1911, 78,816 belonged to the Church of England, 81,177 were Roman Catholics, 68,045 Methodists, 1,876 Presbyterians, 10,138 Salvation Army, 2,767 other denominations. At the colleges of the Church of England, Roman Catholic, and Methodist bodies, in 1911 there were 478, 369 and 476 students respectively. The number of schools of all kinds (1911) was: Church of England, 349, Roman Catholic, 325, Methodist, 335, and other denominations, 11. The attendance at Board schools (1911) was: Church of England, 16,425, Roman Catholic, 16,791, Methodist, 14,580, and others 2,500, total, 50,246. the principal occupation of the population, the value of the fishing products being almost two millions sterling annually.

Production, &c.—The chief agricultural products in 1911 were oats (8,544 bushels), potatoes (1,532,768 bushels), turnips (281,080 bushels). In 1911 there were in Newfoundland 13,694 horses, 39,472 cattle, 97,597 sheep, and 26,956 pigs. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw-mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron have been found and are being worked. Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. Output 1911, 1,180,681 tons, value, 1,319,992 dollars. Copper ore and pyrites are worked successfully. In 1911, 42,131 tons of ore were mined, valued at 231,698 dollars. Coal is found at George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock, and extensive deposits of silver and lead have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls. These mills are furnished with the most up-to-date machinery and are making, in a day of 24 hours, 1,000 tons of paper and 240 tons of pulp. At Grand Falls and Bishop's Falls there have been completed extensive pulp mills, which are now making pulp for exportation, and machinery for the manufacture of paper is about to be installed. The paper and pulp is largely exported to England. There is a likelihood that mills will also be constructed at Deer Lake and Hawkes Harbour.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1911 723 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3 ft 6 in., and 47 miles of private line. By acts of the Newfoundland Legislature in 1910 an agreement was made by the Government for the construction and maintenance of five branch lines of railway running to Bonaville Head's Content, and Grate's Cove, Trepassy, Fortune Bay, and Bonnac Bay. The Government agreed to pay the contractors 15,000 dollars a mile for construction and to give 4,000 acres of land per mile constructed for operation, to do which it raised by loan 3,893,200 dollars. The line to Bonaville was completed in 1911, and the line to Trepassy in 1912. These lines will open up various fertile sections of the island. Communication between points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 8 first class steamers, each of which connects with a central point on the railway. There are (1912) 652 post offices. Letters and cards sent in 1911, 3,600,000; newspapers, books, &c., 3,300,000; parcels, 118,078. Post office revenue, 24,095; expenditure, 81,210. Telegraph line open (1911) 4,718 miles; 829 miles of telephone wire.

In December, 1911, the Newfoundland Savings Banks held 3,015,448 dollars standing to the credit of 7,961 depositors, this in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the three banks doing business at St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4s. 1½d. of British money.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

The British Territories in Australasia comprise the self-governing States which now form the Commonwealth of Australia; the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Northern Territory, the self-governing Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Tonga Islands and many other groups of islands and islets scattered in the Pacific.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed at Sydney January 1, 1901. After five of these colonies had, by legislative enactments, approved by the direct vote of the electors, declared their desire for a Federal Union, the British Parliament, on July 9, 1900, passed the Act to constitute the Commonwealth. This Act provided for the inclusion of Western Australia in the Federation if that colony so desired, and in the following month the colonial legislation necessary for this end was passed.

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King represented by a Governor-General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of Senators (six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general, the Senate will be renewed to the extent of one-half every three years, but, in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to the respective numbers of their people as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, but not less than five for any original State. For the first House of Representatives the number was 75, distributed as follows: New South Wales, 12; Victoria, 23; Queensland, 9; South Australia, 7; Western Australia, 5; Tasmania, 5. As a result of the Census enumeration of 1911, New South Wales will have 27 members, Victoria 21, and Queensland 10. Every House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless dissolved. Electoral qualifications for both Chambers of the first Federal Parliament were those for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State in which the elector was competent to vote. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural-born subject of the King, have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He must be of full age and must have the electoral qualification. Since the first Parliament of the Commonwealth was instituted, an Electoral Act has unified the franchise for both Chambers, and the principle of universal adult suffrage.

Last election April, 1910: Labour Party, 44; Fusionists, 29; Independent Liberals, 2.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament are extensive, embracing commerce, shipping, &c.; finance; defence; postal, telegraph, and like services; and statistics; arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State. Authority is given for the Commonwealth in regard to railways, light-houses, &c.; marriage and divorce; and immigration; currency and banking; weights and measures. The several State Parliaments retain legislative authority in all matters which are not transferred to the Federal Parliament, which is thus a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. With respect to money bills, the House of Representatives has special powers, and provision is made for the agreement between the two Houses.

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercisable by the Governor-General, who is assisted by an Executive Council of responsible Ministers of State. Those Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament, they are paid salaries not exceeding, in all, 12,000l. a year. The Executive Government of the Commonwealth is constituted as follows:—

Governor General—His Excellency the Right Hon Thomas, Baron Denman, P.C., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., Commander in Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies.

Prime Minister and Treasurer—Rt Hon A. Fisher, P.C.

Attorney General—Hon W. M. Hughes.

External Affairs—Hon I. Thomas.

Minister of Home Affairs—Hon K. O'Malley.

Postmaster General—Hon C. L. Fraser.

Minister of Defence—Hon G. F. Pearce.

Minister of Trade and Customs—Hon F. C. Tudor.

Vice President of the Executive Council—Senator the Hon G. McGiegon.

Honorary Ministers—Senator the Hon L. Findlay and the Hon E. A. Roberts.

High Commissioner for Australia in London—The Right Hon Sir George Houston Reid, P.C., K.C., G.C.M.G., 72 Victoria Street, Westminster, S.W.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judiciary, for an inter State Commission on Trade and Commerce, for the transfer of State officials, State property, and State debts to the Commonwealth, for the collection and expenditure of duties during the transition period, and for alteration of the Constitution. A High Court (consisting of 5 judges) has been established, with original as well as appellate jurisdiction. The selection of the Yarrum Canberra site for the Federal Capital was voted by the Senate and House of Representatives, and in 1910, the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales an area of approximately 1,000 square miles. An area of 2 square miles at Jervis Bay was also acquired for purposes of a Naval College, and the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto. At present the Federal Government has its seat at Melbourne.

The year 1911 — the commencement of the new defence scheme adopted by — Australian Government on the basis of Lord Kitchener's — recommendations. The Defence Act of 1903, amended by the Acts of 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912, imposes a system — compulsory training, begin — with cadets of — to — years of age (junior and senior), followed by 1 year — the Citizen Forces — recruits, after which the — remain as soldiers for 7 years. Liability ■■■■ with the completion of the 26th year but the men are expected to join the existing rifle clubs and keep up their shooting. The actual period of training is very short that imposed ■■■■ the young citizen soldiers of ■■■■ to ■■■■ being only 16 days (16 hours), or their equivalent, ■■■■ each year. The whole country ■■■■ divided up into ■■■■ recruiting districts of approximately equal population, each providing one battalion, besides other troops. It is intended that there should be 7 divisions. Queensland finds the 1st, New South Wales the 2nd and 3rd, Victoria the 4th and 5th, with ■■■■ spare brigade to help South Australia to form the 6th. Western Australia finds 14 brigades and Tasmania 1 brigade.

It ■■■■ estimated that the total number of men under training when the system ■■■■ full operation will be 150,000 cadets and 120,000 citizen soldiers. At present the Militia consists of about 22,000 of all ranks, and there ■■■■ about ■■■■ undergoing compulsory training. About 55 ■■■■ are registered in the Rifle Clubs. A Military College for the training of officers ■■■■ has been established at the proposed Federal capital.

The present militia and volunteer units will be gradually merged into the new citizen army. This is to consist when complete of 23 infantry brigades (of 4 battalions), ■■■■ regiments of light horse, 49 field and 7 heavy batteries (all of 4 guns), 14 field companies of engineers and the necessary departmental troops. In the event of war, about half of the whole would be required to garrison the defended ports &c., while the remainder would form ■■■■ mobile striking force.

The annual cost of the scheme when ■■■■ full working order that is in 8 or ■■■■ years, will exceed 2,000,000/. The estimated defence expenditure exclusive of administration and works ■■■■ 1911-12 was £1,523,739/.

NAVY

Naval estimates 1911-12 340,000/.

Sydney ■■■■ first class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia. The Naval Agreement Act of 1903 (for 10 years) provided that the Naval Force on the Australian Station should consist of not less than one armoured cruiser, first class, two second class cruisers, four third class cruisers, four sloops and of a Royal Naval Reserve of 25 officers and 700 sea ■■■■ and stokers. The base of this force should be the ports of Australia and New Zealand, and then sphere of operations the waters of the Australia, China, and East India Stations. One ship should be kept ■■■■ reserve and three others partly manned should be used as drill ships for training the Royal Naval Reserve, the remainder should be kept ■■■■ commission fully manned. The drill ships and ■■■■ other vessels were to be manned by Australians and New Zealanders paid at special rates. They were officered by officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve. Eight nominations for naval cadetships were to be given annually to the Commonwealth and two to New Zealand. An annual charge of 200,000/ was to be paid to the Imperial Government by the Commonwealth and 40,000/ by New Zealand.

On June 30, 1912, the naval forces of the Commonwealth were ■■■■ follows:— Permanent naval forces (sea going), ■■■■ administrative and instructional staff, 124, reserves—adults, 993, reserves—senior cadets, 2,340, total, 4,969, navy office, 40, Grand Total, 5,009.

to provide a battle cruiser of the Indefatigable class, three unarmoured cruisers of the Black class, two destroyers of the improved "River" class, and two submarines of the "E" class, also the auxiliary vessels such as docks and depot ships. This will be one of the three divisions of the Eastern Fleet working in close association with the Chinese and Indian squadrons of the Royal Navy—all being under one control in war, but the Australian Unit being controlled by the Commonwealth Government in peace. The personnel will be subject to the King's regulations, and under naval discipline. The vessels will be manned in as far as possible by Australians, supplemented by Imperial and men. Two of the destroyers arrived in Australia in November, a third has been launched in Australia. The battle cruiser is under construction. The modern Australian Navy by the end of 1913 should consist of one Dreadnought battle cruiser, (sister to the New Zealand), three protected cruisers of the "Town" class, Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane and "River" class destroyers. A Naval College is to be established for the training of officers.

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods subject to duty ■ taken to be the fair market value in the principal markets of the country whence the ■ were exported, with ■ addition of 10 per cent. to such market value.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1908 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia ■ against the goods of other countries, and also affords a larger measure of protection to Australian industries than previous tariffs.

The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptance of the term.

NEW SOUTH WALES

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788, in 1843 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1855 responsible government was granted. The constitution embodied in the consolidating Act No 34, 1902. The legislative power is vested in the Parliament of two Houses, the first called the Legislative Council, and the second the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty members (59 in October, 1912), appointed by the Crown for life, and the Assembly 90 members. During 1904 the State was divided into 90 electorates, each with only one member. Every male or female being a natural born or naturalised subject above 21 years of age, having resided one year in the State and three months in a particular electoral district, is qualified as an elector and is entitled to vote only. The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid 500*l.* per annum in addition to which they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State, and are provided with official stamped envelopes for the free transmission of correspondence through the post. The leader of the Opposition is allowed 250*l.* per annum in addition. The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly has a salary of 1,000*l.* per annum, and the Chairman of Committees 740*l.* per annum. Members of the Legislative Council receive no allowances but may travel free over all Government railways and tramways. At the general election of 1910, 584,353 electors out of 844,381 enrolled in contested districts, or 69.20 per cent of the electors, the 101, voted. Included in the foregoing figures are 262,151 female electors who voted out of 400,139 enrolled in contested districts. The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

State of Parties (December, 1912) —Labour, 46, Liberal 39 Independent Liberals, 2.

Governor —Sir Gerald Strickland, K.C.M.G., from March, 1913 (Salary 5,000*l.*)

Lieut. Governor —His Honour Mr. William Portus Cullen, LL.D., Chief Justice.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet consisting of the following members —

Premier and Colonial Secretary —Hon. James Sinclair Taylor McGowan.

Attorney General —Hon. William Arthur Holman.

Colonial Treasurer —Hon. John Henry Cann.

Secretary for Public Works —Hon. Arthur Hill Griffith.

Minister of Justice and Solicitor General —Hon. David Robert Hall.

Secretary for —Hon. Alfred Edden.

Minister of Labour, Industry and Public Instruction —Hon. Ambrose Campbell Carmichael.

Minister for Lands and Agriculture —Hon. John Louis Treloar.

Vice-President of the Executive Council —Hon. Frederick Flowers, M.L.C.

The Attorney-General and Minister of Justice has a salary of 1,520*l.*, the other ministers, except the Vice-President of the Executive Council, of 1,370*l.* The Premier has an annual salary of 10,000*l.* The salary of the Vice-President of the Executive Council is 5,000*l.*

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Under the Local Government Act 1906, the system of Local Government has been extended to the whole of the State, with the exception of the Western Land Division. The 190 boroughs and municipal districts which existed under the Act of 1867, still remain under the title of municipalities, and in addition thereto, 134 new corporate bodies have been established, which are called shires.

Under the 1867 Act the State grants an endowment to every municipality for a period of 15 years after its incorporation as follows: For each of the first 5 years an amount equal to the local revenue raised during the past year, in each of the next 5 years one moiety, and in each of the next 5 years one fourth of the amount raised by general rates. Under the 1906 Act, however, municipalities which are not entitled to a subsidy under the original Act may receive endowments up to 3s. 4d. in the £ of the general rate. Shires receive endowments when the receipts from general rates are insufficient to meet requirements. All persons who are owners, occupiers, or lessees, whether male or female, in any municipality are shire, and paying rates, are entitled to vote for the election of aldermen and councillors.

Area and Population.

The area of the State is 310,367 square miles. The State is divided into various districts for departmental purposes, the most important division being that into 141 counties.

The population (including aborigines) at five consecutive censuses was —

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase per cent per annum
1871	275,551	228,430	503,981	1.6	3.7
1881	411,149	340,319	751,468	2.42	4.1
1891	612,562	519,672	1,132,234	3.65	4.2
1901	712,456	646,677	1,359,133	4.38	1.8
1911	858,850	789,896	1,648,746	5.32	2.0

The estimated population on June 30, 1912, was 1,729,765.

According to the race or origin, percentages were as follows at the census of 1911 (exclusive of aborigines):—New South Wales, 74.51; other Commonwealth States, 9.87; New Zealand, 0.85; English, 7.49; Irish, 2.85; Scotch, 1.91; Welsh, 0.27; other British subjects, 0.45; other subjects, 98.00. Chinese, 0.47; German, 0.45; other foreigners, 0.01; total foreigners, 1.91. See also, 0.09 Aborigines:—Males, 1,152; females, 860; total, 2,012.

According to occupation the number of actual workers (not including aborigines) was recorded thus at the census of 1911:—

Professional	41,884
Domestic (receiving remuneration)	72,618
Manufactures and Trade	77,664
Transport and Communication	43,867

Industries	146,688
Primary Producers (Agricultural, Pastoral, Dairying, Mining, &c)	172,854
Indefinite	9,524
Total workers	564,799

The number of persons classed as 'dependents' was 787,798, of whom 13,780 were dependent on public or private charity.

The population of Sydney (1911), including suburbs and shipping, was 686,851. Of the country towns Newcastle, including suburbs, at the census of 1911 had 55,380. Bathurst, 8,775, Goulburn, 10,023, Parramatta, 12,465, Broken Hill, 30,972, Maitland (East and West), 11,313, Albury, 6,309, Granville, 7,231, Ingham, 8,196, Wagga Wagga, 6,419, Tainworth, 7,145, Orange and East Orange, 6,721, and Grafton and South Grafton, 5,888.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years.

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Illegitimate	Total Deaths	Excess of Births
1907	12,189	42,195	2,869	16,410	25,785
1908	12,642	42,525	2,932	16,090	26,435
1909	13,018	43,760	2,679	15,840	27,920
1910	11,291	45,533	2,900	16,191	29,342
1911	15,267	47,677	2,949	17,174	30,448

The increase in population between the census of 1901 and that of 1911 was 291,387. Towards this the excess of births over deaths contributed 247,871.

The following are the statistics of the arrivals and departures by sea for five years, making allowance for those unrecorded —

	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911
Immigrants by sea	98,275	100,856	106,310	111,525	141,667
Emigrants	82,946	94,452	98,025	102,205	117,154
Excess of immigrants by sea	15,329	6,404	8,285	9,320	24,513

In December, 1905, New South Wales revived the policy of assisted immigration, and assisted passages are now granted enabling female domestic servants, agriculturalists, and other workers to emigrate from the United Kingdom fares ranging from 3*l*. to 6*l*., 6*l*. to 9*l*., and 9*l*. to 11*l*. respectively. Assistance is also given to immigrants from other countries. Five hundred and ninety assisted persons arrived in 1906, 2,917 during 1907, 3,048 in 1908, 4,308 in 1909, 5,058 in 1910, and 9,922 in 1911.

Religion.

An Act abolishing aid to religion was passed in 1869. The clergy who received State aid when the Act was passed, and who survive, still receive that aid.

The Church of England in New South Wales is governed by a Bishop who is Archbishop of Sydney, Metropolitan and Primate of Australia and New Guinea. He is nominated by the Bishops in Australia and New Guinea and the Archbishop of Canterbury. There are 11 dioceses. The Roman Catholic Church is administered by seven Bishops.

Instruction.

Education is under State control, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14 years, in State Primary and Superior public schools; education is free.

There were during 1910, 3,257 Government schools, divided into 3,464 departments, and classified as follows:—High schools 5; public schools 1,959; half time schools 306; provisional schools 485; house-to-house schools 9; evening schools 42; subsidised schools 448; industrial and reformatory schools 2; total 3,257 schools. During 1910 there were 243,889 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 157,498, with 5,900 teachers. In 1910 the expenditure on Public Instruction was 1,191,713*l*.

Of private schools at the end of 1910 there were 774, with 59,247 pupils and 3,602 teachers, of which 394 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools having 1,085 teachers and 44,249 pupils.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, receives from Government a yearly subsidy, amounting, with special aid, to 18,800*l* in 1910. The total income for 1910 was 64,305*l*. There were 1,357 students and, in addition to 6 honorary lecturers and demonstrators, 106 professors, lecturers, &c. There are 3 theological colleges and a college for women, unsectarian, affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, comprising classes in agriculture, physics, applied mechanics, &c., had a total enrolment of 22,822 in 1910.

Old Age, Invalidity and Accident Pensions.

In Australia the old age pension law grants (subject to conditions as to birth, residence, and character) a pension of 26*l* a year to every person 70 years of age, or over 60 if incapacitated by infirmity or injury from earning a living. The amount of the pension is diminished by one pound for every pound of income which the pensioner receives from other sources above 10*l*, and by one pound for every 10*l* of property the pensioner possesses. In the year 1909-10, 27,306 pensioners received 590,400*l* in New South Wales. Since July 1, 1909, old age pensions have been paid throughout the Commonwealth by the Federal Government, and on December 18, 1912, 30,202 pensions were current.

Invalidity and Accident Pensions are paid to persons over the age of 15 years who are permanently incapacitated and who are not receiving an old age pension. From Dec 15, 1910, the payment of these pensions was undertaken by the Commonwealth Government, and 5,028 persons were in receipt of the benefits on December 18, 1912.

Justice and Crime.

There are 12 Courts of Magistrates, of Quarter Sessions, and the Supreme Court, with 1 chief justice and six puisne judges. Prisoners charged with offences bearing sentences of less than 12 months' imprisonment are tried by a jury of twelve persons, either at Quarter Sessions, or before the Supreme Court. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court. There is a special Court to deal with children.

In the Sydney metropolitan, Newcastle, and Broken Hill districts police courts are presided over by stipendiary magistrates; in other districts, police magistrates and honorary justices of the peace adjudicate. The licensing of houses for the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors is transacted by magistrates specially appointed for that purpose.

In 1910 there were 63,671 convictions before magistrates; and 546 distinct persons were convicted at Quarter Sessions and at Central Criminal and Circuit Courts.

There are 11 all 30 gaols. On December 31, 1910, there were 1,298 prisoners in confinement.

The financial statistics of the 174 shires (area, 162,110 square miles) during 1910 were as follows—

Unimproved Capital Value £ 1,191,111, Revenue £ 1,110,111, Expenditure, £ 1,600,111

For Defence—under Commonwealth of Australia. A naval establishment, the main works of which are at Garden Island, Sydney, have been completed. Sydney is the headquarters of the squadron in Australian waters, and has a dockyard, naval coaling station, and victualling and other stores. The cost of the defence of the State is borne by the Commonwealth Government.

Production and Industry

1. AGRICULTURE

In 1911-12 there were 3,629,170 acres under crops. About one fourth of the total area of the State is under forest. The cultivated land is principally in the form of small holdings of less than 500 acres. The State is divided into three divisions—the Eastern, Central and Western. The Dis-

Western Land Board—consisting of three Commissioners—and the head offices of the Lands Department and Western Land Board are in Sydney. In the Eastern and Central Divisions there are a number of tenures under which land may be acquired, those of most interest to intending settlers being Conditional Purchase (with which is associated Conditional Lease), Homestead Selection, Settlement Lease, Conditional Purchase Lease, and Settlement Purchase. Conditional Purchase and Conditional Lease.—The Statutory price of Crown lands for residential Conditional Purchase is 1/ per acre, but Crown Lands may be specially classified at prices either above or below that amount. A deposit of \square per cent is required, and the balance is payable \square regular instalments after the third year, and \square extend \square a period exceeding \square years, interest being charged \square the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent on the outstanding balance only. The selector \square reside \square his holding for the first \square years, and certain improvements \square be carried out. Homestead Selection.—This tenure is practically a perpetual lease, and offers special advantages to the man with small means, \square the land may be held for the first \square years \square the low rental of $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of \square capital value. After \square of the Crown grant, or after expiration of first \square years if the grant be not previously issued, the annual rental is $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the capital value of the land. Settlement Lease.—This \square term of \square years and \square lessee must reside on the land during its currency. After the first five years a Homestead Grant of 1,280 \square may be obtained of that part of the lease on which the dwelling house is situated. Conditional Purchase Lease.—This tenure \square especially attractive to the land seeker with small capital. The lease has a term of 40 years—rental $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the capital value—but may be converted \square any time into a (conditional) Purchase and thus be put on \square freehold basis. Settlement Purchase.—This form of holding \square when large private estates are resumed by the Crown and made available in blocks, each one of which is intended to support a family in comfort. A ten years residence condition is attached and instalments \square land over \square period of 38 years after which the purchase becomes freehold. Homestead selections and settlement leases may be converted into \square ditional purchases or conditional purchase leases.

In the Western Division the land \square leased by the State to pastoral tenants, mainly for grazing but small areas in \square new townships are leased for special purposes.

The following are the chief features of the Act of 1901, which governs the administration of the western lands.

(1) Tenure of Western Leaseholds extended to June 30 1943, subject to resumption of one eighth of the total area and all new leases \square made \square expire on the \square date. (2) Occupation Licences are held \square Annual Tenures—out of which Western Lands Leases may be granted. (3) Improvements \square the land \square date of granting of the leases become the property of the Crown \square the expiration of the leases, but the Lessees have tenant right \square all authorized improvements. (4) Rent minimum \square \square per sq \square mile, \square 7d per sheep \square the carrying capacity of the land.

The total land alienated or in process of alienation on June 30, 1911, \square 54,116,208 acres. The total land occupied under leases of \square kinds \square 125,771,584 \square . The following table gives the statistics of holdings of 1 \square and upwards for years ended March \square —

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in March, 1912, 20,423 [REDACTED] under citrus fruit, with an estimated production of 846,196 bushels of oranges, 256,433 bushels of lemons, 475,121 bushels of mandarins, and 4,560 bushels of other citrus fruit.

In 1911-12 the State had 44,982,637 sheep, 8,182,939 cattle, 688,414 horses, 371,093 [REDACTED]. The production of wool was in the [REDACTED] in 1905, 297,154,000 lbs., in 1906, 325,441,000 lbs., in 1907, 367,446,000 lbs., in 1908, 338,129,000 lbs., in 1909, 370,803,000 lbs., in 1910, 415,338,000 lbs., and in 1911, 371,546,000 lbs.

There were 154,372 persons engaged in agricultural and pastoral pursuits during the year 1911-12.

[REDACTED] is a Forest Conservation Department. The timber reserves, in which [REDACTED] are included, cover an area of 7,379,395 [REDACTED]. The [REDACTED] from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in 1907 to 55,730£; in 1908 to 57,129£; in 1909 to 57,241£, in 1910 to 81,837£, and in 1911 to 90,818£.

II MINES AND MINERALS.

Gold is found in [REDACTED] parts of New South Wales. The following table shows the quantity and value of gold won in New South Wales since its discovery in 1851.—

Periods	Weight	Value
1901-1909	1,951,726	4,119,255

Most of the gold won in the State is received by the Mint for coinage. The value of silver and silver-lead and gold obtained to the end of 1911 was $4,739,723. In 1911, 1,767,406 ounces of silver were raised, valued at $177,095, and 338,469 tons of silver-lead ore and metal, altogether valued at $2,265,669. The value of copper raised in 1911 was 590,102. The estimated value of copper raised from its discovery in 1858 until the end of 1911 was $11,204,911. The total value of the output of tin since the mines were opened in 1872 has been 8,984,535, the value in 1911 being 907,089. In 1911 there were 135 coal mines, employing 17,657 men, the quantity of coal raised in 1911 was 8,691,604 tons, valued at $1,167,165. The estimated value of coal raised to the close of 1911 amounted to $5,427,673. There are 34 smelting furnaces and ore dressing establishments giving employment to 8,867 hands, principally for the smelting of silver, tin, and copper. The output of zinc (spelter) and concentrates in 1911 was 516,378 tons, valued at $1,414,950, and of lead, 17,276 tons, valued at 209,784. Between 1901 and 1911 the value of the minerals produced in N. S. W. increased from $5,680,789 to $9,758,006.

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of New South Wales, exclusive of inter-State trade, is included in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth. The total commerce of the State, including inter-State trade, for 4 years is given in the following table:—

	Total Imports	Home Produce Exported	Other Produce Exported	Total Exports
	£	£	£	£
1908	37,642,746	32,420,066 ¹	8,565,693	40,985,759

1911 ²	27,343,428	27,491,326	4,670,075	32,161,401

¹ The export of domestic produce to other Australian States is estimated.

² These figures relate to Oversea trade only, the inter-State transfers not collected after September 1st, 1910, and complete returns therefore not available.

The chief exports are gold, silver, copper, lead, tin, coal, wool, butter, wheat, flour, fruit, timber, meat (frozen and preserved), hides and skins, tallow, leather, cocoa nut oil.

Nearly all tramways are the property of the Government. There were, on June 30, 1912, 195½ miles open for traffic, the capital cost being 5,664,824^l. The gross earnings for 1911-12 were 1,581,393^l; the working expenses, 1,381,413^l; and the percentage of working expenses to revenue 84·19. There were, besides, 7 miles of privately-owned tramways.

For Shipping, Railways, Posts and Telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Money and Credit.

The value of gold, silver, and bronze coin and bullion (gold) issued at the Royal Branch Mint, Sydney, during five years, is:—

Year	Gold	Silver (British)	Bronze (British)	Total
1907	2,876,421	177,800	10,000	3,064,221

Of the Savings Bank of New South Wales, established in 1882, the Governor is president, and the management is vested in thirteen trustees. Besides the head office and 7 branches in Sydney and suburbs there are 19 branches in the country districts.

The Government Savings Bank, established in 1871, was reorganised by Act passed in 1906, by which it was placed under three commissioners. Its business is carried on in two separate departments — the Savings Bank Department and the Advance Department, the former of which receives and invests deposits, and pays interest on amounts not exceeding 500l., while to the latter has been handed over the administration of the system of loans to agriculturists, formerly vested in the Advance to Settlers Board. The number of branches open on the 31st December, 1911, was 32, and the number of post office agencies in conjunction therewith was 211.

Statistics of both are given below:—

Year	Number of Depositors	on Dec.	Average per Depositor

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than ■ square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l* upon a rate of ■ shilling ■ the ■. The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding ■ revenue of 1,500*l* on a rate of ■ shilling in the ■. In 1911 there were 61 urban and 146 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits. Every ratepayer has one ■ more votes, according to the amount of his rates.

Area and Population.

The State has ■ area of 87,884 square miles, ■ 56,245,760 ■ about $\frac{1}{10}$ part of the whole area of Australia. The ■ is divided into 37 counties, varying ■ from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by ■ returns, ■ exhibited ■ the following table —

■ of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of increase per cent
March 29, 1857	264,334	146,432	410,766
April 7, 1861	328,651	211,671	540,322	7.88
April 2, 1871	401,050	330,478	731,528	8.07
April 3, ■	452,083	410,263	862,346	1.65
April 5, 1891	598,414	541,991	1,140,405	■
March 31, 1901	603,883	597,458	1,201,341	0.48
April 2, 1911 .	655,591	650,960	1,315,551	0.91

The average density of the population is 15 persons to ■ square mile, ■ one person to every 43 ■

The population in 1891 included 9,377 Chinese and 565 aborigines; in 1901, 7,349 Chinese and 652 aborigines; and in 1911, 5,601 Chinese and ■ aborigines.

At ■ date of the census of 1911, ■ per cent. of the population were British subjects by birth; native Victorians numbered 1,010,219, ■ 77 per cent. of the population; natives of the other Australian States, 98,726; of New Zealand, 10,067; of England and Wales, 89,382; of Ireland, 41,477; of Scotland, 26,577; of Germany, 6,142; and of other countries, 32,961.

Of the total population in 1901, there were 534,049 bread-winners and 662,355 dependants, while 4,937 ■ not accounted for. Of the bread-winners there were—professional, 35,224; domestic, 66,815; commercial, 79,048; industrial, 146,238; engaged in transport, 31,516; primary producers, 165,147 (including agricultural, 100,403; pastoral, 32,379; fisheries, 918; mining, 31,447); indefinite, 10,066.

About three-fifths of the total population of Victoria live in towns. At the end of 1911 it ■ estimated that the town population numbered 814,570, out of a total population of 1,337,678.

Inclusive of the suburbs the estimated population on December 31, 1911, of Melbourne ■ 600,160, or more than two-fifths of that of the State; and the population at the Census of 1911 of the undermentioned towns was as follows:—Ballarat, 42,403; Bendigo, 39,417; Geelong, 28,518; Warrnambool, 7,010; Castlemaine, 7,020; Maryborough, 5,675; and Stawell, 4,410; and Hamilton, 4,900.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years:—

Year	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Burials of Births
1907	31,369	1,762	14,542	9,575	16,827
1908	31,161	1,790	15,767	9,334	15,334

1910	31,487	1,759	14,736	10,240	16,701
1911	33,044	1,964	15,217	11,088	17,827

The recorded immigration into and emigration from the State of Victoria by ■ were as follow in each of the five years:—

Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)
1907	75,784	73,046
1908	76,863	78,614
■	78,744	78,768
1910	82,594	77,951
1911	102,229	85,329

Of the immigrants in 1911, 61,139 were males and 41,090 ■ and of the emigrants 50,190 ■ males and 35,139 females.

Religion.

There is no ■ Church in Victoria, and ■ State assistance has been given to religion since ■ At ■ date of the census of 1911 76½ per cent. of the population were Protestants, 22½ per ■ were Roman Catholics, and ■ half per ■ were Jews. The following were the enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1911—Episcopalians, 475,208 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 24,116), Presbyterians, 234,553, Methodists, 176,662, other Protestants, 98,729, Roman Catholics, 286,433, Jews, 6,270, Buddhists, Confucians, &c, 2,572, others (including unspecified), 40,129

Instruction.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz, the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1856, with its three affiliated colleges, State schools (primary), technical schools or colleges, and private schools. Out of the general revenue the University received in 1910-11, by way of endowment 21,000*l.*, and for buildings, apparatus, &c, 17,357*l.* It is both an examining and a teaching body, and grants degrees in all Faculties except Divinity.

Affiliated to the University are three colleges—Trinity, Ormond, and Queen's—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterian, and Wesleyan Churches respectively, also the School of Mines at Ballarat. From the opening of the University to the end of 1911, 6,647 students matriculated, and 4,461 direct degrees were conferred. In 1911 the students who matriculated numbered 1,220 the direct graduates numbered 243, and there were 1,220 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular, it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and free for the subjects comprised in the ordinary course of instruction. In 1911 there were 2,059 State schools with 5,087 teachers, a total enrolment of 234,766 scholars, and an average attendance of 146,464 or 62 per cent of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1911, 98 per cent were able to read and write. In 1910-11 the total cost of public (primary) instruction, exclusive of expenditure on buildings, was 842,281*l.*—all paid by the State. Although the education given by the State is strictly primary, the Minister for Public Instruction may annually award 100 scholarships, each tenable for 3 years for facilitating higher education. In addition 40 teaching scholarships are allotted annually, each tenable for two years at a Continuation School. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were in 1911 587 private schools in Victoria, with 1,975 teachers, and an enrolment of 51,032 scholars. Nearly one fourth of these schools, about one-third of the teachers, and over half of the scholars are estimated to be in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 17 technical schools, a college of domestic economy, a working men's college, two agricultural colleges, and a horticultural college. In 1911 there were 100 teachers attached to 17 technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the gross enrolment of pupils being 4,311.

Old Age Pensions, Justice and Crime.

On July 1, 1909, the Federal Old Age Pensions Act came into operation, and the old age pensions were taken over by the Federal authorities. The number in Victoria on December 13, 1912, was 24,673. Pensions were also granted to invalids, 3,578 being on the register on December 13, 1912.

There is a Supreme Court, a Chief Justice and four puisne judges. There are courts of general and petty sessions, county courts, courts of insolvency, courts of mines, and courts of licensing. The following are the criminal courts:—

	1908	1909	1910	1911

QUEENSLAND.

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of two Houses—the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The former consists of 48 members, nominated by the Crown for life, but a limit is put to the number. The Legislative Assembly comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 300*l.* per annum, with travelling expenses. At the General Election of April, 1912 there were 178,801 males and 135,789 females registered as qualified to vote under the "Electors Act Amendment Act of 1905." This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months' continuous residence in the State being the only proviso. Owners of freeholds and leaseholds of a certain value, possessing a residential qualification as another electorate, are elect to be registered for the former in lieu of that within which they reside, but no person can be enrolled for more than one electorate. State of parties (December, 1912), Liberals, 45; Labour Opposition, 27.

Governor of Queensland.—Right Hon. Sir William Macgregor, G.C.M.G., C.B.

The Executive Council of ministers appointed June, 1912, consists of the following members.—

Premier and Chief Secretary and Vice-President of Executive Council.—Hon. D. F. Denham.

Attorney-General.—Hon. T. O'Sullivan, K.C.

Treasurer and Secretary for Public Works.—Hon. W. H. Barney.

Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. E. Macartney.

Home Secretary and Secretary for Mines.—Hon. J. G. Appel.

Secretary for Railways.—Hon. W. T. Paget.

Secretary for Public Instruction.—Hon. J. W. Blain.

Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. James Tolmie.

Minister without portfolio.—Hon. A. H. Bailow.

Each minister has a salary of 1,000*l.*; the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 300*l.*

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—Major Sir T. B. Robinson.

Secretary.—Mr. P. J. Dillon.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into ■■■■ denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These ■■■■ under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the ratepayers and ■■■■ charged with the control of all matters of ■■■■ parochial nature, ■■■■ especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted ■■■■ Shires for the most part consist of purely ■■■■ districts.

The number and ■■■■ of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1911, ■■■■ —

	No.	Area in square miles	Receipts	Expenditure
Cities		797	306,045	290,611
Towns	24	28,171	126,797	130,000 and Population.

Queensland comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated ■■■■ 670,500 English square miles, with ■■■■ seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 ■■■■ branch penal settlement ■■■■ made at Moreton Bay; in 1842 free settlers ■■■■ admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been ■■■■ follows:—

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,257	—	1868	99,901	15.08	1889	322,000	10.24
1856	18,544	72.16	1871	130,164	6.74	1891	328,718	—
1861	20,058	17.66	1876	—	8.45	1901	428,129	—
1864	61,467	34.22	—	212,623	4.64	1911	605,913	2.16

At ■■■■ census of 1911 the population consisted ■■■■ 329,608 males, and 276,307 ■■■■. The total included 6,138 male and ■■■■ female Chinese; 1,865 male ■■■■ female "Polynesians"; 1,428 male ■■■■ 75 female Japanese; 4,578 ■■■■ other Asiatic, &c., ■■■■. In ■■■■ there were 5,145 ■■■■ and 3,542 ■■■■ full-blooded Aborigines living ■■■■ civilised ■■■■.

As to occupation the population is classified as follows:—Professional class, 13,741; domestic, 25,210; commercial, 26,506; industrial, 51,716; transport and communication, 18,188; agricultural, pastoral, mining, &c., 84,698; indefinite, 1,935; dependent class (wives, children, scholars, students, dependent relatives, &c.), 281,272.

Of the total population, 1911, 382,216 persons (exclusive of aborigines) were born in the State: 65,266 in England, 31,599 in Ireland, 20,530 in Scotland, 2,620 in Wales, 38,921 in New South Wales, 15,943 in Victoria, 3,348 in South Australia, 482 in Western Australia, 1,798 in Tasmania, 3,987 other Australians including 'Australia undefined', 2,576 in New Zealand, 11,979 in Germany, 641 in Denmark, 1,054 in Sweden, 685 in Norway.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births
1907	14,542	1,063	5,599	4,105	8,943
1908	14,828	1,104	5,680	4,009	9,148
1909	15,554	1,088	5,590	4,542	10,024

1909	79,540	—	—	69,441	—	—
1910	88,264	—	—	76,058	—	—
1911	109,720	—	—	97,560	—	—

Brisbane, the capital, had in 1911 a population within a ten-mile radius of 148,514. Other towns including their suburbs contained: Rockhampton, 20,915; Townsville, 13,835; Maryborough, 11,526; Gympie, 12,419; Ipswich, 25,000; Toowoomba, 24,290; Charters Towers, 17,298.

Religion.

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following are the numbers in 1911:—Church of England, 212,702; Church of Rome, 137,086; Presbyterian, 75,560; Methodist, 59,920; Lutheran, 24,235; Baptist, 13,715; other Christian sects, 90,556; Jews, 672; other Non-Christians, 5,518; no religion, 1,906; unspecified, &c., 21,893.

Instruction.

Primary secular education is free and by the State compulsory. Of the census population ■ 1911, 498,974 could read and write, 3,338 could read only, 23,193 could not read (including 71,704 children under ■ years of age), 10,343 not specified. According to the marriage statistics for 1911, 99.07 per cent. of persons married during 1911, were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education for the year 1911 ■ 430,513*l*. At the end of 1911 there ■ 1,254 public elementary schools in operation, with 2,750 teachers, and ■ average daily attendance of 70,194 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, ■ for boys and ■ for girls, with, in 1911, 91 teachers and ■ average attendance of 1,146 pupils. There were also 131 private schools, with 638 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 12,414 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships, tenable for three years, to the ■ grammar schools. There were 16 technical schools in 1911 with 7,089 distinct students. The receipts amounted to 22,180*l*, and the expenditure to 29,265*l*. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane had at the end of 1911, 4 professors and 16 lecturers, &c., with 81 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, District Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In the last Justice of the Peace, presided over in the more important centres by stipendiary magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of ■ Chief Justice and four puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts ■ 1911 ■ 328, and the summary convictions at petty sessions numbered 18,831 (excluding 4,241 cases of bail forfeited). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1911, 12 prisons, with 423 male and 37 female prisoners. The total police force including native troopers, averages about 1,106 men.

Pauperism, Old Age Pensions.

Charitable institutions are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment; hospital, benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes helped. Persons suffering from want ■ relieved at an expenditure of 8,185*l* ■ 1911, ■ the cost of the State. 3,359 orphans and other homeless and unprotected children were provided for chiefly by the Government ■ a cost of 86,104*l*. Old Age and Invalidity Pensions ■ now payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners ■ the State at December 18, 1912, was 10,666, and of Invalid Pensioners, 1,230.

Finance.

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 —

	1908-09	■	1910-11	1911-12	1912-13
Revenue	4,766,244	5,119,253	5,320,008	5,989,347	6,268,802
Expenditure	4,756,804	5,113,578	5,314,737	5,965,692	6,262,638

The gross income from expenditure on account of Departments under the control of the Commonwealth are included

The chief items of expenditure during 1911-12 are—Interest on public debt, 1,724,304*l*, public instruction, 436,672*l*, treasury department 249,264*l*, public lands department, 214,787*l*, department of agriculture, 71,394*l*, cost of working railways, 1,915,000*l*. The total expenditure from loans, mostly on public works, was 3,324,248*l*, of which the principal item is railways, 854,560*l*.

The estimated value of landed property in 1911 for assessment for Local Government purposes was 58,622,407*l*. This includes lands leased from the Crown for pastoral purposes, the lessees interest in which has been capitalised for assessment purposes at 1,067,168*l*, but is exclusive of unoccupied Crown lands, the property of local bodies, and for public purposes, and lands upon which are erected buildings for public worship.

The gross public debt of the State amounted, on June 30, 1912, to the sum of 45,442,286*l*.

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia. The Government gun vessels are the Gayundah and Paluma (360 tons), sister vessels, launched in 1884, one of which has been appropriated by the Commonwealth Authorities and stationed away from Queensland, the Offar and Stingaree, 290 and 450 tons, are twin screw tenders, the Midge is a steam pinnace, and the Mosquito is a second class steel torpedo boat.

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of the State, 15,709,186 acres have been alienated in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, 9,025,029, leaving 404,855,785 acres still the property of the Crown, about 1 per cent of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1911 amounted to 9,083,187*l*. Provision is made for both conditional and unconditional selection, under the latter land may be purchased at prices from 13*s* 4*d* per acre, payable by twenty annual instalments. Conditional selection is the more general, homestead farms, agricultural farms, grazing farms, and grazing homesteads may be selected. Homestead farms up to 160 acres, if occupied by selector personally for five years, may be secured in freehold at 2*s* 6*d* per acre, payable in ten annual instalments, but, if conditions have been performed, purchase may be completed and a title obtained at the end of five years. Agricultural farms may be acquired by a 20 years' lease with right of purchase, an area, 1,280 acres, annual rent one fortieth of the purchase price, which is part of the purchase money. Grazing farms may be secured by a 7, 14, 21, or 28 years' lease, maximum area, 20,000 acres; annual rental varying according to quality, minimum 1*s* 6*d* per acre, subject to a 10 per cent increase at end of first 7 years and each subsequent 7 years. Grazing homesteads may be secured on similar conditions. In the letting of agricultural and grazing farms and homesteads conditions as to residence are imposed.

A large proportion of the area ■■■■ in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 222,158,880 acres in 1911, the number ■■■■ runs ■■■■ 1,697, besides 42,120,631 ■■■■ in grazing farms and homesteads, and 43,478,880 acres under occupation licence. The livestock in 1911 numbered 618,954 horses, 5,073,201 cattle, 20,740,981 sheep, and 173,902 pigs. The total ■■■■ under cultivation in 1911 was 779,800 acres, and of this 526,388 ■■■■ under crop, besides which 166,175 acres are laid down with permanent artificial pasture. The wool exports (representing nearly the whole of the clip) amounted in 1907 to 20,613,655 lbs. clean, and 60,968,961 lbs. greasy, in 1908, to 23,528,679 lbs. clean, and 66,956,875 lbs. greasy, 1908, production ■■■■ 'greasy,' 116,545,577 lbs., 1909, exports, home production, 24,172,020 lbs. clean, 76,674,835 lbs. greasy, 1909, production expressed ■■■■ greasy, 129,668,298 lbs., 1910, production expressed ■■■■ greasy, 189,250,802 lbs., 1911 production expressed ■■■■ greasy, 142,882,289 lbs.

A considerable ■■■■ consists of natural forest, eucalypti, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly ■■■■ demand, although ■■■■ considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilized by cabinet makers. In 1907, 91,752,076 superficial feet were cut in the various sawmills; in 1908, 100,769,016 superficial feet, 1909, soft woods, 70,137,903 superficial feet, cedar, 1,142,287 superficial feet, hardwood, 37,111,069 superficial feet, 1910, soft woods, 70,582,582 superficial feet; cedar, 625,212 superficial feet; hard woods, 44,453,240 superficial feet; hardwood railway sleepers (sawn) 25,435; 1911, soft woods, 83,954,514 superficial feet; cedar, 636,027 superficial feet; hard woods, 54,255,941 superficial feet; hardwood railway sleepers (sawn) 82,947, the quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities.

The crops, &c., in two years were as follows —

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

Constitution and Government

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1896. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of eighteen members. Every three years members retire, and their places are supplied by members elected from each of the four districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are to be twenty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50/ value, or a leasehold of 20/ annual value, or occupying a dwelling-house the rent of which is not less than 17/ per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50/, the property of the elector; or a teacher of a college or school residing on premises; postmaster or postmistress residing in the building, railway stationmaster resident on premises; member of police force in charge of a station; officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1899, the franchise was extended to women. There were 79,213 registered electors in 1911. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly, receives 200*l.* per [REDACTED] and a free pass over Government railways.

The House of Assembly consists of 42 members elected for 3 years, representing 12 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 3 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age; and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 224,441 registered electors in 1911. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

State of parties (December, 1912):—Liberals, 26; Labour, 16.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—Admiral Sir Day Hort Bosanquet, G.C.V.O., K.C.B.

The Chief Justice, being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts pending a [REDACTED] appointment, or during the absence of the Governor.

The Governor has a salary of 4,000*l.* per annum. The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following ministers:—

Premier, Treasurer and Minister of Education.—Hon. A. H. Peake, M.P.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Immigration.—Hon. F. W. Young, M.P.

Chief Secretary.—Hon. J. G. Bice, M.L.C.

Attorney-General and Minister of Industry.—Hon. H. Homburg, M.P.

Minister of Agriculture and Irrigation.—Hon. T. Pascoe, M.L.C.

Commissioner of Public Works and Minister of Mines and Marine.—Hon. R. Butler, M.P.

The Ministers have a salary of 1,000*l.* per annum each. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Hon. A. A. Kirkpatrick.

Secretary and Registrar of Stock.—J. B. Whiting.

The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. The ratepayers have the power of levying rates, &c., and applying the funds for road-making purposes. There are 17 counties, blocks of country thrown open for agricultural purposes. There are extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern. There are 11 municipalities and 147 district councils.

Area and Population.

The original boundaries of the State, according to the statute of 4 Will IV. cap. 95, were fixed between 132° and 141° E. long. for the eastern and [REDACTED] boundaries, the 26° of S. lat. for the northern limit, and for the South the Southern Ocean. The boundaries were subsequently extended, under [REDACTED] of [REDACTED] and Victoria, cap. 44. By Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1868, all the territory lying northward of 26° S. latitude [REDACTED] between [REDACTED] and 138th degree of [REDACTED] longitude, and [REDACTED] known as the Northern Territory (see below), was added. On January 1, 1911, this Territory [REDACTED] transferred to the Commonwealth. Total area of South [REDACTED] proper is 380,070 square miles, i.e., excluding the Northern Territory (523,620 square miles).

Constitution [REDACTED] Government.

Western Australia became a British settlement in 1829; in 1870 partially representative government [REDACTED] instituted, and in 1890 the administration [REDACTED] vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council [REDACTED] in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it [REDACTED] provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective. In [REDACTED] this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated 18th July of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No. 14) amending the constitution.

By [REDACTED] Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further [REDACTED] by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for 5 years. Members must be 21 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 2 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease license from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 60 members, each representing an electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, and either be natural born subjects of the Crown or naturalized for 5 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months and be on the roll, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Electors for both Houses may be of either sex. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds an sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 300l per year and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State.

TASMANIA

Constitution and Government.

Tasmania became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales; in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated; in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established and in 1856 responsible government was introduced into operation. There was a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly called the Parliament of Tasmania. The Legislative Council is composed of eighteen members elected by all natural-born or naturalised subjects of the Crown who possess either a freehold worth 100. s. year, or a leasehold of 300. s. or are barristers or solicitors on roll of Supreme Court, medical practitioners duly qualified, and all subjects holding a commission, or possessing a degree. Each member is elected for six years. Members of the Legislative Council, and also of the House of Assembly, are paid 1500. per annum, and have the right of free railway passage. The House of Assembly consists of thirty members, elected by all natural-born or naturalised subjects who have continuously resided in Tasmania for over 12 months. The Assembly is elected for three years. The number of electors for the Legislative Council in 1911 was 25,413 (19,872 males, 5,541 females), or 1.1 per cent. (estimated on population of 190,316), for the House of Assembly, April 30th, 1912, 103,500 (52,853 males, 50,646 females), or 5.4 per cent. (estimated on mean population of 190,316). The legislative authority is vested in the Houses, and the executive is vested in the Governor or Administrator appointed by the Crown.

Governor.—Rt. Hon. W. Ellison Macartney (from March, 1913).

Lieut.-Governor and Chief Justice.—Sir J. S. Dodds, K.C.M.G. (1,500/).

The Governor is aided in the exercise of the executive by a cabinet of responsible ministers, consisting of four members, as follows (in June, 1912):—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. A. E. Solomon, M.H.A.

Chief Secretary.—Hon. G. H. Butler, M.R.C.S., M.L.C.

Minister for Lands, Works and Mines.—Hon. E. Mulcahy, M.H.A.

Treasurer.—Hon. H. J. M. Payne, M.H.A.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. C. Russell

Each of the ministers has a salary of 750/ per annum. The Premier has 200/ a year. The ministers must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. John McCall, M.D.

Secretary.—Herbert W. Ely.

Offices.—5, Victoria Street, Westminster.

Revenue Expenditure.

The revenue is derived chiefly from duties, licences, railways, and other public services, and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. The customs, postal and telegraph, and defence services are in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25c. per head of population is returned to the State.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed by Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, to South Australia. On the establishment of Federation in 1901, the Territory entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of the State of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1901 made provision for the surrender of the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, by the Commonwealth and South Australia for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the former. After the necessary legislation approving this agreement had been passed by the two parliaments concerned, the Territory formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911. The Commonwealth at the same time assumed responsibility for the State loans contracted by South Australia on behalf of the territory, it took over by purchase the railway from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta, and it undertook to construct a transcontinental railway from Pine Creek southwards to the boundary of South Australia, and to connect these two railways. The cost of these obligations to the Federal Government is stated as follows:—Public Debt of Northern Territory at June 30, 1909, 2,719,000/; deficit, 780,000/; cost of Port Augusta railway, 2,242,000/; estimated cost of transcontinental railway, 4,500,000/; total, 10,241,000/.

The South Australian laws remain in force until the Federal Government decrees otherwise by Ordinance. Several Ordinances were passed in 1911 and 1912.

Administrator—Dr J. A. Githuth, D.V.Sc., M.R.C.V.S., F.R.S.E.

Area and Population.

The Northern Territory is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,820 square miles. The area alienated at the end of 1911 amounted to 478,282 acres absolutely, 106,282,447 acres were held under leases and licences, and the remainder, 228,361,121 acres, was unoccupied. The coast line exceeds 1,300 miles. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal harbour being Port Darwin, where Darwin is situated. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with small rainfall, but it is watered by numerous artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but considerably cooler in the whole Territory. The proximity of the coast to the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

Population—The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows:—

Year	Europeans	Others	Total
1871	670	2,765	3,435
1891	1,144	3,784	4,928
1901	1,065	3,041	4,096
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1911 (31st Dec.)	1,729	1,519	3,248

Of the Census total 113,000 the total at the end of 1911, 686 were females.

The aborigines are estimated at number about 20,000, but it is possible this is an under-estimate.

The tribes inhabiting the Northern Territory are Larakaya and Worgait at Port Darwin, Melville Island Tribe, Port Essington Tribe, Djanan Tribe at Katherine Creek, Yangman Tribe round Elsey Creek, Mungari Tribe along the upper part of the Roper River, Nullakun Tribe middle part of the Roper River, and the Mara Tribe south of the Roper River.

Finance.

The revenue derived by the Commonwealth in 1910-11 was 25,578*l.*; the expenditure, 66,080*l.*

The revenue is derived mainly from Customs and Excise, Posts and Telegraphs, railways and Crown lands. The main heads of expenditure are interest, postal department, gold-fields and mining, works and buildings, police, and railways.

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but it is stated that most products known to the tropical and temperate zones can be grown successfully. At present, however, agriculture is insignificant. In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock. The numbers of stock at the end of 1911 were:—cattle, 460,000; horses, 21,400; sheep, 51,000; pigs, 1,500.

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The total value of the production of metals and minerals up to the end of December, 1910, and in 1911, is given as follows:—

	Total to 1910	1911		Total to 1910	1911
	£	£		£	£

Tin	304,000	22,980
			Total	2,746,000	59,350

The number of miners in 1911 was 676, of whom 101 were Europeans and 575 Chinese.

Commerce.

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.

TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

This possession is the south eastern part of the island of Guinea with the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups, and all islands between 8° and 12° S latitude, and 141° and 155° longitude. It is bounded on the west by the Dutch and on the north by the German possessions. Area, 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On June 30, 1911, the population was as follows—European, 1,032, coloured, (other than Papuan), 280, Papuans (estimated), 270,745.

The government of British New Guinea is founded on the British New Guinea Act of November, 1887, and Letters Patent issued June 8, 1888. The cost of the administration to the extent of 15,000*l* a year formerly contributed in equal proportions by New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901; the political transfer completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and September 1, 1906, a proclamation issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea is to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of official members, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and three non-official members nominated by the Governor-General of Australia.

Lieut.-Governor and Chief Judicial Officer—Hon J H P. Murray.

Government Secretary—Hon Alexander Malcolm Campbell.

Tribes have largely settled down to peaceful habits. Four missionary bodies are at work, many thousands of natives being taught by these bodies. Three hundred thousand of land have been leased, principally by planters, and plantation work has commenced with energy, principal cultures being coconuts, rubber, hemp, and Murva fibre. Cotton, vanilla, kapoc, cocoa, tapioca, cinnamon, and tobacco also being cultivated. Suitable areas may be obtained from the Crown. By the Papua Act 1905, freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained on low rentals for long terms. On hundreds of square miles indigenous is growing and there is at least 250,000 acres covered with native owned coconut trees. The contain valuable timbers, in easily accessible by river; the and palm plentiful, sandal-wood, ebony, gums, rattans, other forest products found.

There are four ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, Daru, Bougain (Woodlark Island).

There are 11 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 13 relieving and 13 assistant resident magistrates, and 11 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government simple regulations have been passed. There are 11 village policemen, armed constabulary, 250 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. A subsidy of 30,000/ was given by the Australian Government in 1911-12, in addition to revenue, also a loan of 5,000/ for the establishment of Government plantations, 25,000/ will be lent for this purpose spread over 5 years to be repaid from profits on the plantations.

There are 8 proclaimed mineral fields in the Territory, seven of which are gold fields, and 1 copper. Gold mining is the most important industry, and claims the attention of 144 adult Europeans. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area of Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and a number of shows are being extensively developed. Copper ore exports in 1909, 1,341/, in 1910-11, 1,489/, in 1911-12, 12,886/. In 1907 the gold output was valued at 39,710/, 1908, 52,837/; 1909, 54,969/, 1910, 59,247/, 1911, 62,112/. The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware, exports, trepang, copra, pearl shell, gold, pearls, sandal wood, coffee, rubber. Number of horses (1911), 1, cattle, 1,149, mules, 116.

Large steamers trade fortnightly between Sydney and Port Moresby and small coastal steamers run at frequent regular intervals between the various inter territorial ports. Oil launches and motor launches are also employed in the local trade.

NEW ZEALAND.

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council of September 9, 1907, and by Proclamation, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand (officially established as a Colony in 1840), on and from September 26 1907. The present form of government established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., 72, passed in 1852. The Colony divided into provinces, afterwards increased to nine. By a subsequent Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. 221, passed in 1875, the provincial system of government was abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were ordered to be exercised by the Governor or by local boards. The legislative power vested in the Governor and a 'General Assembly' consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He sends drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists (September, 1914) of thirty nine members, who are paid at the rate of 200*l* per annum. Those appointed before September 17, 1891, life members, but those appointed after that date hold their seats for years only, though they are eligible for reappointment. The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maoris, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 300*l* per annum. Every registered male elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. Women cannot be members of either branch of the Legislature. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and three months in one electoral district, is a registered elector. No person may be registered on the Maori electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in one of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) is not registered as any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

At the general election in 1911 there were 590,042 (321,038 men and 269,009 women) electors on the rolls, who returned 77 European members to the House of Representatives; for the four Maori members

11,768 votes of Natives recorded. For European and one Maori Electorate there was no election, the sitting member being returned unopposed in each. In 1911 there was one European member in the House of Representatives to every 13,354 persons, and one Maori member about 12,461 Natives. The proportion of European electors to population in the year 1906 was one every 1·8 persons.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings. County councils are empowered to constitute road districts on petition being made. Besides the road districts, which are very numerous, there are town, drainage, and water supply districts and river tramway and harbour boards.

The ratepayers in the road districts of a county are qualified as electors for the purposes of the county council, and the members of each road board are elected by the ratepayers of the district.

AREA AND Population.

There are two principal islands, the North and South Islands, Stewart Island, and several outlying islands, including (since 1901), the Chatham Islands and other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 100 miles across at its broadest part; the population is 2,000,000.

miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia. Area, including all islands, 104,751 square miles. North Island 44,468 square miles, South Island 58,525, Stewart Island 1,758 square miles. Acreage 66,861,440, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1912, 28,918,464 had been alienated, including lands reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes (11,942,428 acres). Estimated population (June 30, 1912), Europeans, 1,034,439, Maoris, 49,844, Cook Islanders, 12,598; total, 1,096,881. Population exclusive of aborigines —

Population of the North Island, 1911, 563,729; South Island, 444,152, Stewart Island, 325; Chatham Islands 258; Kermadec Islands 4. Total population, 1911, 1,058,312, including 49,844 Maoris (26,475 males, 23,369 females), 2,630 Chinese (88 females). There were 2,879 half-castes, members of Maori tribes.

In 1911, 496,545 lived in the rural districts; 505,598 in boroughs.

In 1911 there were nine towns with over 10,000 inhabitants, Auckland, 40,536, with suburbs, 102,676; Wellington (the seat of Government), 64,372, with suburbs, 70,729; Christchurch, 53,116, with suburbs, 80,193; Dunedin, 41,529, with suburbs, 64,237; Invercargill, 12,782, with suburbs, 15,858; Wanganui, 10,929, with suburbs, 14,702; Napier, 10,537, with suburbs, 11,736; Timaru, 11,280; and Palmerston North, 10,991.

Excluding Maoris, in 1911, 996,418 persons, or 98·80 per cent., were subjects. Of these, 702,779, or 69·74 per cent., were born in New Zealand, 228,684, or 22·9 per cent., in the United Kingdom (188,811 in England, 2,206 in Wales, 51,709 in Scotland, and 40,958 in Ireland). Foreign subjects numbered 12,050, or 1·20 per cent. of the population.

Excluding Chinese, 61·80 per cent. were unmarried; 34·21 per cent. married; and 3·99 widowers or widows.

In 1911, 550,000 (54·97 per cent.) were dependants; 131,000 (12·95 per cent.) agricultural, pastoral, mineral, and other primary producers; 134,000 (13·24 per cent.) industrial; 102,000 (10·13 per cent.) commercial; 44,000 (4·39 per cent.) domestic; 33,000 (3·25 per cent.) professional; and 10,000 (1·07 per cent.) indefinite occupation.

In 1911, 41·14 per cent. of the population (exclusive of Maoria) belonged to Church of England, Presbyterians, 9·43 per cent. Methodists, other Protestant sects being Baptists, Independents, Lutherans, Friends, Unitarians. The total Protestants numbered 808,801, and Roman Catholics and Catholics undefined, 140,528 or 1· per cent. of population. There were 2,128 Jews, 1,501 Pagans, 35,905 who objected to their religion.

Instruction.

The University of New Zealand is solely an examining body, with an annual grant of £3,000. The number of graduates admitted after examination is 1,631. There are four affiliated colleges—the Otago University at Dunedin, with 37 professors and lecturers; the Canterbury College at Christchurch, with 22 professors and lecturers; the Auckland University College, with 17 professors and lecturers; and the Victoria College at Wellington with 11 professors and lecturers. They are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1911 there were 32 incorporated endowed secondary schools, with 340 teachers and 5,465 pupils. Total income, 1910, £157,461, less than half from endowments and Government payments. There were also 11 District High Schools with 87 teachers and 1,790 scholars. Children receiving secondary instruction at Technical Day Schools numbered 1,841 at the end of 1911.

For primary schools there is an Education Department. There are 13 Education Local Boards, with about 1,300 School Committees. There are 2,166 public primary schools, 4,551 teachers, 161,648 scholars on the rolls; average attendance, 142,186. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free. Where there are no secondary schools classes may be formed in the public school for extra subjects, for which special subsidies are given.

There are 326 private schools, with 993 teachers and 19,868 pupils; 7 schools of mines; 4 normal schools, 5 central schools of art; 12 industrial schools, with 2,617 children or young persons; a school for deaf mutes, with 97 pupils; an institute for the blind (at Auckland), and a special school for mentally backward boys at Otago.

There are 104 Native village schools, with 227 teachers and 4,557 scholars; and 9 boarding schools providing secondary education for native children, of which 128 Government scholars are under instruction; and 11 mission schools, with 230 pupils. Total net expenditure by Government on Native schools in 1911 was £35,881. Total expenditure in 1911-12 upon education of all kinds £1,294,000.

Justice and Crime.

There are six supreme court judges, and thirty stipendiary magistrates. There are 11 Magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

At the end of 1911 the gaols contained 111 prisoners.

Pauperism.

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests at the rate of 10s in the pound; voluntary contributions, in the pound, and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 12s in the pound to 24s 3d in the pound, according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended 31st March, 1912, was 98,822l. During 1911 the benevolent asylums accommodated 2,649 inmates, 2,617 children (1,594 boys and 1,023 girls) wholly or partly maintained by the Government in industrial schools and other institutions.

Age Pensions.

In 1905 an Act, amended in 1905 and consolidated in 1908, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions, is entitled to a pension of 26l a year. The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 90l (including pensions). Total pensions on March 31, 1912, 16,649, representing a yearly payment of 418,530l, the average pension being 25l 0s 4d.

Budget estimates, 1912-1913: Revenue, 11,005,660l; expenditure, 10,868,068l.

The expenditure out of the Public Works Fund from 1870 to March 31, 1912, was 55,027,456l, including charges and expenses for raising loans.

The rate of the ordinary land tax in 1909-10 was 1d. in the pound on the unimproved value. There is a graduated land tax, rising from one-sixteenth of a penny in the pound on unimproved values from 5,000l. to 7,000l., thence by progressive values up to 200,000l. or over, the maximum tax of 2½ per centum being then reached. Previous Acts consolidated under the Statute of 1882. The graduated tax is increased by ½ per cent. in the case of absentees, but the absentee tax does not apply to companies, but to shareholders in companies. For and after the year ended March 31, 1910, the progressive graduated scale over 40,000£ is increased by 25 per cent. in the case of all land other than "business premises." The average taxation per head of the population, excluding Maoris, in 1911-12, was 5£ 3s 10d.

Year ended March 31	Public debt			Charge			Interest Treasury Bills
	Debentures and Stock	Sinking Fund	Net debt		Sinking Fund

1 The reduction in the amount of the sinking funds shown in 1912 is due to the fact that a system of accounts has been introduced into the Treasury, and the following items included with the Sinking Funds in previous years were excluded as not being strictly part of the Sinking Funds proper, i.e., Reserve Funds Accumulated, 800,000£; Bank of New Zealand Preference Shares, 500,000£, and New Zealand Consols held by the New Zealand Government, 847,150£, on March 31, 1912. For each of the years 1908 to 1911, the two items were the same, and the last item amounted to 840,571£ in 1908; 877,765£ in 1909; 805,840£ in 1910, and 885,340£ in 1911.

The net debt per head of population on March 31, 1912, amounted to 79£ 18s 8d.

Defence.

New Zealand is a party to the Naval Agreement between Great Britain and Australasia (see under Commonwealth of Australia)

New Zealand passed a Defence Act in 1909, amended 1910, which provides for the gradual military training of every male New Zealander from the age of 12 to the age of 25, after which he will serve in the Reserve up to the age of 30. There are no distinctions and no exceptions except for the physically unfit. From 12 to 14 the boy is a junior cadet, from 14 to 18 a senior cadet, from 18 to 25 he becomes a soldier in the Territorial Force, from 25 to 30 he belongs to the Reserve. Senior cadets do 12 drills and a musketry course each year. The soldier in the Territorial Force does 7 clear days' annual training and a musketry course, besides 12 drills and a whole day parades but there are modifications to meet the requirements of local conditions in certain directions.

The Territorial Force is about 29,000 strong, and is organised in field and coast defence units with practically the same establishment for peace as for war. In each of the four military districts into which the Dominion is divided there is a brigade of infantry, a brigade of mounted rifles and a brigade of field artillery, as well as 9 companies of garrison artillery for coast defence and a field company of engineers besides medical units and other departmental troops. An infantry brigade will include four battalions and a signal company, a mounted brigade, three regiments of mounted rifles and a signal company, and a brigade of artillery, two four-gun batteries. The force will be fully armed and equipped according to the most modern standard. It is estimated that the annual cost of the scheme when carried out completely will be 400,000/. It will take several years before the scheme is in complete working order.

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand is suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 17,000,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under crop (including 14,214,741 acres of grasses and 209,973 acres broken up) in 1911, was 16,154,218 acres, excluding 111,672 acres in gardens, orchards, and plantations. The area of Crown lands surveyed and open for selection on March 31, 1912, was 1,242,473 acres.

The largest freehold holdings are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1911 is as follows—

Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres	Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres
1 to 10	12,751	81,897	5,001 to 10,000 acres	526

Deducting Crown lands under pastoral leases, the area of occupied land in 1911 was 29,236,793 acres, in 1901, 26,982,486 acres, in 1891, 19,951,925 acres.

In 1911 there were 110,025 persons engaged in agricultural and pastoral pursuits.

COMMERCE

111

In 1911 the imports duty free (excluding 763,271 specie) amounted to 9,416,496; subject to duty, 9,366,112.

	Imports	Exports of Domestic Produce	Exports of other Produce	Total Exports
1907	17,000,000	19,781,138	285,816	20,066,954
1908	17,471,284	15,894,730	422,964	16,317,694

1911	19,545,879	18,751,000	246,493	19,028,490

The quantities and values of imports are obtained from Customs entries verified by invoices and, where necessary, with goods subject to an excise duty, by the Collector of Customs. For exports the 'free on board' value is given, but the Collector of Customs carefully examines the current price lists to prevent any over-estimate. Goods transhipped at a foreign port are regarded as imported from the country where they were originally shipped, and exports are destined for the country where it is intended to land. The countries named, however, may not be those of origin or destination as no attempt is made to trace the goods beyond the ports disclosed by the documents presented to Customs. Very little cargo transits New Zealand.

For the year ended March 31 1912 the value of imports was £20,445,396, and of exports £19,028,490. The principal imports and exports in 1911 are given as follows—

Articles of Import	Value	Articles of Export	Value

FIJI.

Constitution and Government.

FIJI was ceded by the chiefs and people of Fiji on October 10, 1874. The government is administered by a Governor appointed by the Crown, assisted by an Executive Council consisting of the Chief Justice, Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Native Commissioner, the Hon. A. C. Coates, Agent-General of Immigration, and the Hon. R. S. D. Rankine, Receiver-General. The Council is passed by a Legislative Council, of which the Governor is president. It comprises ten official members, six members, and two native members.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific — Sir Ernest Bickham Sweet Escott, K C Salary 3,000l (and 1,000l from Imperial funds)

Colonial Secretary — Hon Eyre Hutson, C M G

The Governor is High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific

There is a constabulary consisting of natives and Indians, and a 'Police Association' under the supervision of Government

For the purposes of native government the colony is divided into 17 provinces, 10 of which a superior native chief exercises, under the title of Roko Tui a form of rule which recognises to a large degree the principles of native administration by which the people formerly governed themselves. In seven of the provinces there are European magistrates. About 186 native chiefs of inferior degree are employed in subordinate administrative capacities. There are also 31 native stipendiary magistrates associated with 17 European magistrates in the administration of justice. A European commissioner, who is also Government medical officer, resides in Rotumah.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of over 200 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 20° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,250 square miles, next Vanua Levu, 2,600 square miles. The island of Rotumah, between 12° and 15° of south latitude, and 175° and 177° east longitude, is added to the colony. Total area, including Rotumah 7,485 square miles.

At the census of April 2, 1911, the population was 139,541, the Europeans, 3,707 (2,408 males, 1,304 females), Fijians, 87,096 (46,110 males, 40,986 females), Rotumans, 2,176 (1,048 males, 1,138 females), Indians, 40,286 (26,078 males, 14,213 females), Polynesians, 2,758 (2,429 males, 329 females), Chinese, 305 (276 males, 29 females), others, 3,213 (1,674 males, 1,539 females). On December 31, 1911 the estimated population was 142,761.

Among Europeans in 1911 the births were 90 and deaths 11, among Fijians, births 3,298, deaths 3,851, among Indians, births 1,271, deaths 791.

PACIFIC ISLANDS

TONGA

• (FRIENDLY ISLANDS.)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 8, 1886. By the Anglo German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States, the Tonga Islands were left practically under the Protectorate of Great Britain. A Protectorate was proclaimed over Tonga on May 19, 1900. In December, 1900, the British High Commissioner, with the assent of the King and native chiefs, assumed the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over all subjects of Foreign Powers in Tonga, and the supervision of the financial administration.

King—George II, born June 18, 1874, succeeded his great grandfather, George Tubou, in 1898, married June 1st, 1899, to Lavinia, who died in April, 1901. He married again in 1901.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets every three years, composed one half of hereditary nobles, who hold their office subject to good behaviour, and half of representatives elected for three years by the people, every adult male who has paid his taxes and is not criminally incapacitated being qualified to vote.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tonga, Haapai, and Vavau, and lies between 15° and 28° 30' south, and 178° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. Area, 360 square miles, population, census, April, 1911, 23,011 Tongans, 946 Pacific Islanders, and 880 Europeans. Capital, Nukualofa. The natives are Christian, mostly Wesleyan Methodists. The revenue, chiefly from customs (28,232 £ = 1911), a poll tax and leases (no land being sold), amounted in 1911 to 51,050 £ and the expenditure to 50,012 £. Native produce consists mostly of copra, green fruit, mats, tapa (a textile from bark), and fungus. Imports, 1910, 218,309 £, 1911, 228,101 £, exports, 1910, 245,946 £, 1911, 240,108 £. The imports include specul (40,377 £ = 1911), drapery (40,188 £ in 1911), bread stuffs, meats and beverages, and the exports, copra, 231,479 £ in 1911, green fruit, 5,545 £. The imports are chiefly from Australia and New Zealand. The exports chiefly to Australia, New Zealand, and Germany. In 1911 56 vessels of 105,324 aggregate tonnage entered and 123,444 tons cleared (mainly British). Two boats of the New Zealand Union Steamship Company visit each of the 3 Tongan groups every two weeks, one running from Auckland to Tonga, Samoa, Fiji, and Sydney; the other going in the inverse order.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is the only legal tender. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

High Commissioner—Consul-General for the Western Pacific—Sir Francis Henry May, K C M G.

Agent—Consul—W. Telfer Campbell.

In the sections devoted to New Guinea, New Wales and New Hebrides mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached:—

DUCIE ISLAND, 24° 40' S lat, 124° 48' W long. PITCAIRN ISLAND, 25° 5' S, 130° 5' W, area 2 sq m, pop 1911, 145 (40 adult males, 11 adult females, 4 children aged 6 to 16, and 17 children under 8 years). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Parliament of 7 members with a President, a Vice President, and a Judge. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Pounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists'. The products of the island are sweet potatoes, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows, and its cultivation will probably extend. On the island there are about 100 wild goats and a small stock of chickens. Pigs formerly common are extinct. The British Government has relieved them of liability to repay an advance of 200*l* granted in 1902. DUDOZA ISLAND, 7° 40' S lat, 161° W long, area 2 sq m. VICTORIA ISLAND, area 2 sq m uninhabited. UNION, TOKELAU GROUP, between 8° 30' and 11° S lat, and 171° and 172° W long. Five clusters of islets, the principal of which are Fakaofo or Bowditch, Nukunono, Duke of Clarence, Atafu or Duke of York, Nassau, Danger, area of group, 7 sq m, pop 912 natives and 2 Europeans (1911). The islands are included in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Protectorate. PHOENIX GROUP, between 2° and 4° 30' S lat, and 171° and 174° 30' W long. Eight islands. Mary, Enderbury, Ithania, Birney, Gardner, McKean, Hull, Sydney, area of group 16 sq m, pop 59. ELISE ISLANDS, between 5° and 11° 20' S lat, and 176 and 180° E long. The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetau, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Nintao (or Lynx, Speiden), Nanainiga (or Hudson), Nanomea (or St Augustine), Nukulaele (or Mitchell), Nurukita (or Gohira), area of group 14 sq m, pop (1911), 3,084 natives, 4 Europeans and 1 Asiatic. GILBERT ISLANDS, on the equator. The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaiang, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Auaunka, Nounouti, Taputea, Beri, Nukunau, Onotoa, Imanua, Atoa, and Ocean Islands. Area 166 sq m, estimated pop (1911) 26,417 natives and 448 foreigners. Revenue of the Protectorate, which includes the Gilbert, Ellice, and Union groups, was 21,631*l* in 1911, and expenditure, 17,965*l*. The trade in 1911 amounted to 75,421*l* for imports, and 238,950*l* for exports (142,163 tons phosphates from Ocean Islands, value 213,250*l*, and 2,070 tons copra, value 20,700*l*). BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS, about 8° S and 160° W, include Guadalcanar, Malaita, Isakel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongu, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ougiong Java, and the Santa Cruz Islands are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). Area 14,800 sq m, European population (1912), 500, native population, about 150,000. They are under British Protection. Revenue (1911-12), 16,040*l*, expenditure, 22,689*l*. About 18,000 acres planted by white planters, 1000 under coco, 1000 March, 1911, and about 800 under rubber, sweet potatoes, pineapples, bananas are grown, 60 acres were under cotton in March, 1910. From these islands in 1903, 1000 labourers were recruited for Queensland. Recruiting ceased at the end of 1903, in March, 1904, there were about 6,000 of the islanders in Queensland, but there is a steady stream of returning labourers. The value of imports in 1910-11 was 103,147*l*, and copra, pearl shell, very nuts, &c, were exported to the value of 88,890*l*. PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

(UNITED STATES ■ AMERICA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted ■ adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged independence of the United States, and ■ September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based ■ the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, ■ which ten amendments ■ added Dec. 15, 1791; ■ eleventh amendment Jan. 8, 1798; a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804; ■ thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865; ■ fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868; and ■ fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870.

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted ■ three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested ■ ■ President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with ■ Vice-President chosen for the ■ term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—‘Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress but ■ senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.’ The practice is that in ■ State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, ■ the system known in France ■ scrutin de liste. The Constitution ■ that ‘the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the ■ throughout the United States’; and further, that ‘no person except ■ natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained ■ the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States’.

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November; the electors meet and give their votes at their respective State capitals ■ the second Monday in January next following their appointment; and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened ■ counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President ■ commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice-President is ex-officio President of the Senate; and in the ■ of the death ■ resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, born ■ Staunton, Virginia, December 28, 1856; educated ■ Princeton University (1875–1879), Associate Professor at Bryn Mawr College (1885–1888); Professor of Political Economy at Wesleyan University (1888–1890); ■ Jurisprudence and politics at Princeton University (1890–1902); President of Princeton University (1902–1910); Governor of New Jersey (1911–1913).

Vice-President of ■ States.—Thomas Riley Marshall, of Indiana, born 1854; admitted ■ the bar, 1877; Governor of Indiana, 1897–1900.

The President of the United States receives an annual salary of 75,000 dollars, with an additional allowance of 25,000 dollars for travelling expenses, and the Vice-President 12,000 dollars.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice-President have been occupied as follows:—

By a law which came into force Jan. 19, 1886, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State, and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice-President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice-President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by nine chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department, and acts under the immediate authority of the President. The heads of departments are (March, 1913):—

1 Secretary of State—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, born in Illinois, 1860, educated at Illinois College, admitted to the bar, 1888; Member of Congress, 1891-95; Candidate for President of the United States, 1896, 1900, 1908. Present appointment, March 5, 1913.

7. Attorney-General.—James Clark McInynolds, of Tennessee, born in Kentucky, 1851; Professor in Vanderbilt University Law School, Tennessee, 1900-1903; Assistant Attorney General of the United States, 1903-12. Present appointment, March 5, 1913.

8. Secretary of Agriculture.—David Franklin Houston, of Missouri, born in South Carolina, 1866; has held professorships in several southern colleges and been President of the University of Texas; recently, Chancellor of the Washington University of St. Louis, Missouri. Present appointment, March 5, 1913.

9. Secretary of Commerce.—William C. Redfield, of New York, born in New York, 1858; Member of Congress, 1911-13. Present appointment, March 5, 1913.

10. Secretary of Labour.—William Baughman Wilson, of Pennsylvania, born in Scotland, 1862; Secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, 1900-1909; Member of Congress, 1907-1913. Present appointment, March 5, 1913.

The Ministry for Labour was created in 1913.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 12,000 dollars, and holds office during the pleasure of the President.

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by the State Legislatures for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age; must have been citizens of the United States for nine years; and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President; and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote. In general such voters are all male citizens 21 years of age. Neither race nor colour affects the right of citizens. The franchise is not absolutely universal; residence for at least one year in most States (in Rhode Island and Kentucky two years, in Michigan and Maine three months) is necessary, in some States the payment of taxes, in others registration. On the other hand many of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from another—too complicated for explanation here, with the express and avowed purpose of excluding the negro from the franchise, and yet avoiding the constitutional prohibition of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters; in Massachusetts males are required to be able to read English. In the Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Wyoming (1869), Colorado (1893), Utah (1896), Idaho (1896), Washington (1910), California, Arizona, Kansas and Oregon (1912), admit all males to the franchise on equal terms with whites. The number of members to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years. By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910, the number of representatives is 435.

In 1912 with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico it became 496, distributed as follows —

Alabama	10	Maryland	6	Oregon	3
Arizona	1	Massachusetts	11	Pennsylvania	36
Arkansas	7	Michigan	11	Rhode Island	1
California	11	Minnesota	10	South Carolina	3
Colorado	6	Mississippi	6	South Dakota	1

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants. The popular vote for President in 1912 was 15,041,658, or about one in six of the entire population. In 1910 there were in the States, which alone participate in elections of President and representatives, 28,999,151 males of voting age, 21 years and over, including 8,829,581 of foreign birth, naturalised and unnaturalised.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits 'delegates' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its members', and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the Constitution. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, or the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 7,500 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No person shall be a representative during the term for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States while he shall have been created, or hold, emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his term of office. No religious test is required as a qualification for holding any public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually called 'a Congress' is legislative language, continues are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some States both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained in the national constitution, leaves this source of revenue to the States exclusively.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people in the whole State. His term of office varies from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 1,000 to 10,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment in State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three-fifths or two-thirds majority.

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.), are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its adherents.

In a Territory (Hawaii is now the only Territory) there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the Federal President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self-governing. Its government is organized on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and a mixed commission of Americans and natives, appointed by the President. Alaska has no power of self-government.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 68 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal elections. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (selectmen, clerk, school-committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though sometimes divided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general no special functions, as the duties of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North-Western States are two systems of local government, one mixed. In the West the public lands are already divided into townships six miles square.

II MOVEMENT OF POPULATION

There is as yet no national system of registration of births, deaths, and marriages in the United States. The birth rate computed for 1900, of infants under 1 year of age living at the close of the Census year and of those who were born and died during that year, was 21.1 per 1,000, but is acknowledged to be too low. Death rates are computed from certain areas, where registration records are kept. In these areas, now include California, Colorado, Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina (municipalities of 1,000 population and over in 1900) Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, the District of Columbia, and cities in registration. The estimated population for the registration area in 1910 was 53,843,896, or over half (58.8 per cent) of the total estimated population of Continental United States, and the number of deaths returned for that year was 805,412, or 15.0 per 1,000 of population.

In 1909, 853,290 marriages and 72,062 divorces were recorded in the United States. Marriage and divorce rates, computed on the basis of the 1900 population and the annual averages of marriage and divorce from 1898 to 1902, are as follows:

Marriage rate per 10,000, based on total population, 14.1, based on population over 15 years of age, 14.1, based on unmarried population over 15 years of age, 32.1. Divorce rate per 10,000, based on total population, 7.3, based on married population, 20.0.

The number of marriages and divorces by States is as follows:

Of the total increase of 15,977,691 the population of the country between 1880 and 1910, whites contributed 14,923,781, negroes 904,714, and other races, 61,161. The increase in the native population was 12,803,961, and that in the foreign born 3,173,610, about one fifth of the total.

The percentage of increase for the whites was 23.1, and for negroes, 11.2. The native white population increased 20.8 per cent, and the foreign-born white, 30.7 per cent.

In 1910 whites constituted 98.9 per cent of the total population, as compared with 97.9 per cent in 1900. Native whites, however, constituted a slightly smaller proportion of the total in the later year than in the earlier, while foreign born whites formed 1.1 per cent of the total in 1910, compared with 1.1 per cent ten years

Instruction.

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law. The work of these is largely supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1906 the percentage of illiterates in the population was ten years of age 17 per cent, in 1908 13·3 per cent, in 1910 10·7 per cent, in 1910 7·7 per cent. The following statistics are for 1910—

The Government has for elementary schools in States, from two to four 'sections' (or square miles) in each township six miles square, the proceeds of the sale of which form the part of the permanent school funds of States, the income alone being for the support of the schools. This income is supplemented by State local taxation, so that it constitutes about 3.3 per cent. of the total school revenue of all the States. In 1909-10 the amount expended in public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 428,250,434 dollars. In 1910 the 494 universities and colleges, including the 352 co-educational colleges and the 142 colleges for men only, had an income of 70,667,865 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations. The colleges for women had an income of 7,205,502 dollars.

The following table is for 1909-10. School statistics for States will be found under the several States:—

Justice Crime

The judicial system like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The General Government maintains courts for the trial of civil cases arising out of the admiralty, patent, banking, and other laws of the United States, of certain cases between citizens of different States, and of crimes against the United States. Almost all offences against the person and against property are dealt with by the State courts, also all civil cases where the parties are residents of the same State, and matters of probate, divorce, and bankruptcy (when, as now, there is no national bankruptcy law).

In the separate States the lowest courts are those held by Justices of the Peace, or, in towns and cities by Police Judges. In the counties, courts of record are held, some by local county officers, others by District or Circuit Judges, who sit from county to county. In these courts there are usually the grand and petty jury. The highest court in each State is the Supreme Court, or Court of Final Appeal, with a Chief Justice and Associate Judges. These judges are usually elected by the people, but sometimes appointed by the Governor, with or without the Senate or Council, they usually hold office for terms of years, but sometimes practically for life during good behaviour. Their salaries vary from 2,500 dollars to 7,500 dollars.

The judges of the United States Courts are appointed for life. Of the United States Courts the lowest are those of the districts of which there are about 80, each State forming one or more districts. These courts may try any case of crime against the United States not punishable with death. Each of the nine Justices of the Supreme Court must hold a Court in one of the nine circuits into which the country is divided at least once every two years. There are also circuit courts of appeal. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and eight Associate Judges, appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. It deals with appeals from inferior courts, and has original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign ministers and consuls, and those in which a State is a party. The Chief Justice has a salary of 15,000 dollars, and each of the Associate Judges 14,500 dollars.

Other courts with criminal jurisdiction are the Court of the District of Columbia and those of the Territories.

Pauperism

A special report of the U S Census Bureau gives the number of paupers in almshouses on December 31, 1890. The number of almshouses reported on was 2,748, and the number of pauper inmates, compared with numbers on June 1, 1890, and on June 1, 1880, was as follows, the proportion per 100,000 of population in each year being also shown —

1908	2,626,806,272	1912	2,868,873,874

The net debt—that is, what remains after deducting the cash in the Treasury—was 1,027,574,697 dollars on June 30, 1912. About one hundred and eighteen and one half millions of the interest bearing debt is at 4 per cent, and the rest at 2½ and 3 per cent.

In 1900 the true value of property was estimated at 88,517,806,775 dollars. In 1904, at 107,104,192,410 dollars.

II STATE FINANCE

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal; and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence

I ARMY

The military forces consist of a Federal regular army obtained by voluntary enlistment, of the National Guard (also obtained by voluntary enlistment), which belongs to the different States, and of a reserve to the National Guard which is unorganised but known as a levée en masse.

In the regular army enlistment is for seven years, of which four years are spent with the colours and the remaining three on furlough—practically in the reserve. Enlistment for a further term of seven years is allowed under certain circumstances. The pay of a private in any branch of the army is 15 dollars a month (about 2s a day) at first, but the soldier can obtain 'continuous service' pay, that after three years he may be drawing 18 dollars a month, equivalent to about 2s 6d a day. The minimum height is nominally 5 feet 4 inches, and the chest measurement 32 inches, but a certain relaxation of standards is allowed.

The U.S. Infantry is organised in 30 regiments of 3 battalions, each of 4 companies, the ordinary peace strength of a company being 3 officers and 100 men. The Porto Rico regiment (natives), now a part of the regular establishment, has 4 battalions of 4 companies. There are 15 cavalry regiments of 3 squadrons, of the same strength as infantry companies; the cavalry are practically mounted. Two infantry regiments and 2 of cavalry are composed of negroes, with white officers. Four special infantry regiments and two special cavalry regiments have been organised for permanent service in the Philippines. The field artillery of the U.S. Army comprises 11 regiments, each of 4 batteries, of these, 2 regiments are 'light artillery, 2 mountain artillery, 1 field artillery, and 1 horse artillery. All batteries have 4 guns and 8 wagons both in peace and war. There are also 170 batteries of coast artillery. The engineers consist of 3 battalions, each of 4 companies of 4 officers and 159 men.

In addition to the regular United States army there are 52 companies of Philippine Scouts, (natives) each of 3 officers and 104 men, and 5,912 there are also the Indian Scouts 75 in number.

The authorised peace strength of the army at present is as follows:—

Infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers	74,092
Staff and Departments	15,688
Native Colonial troops	5,912
Total, all ranks	95,692

The regular U.S. troops stationed abroad amount to about 14,500 of all ranks, viz.—12,200 in the Philippines, 2,400 in Hawaii and 900 in the Isthmian Canal Zone.

In the case of the National Guard or organised Militia the various States maintain the units of all arms with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. Enlistment in the National Guard is purely voluntary, the term of service being usually three years, the organisation has been assimilated to that of the regular troops. The President can call out the Militia for service either within or without the borders of the United States. The total strength of the National Guard is about 119,000 officers and men, and it is estimated that about three-fourths of the whole could actually be put into the field. It is organised in 140 regiments and 9 battalions of infantry, 69 squadrons of mounted troops, 51 battalions of artillery, and 122 coast artillery companies.

The reserve, or unorganised, Militia comprises, with certain exemptions, the whole of the manhood of the nation between the age of 18 and 45, all being legally liable to serve in a national emergency for a period of 3 years. Their estimated number is 15 millions, but they are untrained, and of no present value, though encouragement is being given to rifle shooting.

In event of war the United States could put into the field about 80,000 regular troops, and about 80,000 or 90,000 partially trained National Guard. The American nation relies on being able to raise, in case of emergency, a great Volunteer army. If sufficient numbers are not forthcoming, the militia could be obliged to serve for two years, but this army, whether ranks are filled by voluntary or compulsory recruitment, would practically be a new creation.

The regular infantry and cavalry are both armed with the short U.S. rifle, Springfield model, 1903, calibre .300. The armament of the horse and field batteries is 4-shielded Q.M.F. gun firing a 15 lb shell.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of both the army and the navy. The Secretary of War controls the army with the aid of an Assistant Secretary and a Chief of the Staff. The former has charge of finance, and non-military work, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the army.

The army budget in 1912-13 amounted to $94,210,400 dollars (£18,642,080). This includes the expenditure by the several States in their National Guard, nor the sum paid in pensions to former soldiers, both regulars and volunteers, which is separately provided.

II. NAVY.

The navy estimates (financial years ending June 30), were as follows :—

Years.	■	Years.	■
1912-13	25,691,402	1908-09	24,958,928

The control of naval affairs is vested in the Secretary of the Navy, a Cabinet officer, appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate. The Assistant-Secretary, a civilian, also appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate, the chiefs of eight administrative bureaus, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and the Judge-Advocate-General, ■ directly responsible to the Secretary. The administrative bureaus are: yards and docks, equipment, navigation, ordnance, construction and repair, steam engineering, supplies and accounts, and medicine and surgery.

The public lands are divided into two great classes. The one class have a dollar and a quarter an acre designated the minimum price, and the other two dollars and a half an acre the latter being the alternate sections, reserved by the United States in land grants to railroads. Titles to these lands may be acquired by location under the homestead laws, or, in certain classes, by purchase for cash. The homestead laws give the right to 160 acres of a dollar and a-quarter lands to any citizen an applicant for citizenship who will actually settle upon and cultivate the land. The title is perfected by the filing of a patent after five years of actual settlement. The only charges are the cost of homestead entries, fees and taxes. On July 1, 1912, 682,984,762 acres were unappropriated and unreserved, of which 368,010,643 were in Alaska. In 1907, 14,764,584 acres were taken up under the Homestead Act, and all 866,592 acres were disposed of to individuals, States, and railroad and wagon road companies. It is provided by law that two sections, of 36 acres of land in each township, are reserved for public schools, so that the spread of education may go together with colonization.

The power of Congress over the public territory is exclusive and universal, except insofar as restrained by stipulations in the original grants.

According to the census returns the total acreage of farms and the improved acreage have been —

The preliminary returns for 1912 show a production of 13,820,000 bales, the largest amount coming from Texas (4,850,000).

In 1912 there were 1,225,800 acres, which yielded 962,855,000 lbs. of tobacco. The chief tobacco growing States were Kentucky, 441,000 acres, yielding 313,980,000 lbs.; Virginia, 187,000 acres, yielding 112,200,000 lbs.; Ohio, 86,200 acres, yielding 79,304,000 lbs.; North Carolina, 179,000 acres, yielding 110,980,000 lbs.; Wisconsin 42,200 acres, yielding 54,438,000 lbs.; Pennsylvania, 44,200 acres, yielding 64,090,000 lbs.; Tennessee, 110,000 acres, yielding 72,600,000 lbs.; Connecticut, 17,500 acres, yielding 29,750,000 lbs.; Maryland, 26,000 acres, yielding 17,160,000 lbs.; Indiana, 18,700 acres, yielding 14,960,000 lbs.; South Carolina, 35,000 acres, yielding 24,500,000 lbs.; New York, 4,000 acres, yielding 5,200,000 lbs.; and Massachusetts, 5,800 acres, yielding 9,860,000 lbs.

Live Stock	1900	1911	1912	1913
Horses	13,537,524	20,277,000	20,509,000	20,567,000

Sheep	41,883,065	53,639,000	52,362,000	51,462,000
Swine	37,079,356	65,620,000	65,410,000	61,178,000

The total value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1912, was 5,008,327,000 dollars. On April 15, 1910 (according to census returns), the farm animals were horses, 19,831,113, mules, 4,209,769, cattle, 61,603,866, sheep, 52,447,861; swine, 58,185,676, goats, 2,915,125.

In 1912 the factories used 12,183,376,885 pounds of milk, made 581,478,141 lbs. of butter, 317,144,872 lbs. of cheese, and 308,485,182 lbs. of condensed milk. The total value of the products manufactured was 168,182,789 dollars. In addition, butter and condensed milk to the value of 520,317 dollars were made by establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of other products. The States, New York, Wisconsin, and Iowa have the largest dairy industries.

In 1901 the estimated wool clip was 302,502,326 pounds; and in 1911, 547,900 pounds.

The census reports for 1905 show that the value of canned vegetables (tomatoes, corn, peas, etc.) for the preceding year was 45,262,148 dollars; of canned fruits, 11,644,642 dollars, and of dried fruits, 15,664,784 dollars. This industry is most extensive in California, but in other States, notably New York and Maryland, it flourishes.

The production of apples in the United States in 1911 amounted to 30,065,000 barrels, of raisins, 123,000,000 lbs.; of oranges and lemons to 24,558,000 boxes; of hops to 1,111,000 bales. The vintage in California was estimated in 1911 at 35,658,000 gallons; in 1907 at 43,492,000 gallons; in 1910 at 36,668,000 gallons; in 1906 at 45,087,000 gallons; and 42,230,000 gallons in 1910. The prune crop of California was estimated at 170,000,000 pounds in 1911.

II FORESTRY

The original forests of the United States containing ■■■ timber covered about 1,800,000 square miles, besides probably 150,000 square miles more of scrubby forest and brush land, chiefly in the West. According to present standards of utilisation, this original forest contained about 5,200 billion board feet of ■■■ timber. Cutting, clearing, and fire have reduced the forest ■■■ to about 860,000 ■■■ miles, or about one fourth of the total area of the country, and the stand to ■■■ 2 ■■■ billion feet of merchantable timber.

There are five principal forest regions. The Northern Forest covers northern New England and New York, northern Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, and most of southern New York and Pennsylvania, with a southern extension along the Appalachian Mountains as far as northern Georgia. It is composed chiefly of softwoods, with a considerable admixture of hardwoods. The Southern Forest, mainly softwoods, extends from Chesapeake Bay through the Atlantic and Gulf States into eastern Texas with an extension northward through western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma into Missouri. The Central Forest, mainly composed of hardwoods, originally covered southern New England and the Hudson and Mohawk valleys, the Piedmont Plateau, and the country from the Appalachians to the plains. The two remaining forest regions are those of the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast, both made up almost entirely of softwoods (see, conifers).

The Northern Forest is estimated to contain about 145 ■■■ square miles and 800 billion feet of timber, the Southern Forest, 245,000 square miles and 500 billion feet, the Central Forest, 200,000 square miles and 800 billion feet, the Rocky Mountain Forest 155,000 square miles and ■■■ billion feet, and the Pacific Coast Forest, 125,000 square miles and 1,100 billion feet.

The present rate of cutting is three times the annual growth of the forests, and the heavy demand for timber is steadily pushing the great centres of the lumber industry toward the south and west. Twenty billion cubic feet of wood are taken from the forests yearly, including waste in logging and manufacture. In a single year 90 million cords of firewood, 45 billion board feet of lumber, 150 million ties, 1½ billion staves, over 125 million sets of heading, nearly 300 million barrel hoops, 8½ million cords of native pulp wood, 166 million cubic feet of round mill timbers, and 1½ million cords of wood for distillation are used. In 1911, over 1 million cords of wood were used in the manufacture of paper, of which 940,000 cords were imported from Canada. A larger drain upon the forest is made by the demand for the railroad ties, of which 148,281,000, equivalent to nearly 1 billion board feet, were used in 1910.

Since 1905 the State of Washington has led in lumber production, in 1910 Louisiana, Mississippi, Oregon, Wisconsin, Texas, Arkansas, North Carolina, Michigan, and Virginia followed in the order named. Yellow pine now holds first place in the cut, with 14½ billion feet in 1910, Douglas fir of the North west second, with nearly 5½ billion feet, oak, third, with 8½ billion feet, and white pine fourth, with less than 1 billion feet. The present area of merchantable yellow pine forests in the Southern States is about 200,000 square miles, with a stand of about 500 billion feet.

The ■■■ of 1909 reports 40,671 lumber establishments with a capital of 1,176,675,000 dollars, using ■■■ material valued at 508,118,000 dollars, and turning out a ■■■ product worth 1,156,122,000 dollars. Four ■■■ of the lumber cut is from conifers.

Four fifths of the standing timber of the country is privately owned. Forests publicly owned are chiefly of holdings of the National Government. These include ■■■ forests, National parks, ■■■ reservations, military reservations, and the forests of the unreserved public domain. The National forests on July 1, 1912, were a total of 187,406,876 acres, or about 800,000 square miles, with an estimated stand of 1 billion feet of timber. Indian reservations were estimated to have a stand of 1 billion feet of timber, the unreserved public domain 14 billion feet, and National parks 11 billion feet. Forest lands belonging to States were estimated to have a stand of 1 billion feet.

The practice of forestry in the United States is mainly on National lands, where all timber is cut under methods planned with reference to the production of a new crop. The same land National forest administration is also at utilization of the forage crop and protection of the water supplies of the West. Grazing on the National forests is permitted under regulation to prevent injury to young forest growth, streamflow, and permanence of the forage crop. A moderate fee is charged for the grazing privilege.

In the fiscal year 1912 the National forests yielded the Government a revenue of 1,089,702.04 dollars from timber sales, 968,942 dollars from grazing fees, and 98,712.27 dollars from special uses of various kinds. The total cut of timber for the year was 554,725,000 feet, of which 128,231,000 feet were cut under free use privileges. The timber cut under sales brought in average price of 2 dollars per thousand. The number of stock grazed was as follows:—Cattle, 1,408,025, horses, 95,848, hogs, 4,380, sheep, 7,667,890, and goats, 83,849. The total cost of administering, protecting, and improving the forests was 5,609,521 dollars, and the total expenditure for all work of the Forest Service was 5,919,969 dollars for fiscal year ending June 30, 1911. The total appropriation for the Forest Service in the fiscal year 1912 is 6,533,000 dollars, including an emergency fire fund of 200,000 dollars.

III MINING

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1910 and 1911 (long tons, 2,240 lbs., short tons, 2,000 lbs.). The values are: for iron and nickel the value at Philadelphia, for copper, lead, and zinc, the values at New York, for quicksilver and antimony, the values at Francisco, for platinum, the value at New York City, for aluminium, the value at Pittsburgh:—

The total production of coal from 1814, the date of the earliest record, to the close of 1911 was 8,739,572,427 short tons.

The total production of gold and silver in the country was as follows in the years mentioned:—

Year	Gold		Silver		Commercial value
	Short tons	Coining	Fine ounces	Coining
		Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1906	3,118,398	84,468,000	—	70,344,485	32,118,480

1908	4,574,840	94,560,000	—	—	38,060,600
1909	4,821,791	96,678,480	54,741,500	—	—

The report on gold and silver is the result of conference between the U. S. Geological Survey and the Director of the Mint.

The precious metals were raised mainly in Colorado, California, Alaska for gold and Colorado, Montana, Utah, and Idaho for silver. The coinage value of the gold produced from mines in the United States from 1792 to 1908 was estimated by the Director of the United States Mint at 2,543,752,000 dollars, and of the silver at 1,873,477,000 dollars, from 1804 to 1908 (5 years) the value was Gold 448,014,900 dollars, silver (commercial value, 1904-08) 171,281,676.

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States; the total production was valued in 1908 at 415,063 dollars, in 1909 at 534 dollars, in 1910 at 295,797 dollars, and in 1911 at 343,692 dollars. There are sapphire deposits in Montana where the output in 1911 was valued at 215,313 dollars. The turquoise is found in Arizona and New Mexico, California, Colorado and Nevada. The tourmaline deposits are worked in Connecticut, Maine, and California. Garnets are found in North Carolina, California, and Utah. Chrysoprase is found in California and Arizona. Other stones found are beryl, agate, amethyst, ruby, topaz and quartz crystals in various forms.

IV MANUFACTURES

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1890 to 1910. The censuses of 1905 and 1910, unlike the earlier censuses, did not include hand and neighbourhood industries, but were confined to establishments conducted under the factory system or producing goods for the general market. The statistics for each census cover the preceding calendar year —

Census	Number of Establishments	Capital	Persons employed	Value of products	Cost of materials
		Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1890 ¹	2,3,852	2,790,273,000	2,732,595	5,369,679,000	2,896,824,000

² Includes officials, clerks, etc., and wage earners, does not include proprietors and managers.

The censuses of 1890, 1900, and 1910 include Alaska; the census of 1910 includes Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

The census of manufactures for 1910 and 1911 (not including Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico) were confined to establishments under the factory system, to the exclusion of neighbourhood industries and hand trades such as custom dress making, tailoring, carpentering, grist and mill milling. The census results follow:—

output of tin plates in 1909 was of the value of 38,259,885 dollars; in 1904, 28,429,971 dollars. The output ofterne plates in 1909 was of the value of 7,555,261 dollars; in 1904, 6,119,572 dollars.

The output of sawed lumber in 1909 amounted to the value of 684,479,859 dollars; in 1904, to 435,708,084 dollars. The output of the leather, tanned, and curried industry, in 1909, was valued at 327,874,187 dollars; in 1904, at 252,620,986 dollars. The boot and shoe products manufactured in 1909 were valued at 442,630,726 dollars; in 1904, at 320,107,458 dollars; leather gloves and mittens, products, 1909, 23,630,508 dollars; 1904, 17,740,385 dollars.

The value of the output of paper and wood-pulp products in 1909 was 267,656,964 dollars; in 1904, 186,715,189 dollars. The value of the output of printing and publishing industries including bookbinding and blank books, engraving steel and copper plate, lithographing, and job, music, and newspapers and periodicals, in 1909 were valued at 737,876,087 dollars; in 1904, 552,478,353 dollars.

The output of the chemical and allied industries for 1904 and 1909 comprised products the values shown below:—

Products	1909	1904
	Dollars	Dollars
Chemicals (acids, &c.)	137,809,942	92,088,378
Cotton seed products	107,528,204	89,310,624

Internal Communications.

According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1838 was 52 miles; it was 52,923 miles in 1870; to 166,703 miles in 1890; in 1900, 194,262; in 1907, 228,128; in 1908, 232,046; in 1909, 238,356, including railroads constructed prior to 1909, and reported for the first time; in 1910, 242,107; in 1911, 246,573.

The mileage of railways in 1911, not including double track, sidings, spurs, was divided among the several groups of States as follows—New England States, 6,033 miles; Atlantic, 24,430 miles; Central Northern, 45,995 miles; South Atlantic, 28,377 miles; Gulf and Mississippi Valley, 23,131 miles; South-Western, 52,588 miles; North-Western, 40,008 miles; Pacific, 24,610 miles. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft. 8½ in.

The total capital invested in railways (stock, funded and unfunded debt) in 1911 was 10,990,194 dollars. For 1911 the gross earnings were 2,348,968,965 dollars, and the net earnings, 903,319,137 dollars.

In 1916 the track mileage of electric railways was 40,088 miles.

The telegraphs of the United States are largely in the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which had, in 1910-11, 219,219 miles of line, 1,487,845 miles of wire, and 24,928 offices; the number of messages sent in 1911 77,780,732, not including messages sent over leased wires under contracts; the receipts, $7,158,989 dollars; expenses, 30,058,632 dollars; and profits, 7,105,857 dollars.

The following table relates to business of another important company; the figures of this table do not represent the operations of one company, but the aggregation of the figures of many companies which have traffic contracts with it; they make up the telegraph system which is generally known as the "American Telephone and Telegraph Company" ("Bell Telephone System"):

Money and Currency

The monetary system is monometallic, and has been since 1873, gold being the standard.

The Act of February 28, 1878, commonly known as the Bland Allison Act, required the purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury of silver bullion at the market price of silver of not less than 2,000,000 dollars more than 4,000,000 dollars worth per month, the same to be coined as fast as purchased into silver dollars. 378,166,793 silver dollars were coined under the Bland Allison Act. The Act of July 14, 1890, known as the Sherman Act, required the purchase of 4,500,000 of fine silver monthly, which was paid for in Treasury notes issued as the silver was purchased. The total amount of silver purchased under this Act from August 18, 1890, to November 1, 1893, date of repeal of the purchasing clause, was 168,674,682 five ounces, costing 155,931,002 dollars, the coinage value of which was 218,084,438 silver dollars. From the bullion purchased under the Act of July 14, 1890, there were coined to December 31, 1901, 149,710,163 silver dollars. Under the Act of March 3, 1891, for the coinage of trade dollars, 5,078,472 silver dollars were coined, making a total of 582,955,428 standard silver dollars coined from March 1, 1878, to December 31, 1901.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The £ of 100 cents is of £ £ valid of 49'32d., or 4'8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25·8 grains (or 1·6718 gramme) ·900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold has been established for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury £ in gold at sight.

Gold £ in common £ 20, £ and 5-dollar pieces called double eagles, and half-eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains £ 16 71818 grammes ·900 fine, and therefore contains 232 2 grains or 15·0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412 £ grains £ 26·730 £ ·900 fine, and therefore contains 371·25 grains or 24·067 grammes of £ silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347·22 grains of fine silver per dollar.

British weights and £ are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel £ used instead of the £ or imperial standards. They are:—

Wine Gallon = £ gallon.

Ale Gallon = 1·01695 „

Bushel . = 0 £ imperial bushel.

Instead of the British cwt. £ Cental, of 100 pounds, is used; the short ton contains 2,000 lbs; the long ton, 2,240 lbs.

ALABAMA.

Constitution and Government.—The legislature consists of a Senate of 25 members and a House of Representatives of 106 members; all the legislators being elected for four years.

Governor—Emmett O'Neal, 1911-15 ($5,000 dollar)

Secretary of State—Cyrus B. Brown.

The State is divided into 67 counties. The State Capital is Montgomery.

Area and Population. Area 52,260 square miles, of which 710 square miles is water.

Years	Population
	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	526,000	497,770	1,023,770	16.7
1870	574,228	476,489	1,050,717	20.4
1880	1,011,960	827,807	1,839,767	26.5
1910	1,328,000	908,275	2,236,275	41.7

By sex and race the population in 1900 was thus distributed:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Foreign-born	Total
Male	807,874	416,098	61	177	1,224,152
Female	498,774	416,098	—	—	914,872
Total	1,306,648	832,196	61	177	2,139,082

The foreign-born numbered 177, of whom 3,034 were English, 1,792 Irish, and 1,228 German. The large cities, (1910) Birmingham, 182,685; Mobile, 51,821; Montgomery (capital), 38,136.

Religion, [REDACTED] Charity.—Protestant churches in the ascendancy in the State. The [REDACTED] of strength of [REDACTED] religious bodies is: Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Disciples or Christians.

The public elementary schools in [REDACTED] had 8,756 teachers, and 424,611 enrolled pupils. The 142 public high schools [REDACTED] 450 teachers and 9,895 pupils in 1911. The six public normal schools [REDACTED] 1909 had 51 teachers and 1,390 pupils. For superior and professional education there are various institutions, the [REDACTED] important being (for [REDACTED] and both sexes):—

Begun	Institutions
1831	University of Alabama (State)
1830	Spring Hill College (R. C.)
1841	Howard College, East Lake (Bapt.)
1859	Southern University, Greensboro' (M. E. S.)
1892	St. Bernard College (R. C.)

Other important schools are the Alabama Girls' Industrial School, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the Tuskegee Institute (negro) under Booker T. Washington, besides various special and technical schools.

Within the State are 35 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, orphanages, &c., but not almshouses). County commissioners make rules for the support of the poor. Indigent and injured veterans [REDACTED] pensioned, the following sums being authorized: to the first class, 100 dollars per annum; to the second, 80; to the third, 60, to the fourth, 50. Relatives, within certain degrees, [REDACTED] liable for the support of their poor. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses in Alabama contained 771 pauper inmates, of whom 414 were white and 357 negro.

Finance, Defence.—The revenue is derived mostly from taxes on property of all kinds, the assessment being made at cash value for State and county purposes by the county [REDACTED] on the sworn statements of the taxpayers. The board of county commissioners acts [REDACTED] a board of review and adjudges [REDACTED] objections to the assessment, the State being regarded as plaintiff and the taxpayer [REDACTED] defendant. The State tax commission equalises [REDACTED] values throughout the State and it alone has power to assess the franchises and intangible values of public utilities. In the State Board of Assessment is vested the sole power to [REDACTED] the properties of railroad and long-distance telephone and telegraph companies.

The receipts and disbursements in the year ending September 30, 1912, [REDACTED]:—

UNITED STATES — ALABAMA

The militia (or State Troops) consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, total strength (1909) 221 officers and 3,093 enlisted.

Production and Industry — Alabama is largely an agricultural State; the farm area in 1910 was 20,732,312 acres, of which $ 698,581 improved land, the value of all farm property was $70,188,429 dollars. The chief crops — maize, 54,000,000 bushels in 1911, wheat, 945,000 bushels, oats, $ 251,146 bushels, rice 5,170 bushels. Other crops — potatoes hay and vegetables. Tobacco, $ 000 pounds. Sugar is largely grown and manufactured. In 1910 the live stock comprised 171,000 horses, 253,000 mules, 289,000 milk cows, 528,000 other cattle, 178,000 sheep, and 1,176,000 swine. In 1910 the area under cotton was 3,730,482 acres, the yield was 1,221,225 bales of cotton valued at $81,880,000 dollars. In 1910 there were 3,398 manufacturing establishments with capital amounting $ 173,180,000 dollars, employing 72,148 wage earners who earned 27,284,000 dollars, used raw material worth 93,443,000 dollars and turned out products valued at 145,962,000 dollars. The iron and steel output was worth 21,236,000 dollars, cotton goods, 22,212,000 dollars, lumber and timber products, 26,058,000 dollars, other large industries being foundry work, railway car construction, the manufacture of fertilizers, of cotton seed oil and cake, and of turpentine and resin.

In 1911 the output of coal was 15,021,421 short tons, valued at 19,079,949 dollars. Of sandstone, marble, and limestone the output in 1911 was valued at 923,999 dollars. Clay products of the State were valued at 1,947,102 dollars. Alabama yielded in 1910 pig iron to the amount of 1,617,150 long tons (17,379,171 dollars). The total value in 1911 of the mineral output of the State (including pig iron, but not non ore) was 28,006,278 dollars.

The chief port of Alabama is Mobile, through which there is a large trade. The exports comprise raw cotton (over 12,062,000 dollars annually), timber, lumber, &c. (6,800,000), cereals and flour (2,950,000), and lard (1,800,000), besides cattle, sheep and other animals, nuts, hops, fruit, flax seed and oil, sugar, tobacco, &c. The port is the outlet not only for products of Alabama but for those of neighbouring States. The imports at Mobile are mostly from Mexico and consist largely of bananas and sugar grass. The harbour channel is deepened to 22½ ft.

The larger rivers in the State are navigable (except at low water) for several hundred miles, the Alabama river for 400 miles. In 1910 the rail ways within the State had a length of 5,226 miles, exclusive of 302 miles of electric railway.

At Mobile in 1910 there were $ banks, whose deposits amounted to 6,000,000 dollars.

ARIZONA

Government.—Arizona was admitted into the Union as a Sovereign State on February 14, 1912. The process of changing from Territorial to State form of government began with an Act passed by the National Congress, in June, 1910, called the Enabling Act, which gave permission to the people of Arizona to frame a Constitution to form the basis of Statehood. This Constitution was to be submitted to Congress and the President of the United States for approval before becoming effective. The Constitutional Convention, which consisted of 52 elected delegates, met in Phoenix, October 10, 1910, and remained in session until December 9, 1910. The Constitution which was drafted contained a provision for the recall of the judiciary, and because of this President Taft refused to approve, except upon condition that the voters of Arizona eliminated the feature from the document. This they did at the first State election, held December 12, 1911, rather than forfeit Statehood. But having become a State, with all the attending powers and privileges, it is now proposed that the recall of the judiciary shall be restored to the Constitution, and the question was determined at the general election in November, 1912.

In the laws which the first State Legislature of Arizona enacted, the affairs of State government are placed under direct control of the people, who can at any time exercise the machinery of the Initiative, Referendum and the Recall. Among the amendments to the Constitution upon which the people voted in 1912 was one giving the State power to engage in industrial pursuits.

The State Senate consists of 19 members, and the House of Representatives 35. The State is represented in the National Congress by one member of the lower house and two Senators.

Governor.—George W. P. Hunt, 1911–14 (4,000 dollars).

Secretary.—Sidney Osborn.

The State capital is Phoenix (population in 1910, 11,134). Tucson in 1910 had 18,193 inhabitants. The State is divided into 14 counties.

Area, Population and Instruction.—Area of 113,020 square miles, of which 100 square miles is water. The Indian reservations had an area of 26,434 square miles in 1905.

The population in four years was:—

Years.	Population.	Per Sq. Mile.	Years.	Population.	Sq. Mile.
1880	40,440	0.4	1900	122,931	1.1
1890	59,620	0.8	1910	204,354	1.8

In 1880 there were 24,201 Indians, 2,067 negroes, 1,587 Mongolian. The foreign-born numbered 46,844, of whom 14,172 were from Mexico.

The order of strength of religious bodies is: Roman Catholic, Latter-day Saints, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregationalists.

School attendance is compulsory for 6 weeks (6 consecutive) annually for children from 8 to 14 years of age. Instruction is free for children from 8 to 21 years of age. The enrolled pupils in 1911 numbered 39,611. There were 1,100 teachers (140 males and 736 females). Two public normal schools at Tempe and Flagstaff had 578 pupils in 1911. The University of Arizona, at Tucson, founded in 1891, has 100 professors and 1,000 students in 1911 (128 men and 100 women). There is a State Agricultural School also at Tucson.

Charity.—The State has reform and industrial schools and 11 penal and benevolent institutions (exclusive of almshouses), which had on June 30, 1910, ■ inmates. The general supervision of charitable and penal institutions is vested in a board of control consisting of the governor, the auditor, and one citizen of the State. In each county the ■ of the sick poor ■ entrusted to a contractor, who must give a bond of 5,000 dollars for the faithful performance of his contract, or the Board of Supervisors of the county may employ a physician at an agreed salary to attend the sick and furnish medicines, and a superintendent to take charge of the institution and such other attendants ■ may be required. The almshouses in the State ■ January 1, 1905, had 191 pauper inmates (180 white and 11 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—Revenues are derived mainly from the general property tax levied on all property not specially exempted. The first State Legislature created a Tax Commission to determine the value of all property. The ■ from all sources, and expenditure for all purposes, ■ the year ending June 30, 1910, were:—

The bonded debt, June 30, 1910, amounted to 3,055,275 dollars. The assessed value of taxable real and personal property amounted to 140,000,000 dollars for 1912.

The militia, ■ national guard, with headquarters at Phoenix, consists of cavalry and infantry; total strength (1911), 50 officers and 703 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arizona, with its dry climate, is ■ well suited for agriculture, but along the watercourses ■ and where irrigation is used the soil is productive. The wide pasture-lands ■ favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been and ■ being constructed by the United States Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the rich ■ River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Federal Government is ■ engaged ■ the Yuma project, which will make ■ of the water of the lower Colorado River and add hundreds of thousands of ■ to the agricultural ■.

Alfalfa is the ■ important crop; next to it, wheat and barley. In the south ■ grown figs, grapes, almonds, &c.; in the north potatoes, apples and other fruits. On January 1, 1910, ■ 115,000 horses; 6,000 ■; 25,000 milk cows, and 628,000 other cattle; 1,020,000 sheep; ■ 22,000 swine. The wool clip in ■ amounted to 5,950,500 pounds ■ wool, ■ 981,750 dollars. The national forests in the State have ■ area ■ 13,668,366 ■. There ■ considerable ostrich-farming (began ■ 1893) in ■ Arizona ■ are 6,000 birds, being about 80% ■ ■ United States.

The population in 1910 was 1,574,000 (810,025 males and 764,424 females). Little Rock (capital) had a population of 45,941 in 1910, Fort Smith, 23,505; Pine Bluff, 13,038, Hot Springs, 11,157

The most numerous religious bodies in the State are Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Disciples of Christ, and Presbyterian, in the order named

The State has a full public school system under which separate schools are provided for white and black children. No child under 14 can be employed in a manufacturing establishment unless he attends school 12 weeks each year and can read and write English.

In 1910 the public elementary schools had 9,522 teachers and 895,978 enrolled pupils, 107 public high schools had 347 teachers and 7,700 pupils in 1910, 2 public normal schools had 18 teachers and 319 students. The University of Arkansas, founded in 1872, had in 1910 126 professors and 1,410 students. There is a large Baptist college with 80 professors and 1,000 students, a Presbyterian college with 7 professors and 500 students, and a Methodist Episcopal college with 8 professors and 577 students.

Charity.—Within the State are 27 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, &c, but not almshouses) to which, in 1904, 3,766 inmates were admitted. Each county relieves its own poor. There are county courts of the poor which, on information given by constables and other officials, commit paupers to the poor-house, where they remain till discharged by an order of the court. Poor houses are let annually to the lowest responsible bidder under bond for faithful care of the inmates. On January 1, 1905, the poor-houses contained 1,000 paupers (478 white, and 167 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The State debt on October 1, 1907, amounted to 1,250,500 dollars, consisting of 3 per cent interest bearing bonds. The assessed value of real and personal property was 302,181,563 dollars.

The militia, the State Guard, with headquarters at Little Rock, consists of artillery and infantry, total strength, 1,000 officers and 1,327 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arkansas is an agricultural State. In 1910 the total farm area was 14,891,356 acres, of which 7,898,843 were improved land. In the north maize (49,712,000 bushels in 1911), wheat (1,008,000 bushels), oats, potatoes, hay and forage crops are grown, in the south, cotton and tobacco. For 1911 the cotton was 3,471,000 acres, and the yield 778,789 bales. The cultivation of tobacco is decreasing in the State. In the north west, fruits, especially apples and peaches, are grown. The cultivation of sugarcane (for peninsulas) is pursued locally. Live stock in 1911 comprised 290,000 horses, 215,000 mules, 361,000 milk cows, 600,000 other cattle, 233,000 sheep, and 978,000 pigs. The wool clip in 1910 yielded 400,000 pounds of wool, valued at 96,000 dollars. The national forest in Arkansas covers an area of 2,225,290 acres.

CALIFORNIA

The State has a large coal area, the output from which in 1911 2,106,789 short tons of coal, valued 3,396,849 dollars. Manganese ores and lead found. Arkansas produces whetstones (from nevadulite). It also produces bauxite (for aluminum), the phosphate rock deposits are little worked. The quarries yield limestone, sandstone, granite, and slate, besides asphalt, mineral waters, and natural gas. Value of total mineral output in 1911 5,829,606 dollars.

Of the industries the cutting and working of timber is the most important, (1,697 establishments) the State having a forest area of 25,600,000 acres. Arkansas, according to the census of manufactures of 1910, has 2,925 manufacturing establishments employing 3,293 salaried officials and 44,982 wage earners. Their united capital amounted to 70,174,000 dollars, the cost of materials used in a year to 34,935,000 dollars, and the value of output in a year to 74,916,000 dollars. Statistics of 6 leading industries —

The foreign trade of the State is carried on through the port of New Orleans. Cotton and lumber is transported down the Mississippi being the chief exports. In 1911, 1,090 vessels of a tonnage of 2,141,085 entered the port and 1,134 of a tonnage of 2,422,206 cleared. In 1910 there were in the State 5,805 miles of railway and 132 miles of electric railway.

CALIFORNIA.

Constitution and Government—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The State Legislature is composed of the Senate of forty members, elected for terms of four years—half the number being elected each two years—and the Assembly, eighty members, elected for two years. Regular sessions held twice a year.

The qualifications for eligibility to the Senate and Assembly are citizenship of the State for three years and residence in the district for one year. California is represented in Congress by 5 Senators and 8 Representatives. Governor—Hiram Johnson, 1911–15 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State—F. C. Jordan.

The most important departments and commissions are The Board of Education, the Board of Regents of the University, appointed by the Governor for terms of sixteen years, the State Board of Prison Directors, appointed by the Governor for terms of ten years, and having entire control of the penitentiaries, the Board of Equalisation, elected at general elections, and dealing with the assessment of property for taxation purposes; the Railroad Commission, elected and vested with authority to regulate railroad charges; the Bank Commission, the State Board of Health, the Insurance Commission, the Engineering Department (formed in 1907), the State Board of Charities and Corrections, Board of Agriculture, the Commission of Horticulture, the State Department of Forestry, the Commission of Lunacy. The last named, which is an office made up of officers, controls the hospitals for the insane. There are many boards and commissions, &c (for schools, horticulture, architecture, mining, fisheries, &c) unpaid, appointed by the Governor.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. In each county government the legislative authority is vested in a board of five members elected from districts. The seat of the State Government is at Sacramento.

Area and Population—Area: 158,360 square miles (2,188 square miles being water).

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses is as follows:

Years	White ¹	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	975	4,272	560,247	3.6
1880	1,196,808	11,322	1,208,130	7.8
1900	1,474,008	11,045	1,485,053	9.5

In 1900 the population by race and sex was—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	755,147	5,766	51,895	7,723	820,531
Female	647,580	5,279	4,009	7,664	664,522
Total	1,402,727	11,045	55,904	15,377	1,485,053

There are about 25 Indian reservations in the State, the total area being about 641 square miles.

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth, but considerably more than one-half of the total population is of foreign parentage. Of the 367,340 persons of foreign birth in 1900, 72,449 were German, 44,476 Irish, 35,748 English, 9,467 Scotch, 27,408 Canadian, 12,256 French, 23,777 Italian, and 14,649 Swedish, with a sprinkling of Portuguese, Swiss, Russians, Armenians.

The population of the State was 2,377,549, and of the larger cities San Francisco, 416,912; Los Angeles, 319,198; Oakland, 150,174; Sacramento, 44,696; San José, 23,946; Alameda, 19,000. In 1908 the death-rate in cities was 22.0 and in rural districts 18.7 per 1,000 of the population.

By 1860 the number of Chinese reached 84,933, by 1870 49,310, by 1880, 75,218. A plebiscite was taken and the people of California in favour of the restriction of Chinese immigration. In Congress passed restriction law which, by successive renewals, has been kept in force till the present time. The Chinese population of California by 1890 declined to 71,086, and by 1910 to 36,197. In 1890 the Japanese numbered 10,151, and within the last 20 years they have become much more numerous (41,324 in 1910). They have largely taken the place formerly held by the Chinese as agricultural labourers and domestic servants, and quite recently there has commenced a agitation in favour of the exclusion of all Asiatic immigration.

Religion and Instruction.—In the matter of religious association all churches are represented in California, the Roman Catholic being much stronger than any other single church, next are Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Congregationalists.

Education is compulsory for children 5-17 years of age for at least five months in the year. In the State elementary schools there were, in 1910, 368,391 enrolled pupils, with 11,369 teachers. The 184 public high schools had 1,759 teachers and 60,650 pupils, five State normal schools had 104 teachers and 2,023 students in 1910. The State also maintains three polytechnic and other special schools.

There are in California two great universities—the State University, or University of California at Berkeley, and Leland Stanford Junior University. The former established in 1868, and has grown steadily until it becomes one of the great universities of the United States, or of the world. It comprises many colleges and the Lick Astronomical Department. In 1911 the University had at Berkeley 1,000 professors and teachers with 5,724 students, of whom 1,361 were women. Leland Stanford Junior University at Palo Alto chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. An endowment, now amounting to 20,000,000 dollars in interest-bearing funds, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr and Mrs Leland Stanford. In 1911 it had 1,000 professors and 1,648 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 205 instructors and 1,483 students. There are several other prosperous colleges in the State.

Charity.—In the State there are many benevolent institutions (exclusive of almshouses). The board of supervisors of each county must provide for the dependent sick and poor by building or hiring and maintaining hospitals and almshouses, and appointing superintendents and other officers, or provide otherwise for this purpose at their discretion. A Trade and Training School is provided for orphans, abandoned children, and children placed by court under the guardianship of the Board of Trustees. The care of the poor shall be let out to the lowest bidder. Indigent sick poor persons who have resided 3 months in a county, city and county, shall be relieved by the board of supervisors of the county, others by the board of supervisors of the county where they have lawful residence. Kindred (within certain degrees) must support their relatives. It is a misdemeanour to bring poor or incompetent persons into a county or city where they are lawfully settled. The State board of charities may investigate and report on hospitals and almshouses. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses contained 4,292 pauper inmates (4,156 whites and 136 coloured).

UNITED STATES :—CALIFORNIA

Finance, Defence.—For two years ending June 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements of the General Fund into which all moneys pass, not specifically appropriated to other funds, and from which the ordinary expenses of the Government are met (exclusive of those chargeable against the School Fund) are—

	1910 11 Dollars	1911 12 Dollars
Cash on hand July 1	7,201,219	7,453,602
Total Receipts	18,843,854	27,395,144
Total	26,045,073	34,848,746
Total Disbursements	591,471	24,945,210
Cash on hand, June 30	7,453,000

The assessed value of taxable property in 1907 was 1 378 661,035 dollars. The net bonded debt of the State amounted to 2,227,500 dollars in 1912.

The National Guard of California consists of 3 regiments of infantry, 3 troop of cavalry, a coast artillery corps, a medical department, 11 companies of signalmen, and 8 divisions of Naval Militia. The number enrolled in the National Guard in 1909 was 2,348 enlisted men and 192 officers, while the Naval Militia had 552 men and 49 officers.

The Island Navy Yard, the most important of the Federal naval establishments on the Pacific coast, is situated in California about 25 miles north of San Francisco, and there are United States Army posts at San Francisco, Benicia, Monterey, and San Diego.

Agriculture and Forestry.—While the crops common to most portions of the United States—such as wheat, barley, and corn—are produced with ease, there is also a range of special products. It is the only State in which the best European varieties of grapes are successfully cultivated, and this gives great importance to the wine product. Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and being intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi-tropical. There appears to be nothing which is cultivated elsewhere which will not flourish in some part of California. At the date of the last Federal Census (1910) there were 88,197 farms, comprising 27,931,444 acres, of which 11,389,894 were improved. The value of farms was 1,614,694,654 dollars, and the value of the annual product 131,690,606 dollars. Irrigation is extensively practised, being beneficial to the soil and districts and beneficial to a large extent.

The wheat industry declined in relative importance, while horticulture has made rapid strides. The cereal crops in 1912 were maize, 1,924,000 bushels; wheat, 6,290,000 bushels; oats, 7,800,000 bushels; barley, 41,760,000 bushels. Apples, pears, peaches, figs, apricots, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, and other fruits are grown in vast quantities. The total products in 1912 amounted to 197,750, including 14,000 tons of peaches, 95,000 tons of pears; 65,000 tons of raisins, and 11,000 tons of apricots. The dry fruit production in the year was about 1,000,000 gallons; wine, about 16,000,000 gallons. Olives, honey, hops, walnuts, and almonds are also largely produced.

The beet sugar product is attaining importance, the output in 1912 being 10 42 short tons. Dairy products are also increasing rapidly. In January, 1910, the farm animals were 420,000 horses, 83,000 mules, 452,000 milk cows, 1,120,000 other cattle, 2,372,000 sheep, and 540,000 swine. The wool clip (1909) produced 14,300,000 pounds of wool valued at 2,894,000 dollars. Ostich farming is carried on at South Pasadena.

There are 20,000,000 acres of forestal timber, a forest which may be cut for lumber. Of this area 1,500,000 acres are coast redwoods (Sequoia sempervirens), a timber tree peculiar to California, the remainder is chiefly yellow pine, sugar pine, and red fir. In addition to the commercial timber there are several million acres of woodland, not valuable for the lumberman, but containing a more or less dense stand of inferior oaks and pines useful for fuel and domestic purposes and for protecting the watershed.

About twenty years ago the Federal Government inaugurated the policy of withdrawing from sale large wooded areas, especially in the mountains, where the rivers have their sources, and these forest reserves have now reached the number of 25,735,455 acres. Systematic forestal management is gradually being introduced by the federal forest service. Ten per cent of the gross revenue of the National Forests is paid over to the State for the benefit of the counties in which they are situated.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Since the discovery of gold in 1848, California has produced 1,500,000,000 dollars worth of gold, and the output, which had fallen off very greatly, shows a tendency again to increase. In 1911 the gold output was 964,041 fine ounces, valued at 19,928,500 dollars. In the same year the silver output amounted to 1,270,900 fine ounces, valued at 666,300 dollars. Other mining products were copper, 35,335,651 pounds (4,474,450 dollars), and 615 short tons of lead (55,360 dollars). The output of quicksilver in 1910 was 18,860 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 867,719 dollars. The coal output of the State was 10,747 short tons, valued at 16,097 dollars. California produces more petroleum than any other State of the Union, in 1911 the output reached 81,134,391 barrels, valued at 38,719,060 dollars. Other mineral products were granite and limestone, &c., valued at 3,291,585 dollars. Portland cement is manufactured, the clay products of California (1911) were valued at 4,915,866 dollars. From California comes nearly all the beeswax produced in the United States. The output in 1911 was 58,330 short tons, valued at 1,569,151 dollars. Other mineral products were non pyrites, 48,415 long tons (182,787 dollars), salt, 1,086,163 barrels (653,359 dollars), mineral waters sold, 2,310,237 gallons (378,439 dollars); magnesite, 9,375 short tons, value about 75,000 dollars. Bismuth, asbestos, manganese, lithium, tungsten, chromium, infusorial earth, ochre, asphalt, and a great variety of gemstones are found in the State. The value of all the minerals produced in 1911 was 90,517,566 dollars.

In California in 1910 there were 7,659 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 537,134,000 dollars, employing 18,203 salaried officials and 115,296 wage earners, using materials costing 325,238,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 529,767,000 dollars. Statistics of the more important industries are given in the following table:

UNITED STATES :—CALIFORNIA

The lack of an abundant supply of coal for fuel has been a drawback to manufacturing progress, but this is being overcome through the abundance and cheapness of petroleum, which has taken the place of coal in practically all industrial establishments. At the same time there has been a great development of long distance electric power transmission. California has great numbers of torrential mountain streams, which are utilized to generate electricity, which is transmitted a hundred or a hundred and fifty miles to the coast cities.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to 5,000 persons. A year's catch is thirty to forty million pounds, worth about 4,000,000 dollars. Salmon is the most valuable variety of fish taken, but many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of San Francisco.

Commerce and Transportation—The chief commercial port of California is San Francisco, through which in 1910-11 the imports amounted to the value of 11,682,359/, and the exports to 11,217,806/. Among the domestic exports are dairy products and eggs, hops, and lumber. In 1910-11 494 steam vessels of an aggregate tonnage amounting to 1,430,586 tons entered the port and 502 vessels of 1,392,731 tons cleared. The trade with China, Japan, and the Australasian Islands is conducted by several lines of steamers, British, German, and Japanese, and there is keen competition for the Pacific trade.

Railways have been built in California to the extent of 7,771 miles (1910) for steam roads and about 2,530 miles for electric railways. San Francisco is the terminus of four trans-continental railways.

CONNECTICUT

The output of coal in 1911 was 10,157,383 tons. The total value of the mineral products in 1908, was 33,283,010 dollars; in 1911, 55,222,574 dollars; in 1911, 51,958,239 dollars.

The manufacturing industries of Colorado, according to the census of 1910, employ a capital of 162,668,000 dollars; 2,034 establishments with 1,722 salaried firm members, 4,326 clerks, &c., and 28,067 wage-earners. They gave an output valued at 130,044,000 dollars in 1910. The more important of the manufactures are given thus:—

Industries.	Capital	Wage-earners	Materials used	Output

There are large works for the smelting and refining of metals (iron, lead, copper, zinc); the chief base metals refined are lead and zinc, but three-fourths of the value of the smelting products is for gold and silver.

Denver is the centre of distribution for the live stock traffic of the Rocky Mountain States.

On Jan. 1, 1911, there were in the State 7,226 miles of railway. 11 miles were built in 1911 at a cost of 11,085,000 dollars.

There is a British Vice-consul at Denver.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of the area ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power: —

"To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislatures of the States in which they shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings."

The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The local government of the District have been managed by a number of distinct forms of government. From its inception until June, 1802, they were administered by Commissioners appointed by the President of the United States; from that date until July 1, 1871, the local government consisted of a Mayor, and Boards of Aldermen and Common Council, similar to those in other cities. A territorial form of government was established in the District on June 30, 1871, with a Governor and Legislative Assembly and a Board of Public Works as its main features, and continued until June 20, 1874, when it was succeeded by a temporary board of three Commissioners appointed by the President of the United States, which in turn supplanted July 1, 1878, by the present form of local government, which is a municipal corporation having jurisdiction over the territory ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States.

This government is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. Two of these Commissioners, who have been actual residents of the District for three years next before their appointment, and have during that period claimed residence nowhere else, are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each, and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, and shall not be required to perform any other duty. This Commissioner shall be selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. Three officers of the same corps, junior to said Commissioner, may be detailed to assist him, by the President of the United States, and act in his stead, in the order of seniority, during his absence. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government. Congress has, by sundry statutes, empowered them to make and enforce reasonable and usual police regulations for the protection of lives, health, quiet, &c., of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulation of a municipal nature.

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners.—William Tindall.

The area of the District of Columbia originally was about ten miles square, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia, in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69,245 square miles, 60.01 of which was land.

The population in 1800 numbered 14,093; in 1820, 33,089; in 1840, 43,712; in 1860, 75,080; in 1880, 177,624; in 1900, 278,718; in 1920, 331,069; in 1912, 350,843, of whom 96,612 were of the negro race of negro descent, generically denominated 'colored.'

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known as the City of Washington. But that name is, and has been since June 30, 1871, a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipality separate from the rest of the District, but is subject to the same government in every respect.

The most numerous religious bodies are: Roman Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Protestant Episcopal, and Presbyterian.

The public schools of the District in September, 1913, had 1,180 white teachers and 39,119 white pupils, and 12,663 negro teachers and 18,663 negro pupils. There were 7 public high schools with 11 teachers and 8,598 pupils; and 11 private schools with 2,000 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 2 public normal schools with 11 teachers and 11 pupils.

Superior education is given in Georgetown College, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795; it has 11 professors and 1,375 pupils: the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1821, has 11 professors and 1,270 students, the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of negroes, was founded in 1867, and has 116 professors and 1,409 pupils. The Catholic University, a post graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 11 professors and about 100 pupils.

UNITED STATES :—FLORIDA

On August 8, 1912, the almshouse of the District contained 283 pauper inmates.

The revenues of the District are derived from the general property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, and licences for various businesses.

In 1912 the revenues of the District of Columbia amounted to 15,206,484 dollars, and the disbursements to 14,807,681 dollars. The net debt at the end of the year amounted to 10,240,499 57 dollars. In 1912 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 330,322,487 dollars, and of personal property to 44,886,564 dollars, total 374,909,051 dollars.

The value of all property within the District in 1912 was estimated as real property, 950,000,000 dollars, personal, 300,000,000 dollars, total, 1,250,000,000 dollars.

The District of Columbia has a militia force organised under an Act of Congress of March 1, 1889. It consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, with a total strength of 216 officers and 5,561 enlisted men, and a naval force of 28 officers and 400 men. The unorganised militia, or those liable for military service, number about 72,151.

The District has considerable industries, the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1909 showed that (excluding government works) the capital invested in such industries amounted to 30,553,000 dollars, the salaried officials, superintendents, managers and clerks numbered 1,576, and the average number of wage earners employed during the year was 7,707, the raw material used cost 10,246,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 25,289,000 dollars.

On June 14, 1912, there were 11 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 112,277,616 dollars. Their paid up capital stock stood at 16,021,876 dollars, surplus funds at 8,498,732 dollars, individual deposits at 67,438,930 dollars. United States deposits at 3,231,815 dollars; national bank notes outstanding, 5,743,934 dollars, and loans and discounts at 58,258,680 dollars.

Within the District are 164 miles of electric street railway track.

The tobacco industries ■■ prosperous, and Key West and Tampa compete with Cuba ■ the manufacture of fine cigars. In 1910 the output of ■■■■ of turpentine ■■ 13,809,785 gallons and of ■■ 1,555,749 barrels. Phosphate rock is an important mineral product of the State, but little of it is used ■ the manufacture of fertilizers, which consist largely of cotton seed meal.

The State has facilities for transportation both by land and water. A large trade ■ carried on through Pensacola, where the domestic exports ■■ largely cottons, other merchandise being forest products, phosphate tobacco, wheat, flour &c. The harbour channel is now 30 feet deep at low tide. At Jacksonville harbour improvements are being carried out. In 1910 there were 4,431 miles of steam railway, and 150 miles of electric railway. The Atlantic Coast railway and the Louisville and Nashville railway run through the State. The Florida East Coast Railway extension to Key West ■■ opened January 22nd, 1912. The U ■ Government is deepening the channel at Key West and making other improvements.

Total	1,181,294	1,034,813	205	12	2,216,381

Of the total population 12,403 were foreign born, of whom 4,910 were from the West Indies, 3,407 from Germany, 2,293 from Ireland, 1,514 from England and 1,284 from Russia. The population in 1910 was 2,608,987. The largest cities in the State are Atlanta (capital) with population 154,839, Savannah (1910) 65,064, Augusta 41,040, Macon, 36,665, and Columbus, 20,554.

Religion, Instruction, Charity.—Baptists and Methodists predominate, Baptists having more than half of the religious membership of the State.

No law making education compulsory has been passed. At the head of the State school system is a State School Commissioner elected by the people for two years. There is a county school Supervisor in each county. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 555,794 enrolled pupils and 12,625 teachers, while the 174 public high schools had 9,936 pupils and 480 teachers. One public normal school had 31 teachers and 550 pupils in 1909.

For higher education the more important institutions for men (and both sexes) in the State are as follows:—

The State contains 59 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, schools for the deaf and blind, &c.), of which 10 are public, 34 private, and 15 ecclesiastical. County authorities (ordinaries) have supervision of paupers and may establish poorhouses, &c., levy a tax to meet their cost, make the necessary regulations, and appoint a commissioner of the poor. Persons bringing paupers into the State or from any part of it into another are liable for their support. Any county may give relief to ex-Confederate soldiers without compelling them to be poorhouse inmates. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses of the State contained 1,000 pauper inmates (602 white and 407 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The amounts received and disbursed in the years 1908 and 1909 are stated as follows:—

	1908 Dollars	1909 Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1908 and 1909	920,740	638,717
Receipts in 1908 and 1909	5,388,273	5,377,016
Total, 1908 and 1909	6,209,013	6,015,733
Disbursements, 1908 and 1909	5,670,295	5,529,576
Balance, January 1, 1908 and 1909	718	486,167

In December, 1909, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 7,034,202 dollars including an unfunded debt of 90,202 dollars on which interest at seven per cent per annum was paid to the University trustees. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1909 amounted to 725,018,197 dollars.

The State militia called the Georgia State Troops or the Georgia Volunteers, have their headquarters at Atlanta. They consist of Cavalry, Artillery, and Infantry, with a total strength of 239 officers and 2,794 men in 1909. Georgia has also a Naval militia with 3 officers and 44 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Of the total area, about 70 per cent is in farms, of which 37 per cent are operated by negroes, and 10 per cent of negro farms are rented. The negro farmers raise little but cotton, the production of which Georgia ranks second among the States, while it is the largest producer of sea-island cotton. For 1912 the cotton yield was 1,701,000 bales. In the northern part of the State the cultivation of cereals is of importance, corn being grown on five times the area of other cereals. The yield of corn (maize) in the State in 1912 was 53,958,000 bushels. Oats and wheat are also grown, while rice is an important product of coastal counties (27,000 bushels in 1912). The growth of sugar cane is increasing. The tobacco crop in 1912 amounted to 1,162,000 pounds. Forests of pine, &c., cover 42,000 sq. miles. In 1910 the farm animals were 141,000 horses, 248,000 mules, 314,000 milk cows, 673,000 other cattle, 245,000 sheep, 1,647,000 pigs.

The fisheries of the State are of some importance, especially the oyster and shad fisheries.

The State has considerable mineral resources, gold, silver, coal, iron, and manganese ores, pyrites, bauxite, graphite, lime, ochre, infusorial earth, natural cement, talc and soapstone, marble and other quarries, minerals being worked. In 1911, the output of gold (from quartz and placer workings) amounted to 1,548 oz. ($2,000 dollars), and of silver to ■ (300 dollars). In 1911 coal ■ extracted to the amount of 165,210 short tons (246,208 dollars), stone to the value of 1,967,077 for granite, marble, and limestone. The marble of Georgia has a high reputation ■ over the States. The clay-working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) in 1910 gave an output valued at 2,636,380 dollars. In 1911, ■ 282 short tons of lime ■ were extracted. The total mineral output ■ 1911, including ■ but not pig iron, was valued at 5,171,867 dollars.

In 1910 Georgia had 4,792 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 202,778,000 dollars, employing 118,036 persons (salaried and wage earning), using material costing 116,970,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 202,863 ■ dollars.

The chief manufacturing industries were ■ stated below (1905 Census) —

In 1908 there were 153 cotton mills, 36,355 looms and 1,791,384 spindles.

The means of transportation by sea and land are ample. The principal port is Savannah, which has 8 miles of river frontage and which, by harbour improvements, is to be made accessible to vessels of large tonnage. The river is being deepened, and now has a ■ low water depth of 28 feet, and a depth of ■ at high tide on the bar. From this port in 1911 the imports amounted to 1,297,921/ and the exports to 17,162,642/, chiefly cotton, cotton seed, and meal and cake of cotton seed besides turpentine and lumber. From Brunswick the exports were valued at 16,369,216 dollars, the most important articles of export being timber, lumber, railway sleepers, &c.

The railways in the State have a length (1910) of 7,066 miles, besides 395 miles of electric railway.

On June 7, 1911, Georgia had 114 State banks with aggregate capital of 17,536,780 dollars, 87 national banks with paid up capital of 8,958,500 dollars, and a few private banks.

Government. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 23 members, and a House of Representatives of 53 members, all the legislators being elected for two years. Sessions are held biennially. The electorate of the State consists of citizens, both male and female, over the age of 21 years, who have resided in the State over six months. The State is represented in Congress by 11 Senators and one Representative.

Governor — John M. Haines, 1913-15 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State. — W. L. Gifford

The State is divided into 23 counties. The capital is Boise (population 17,358 in 1910).

Area, Population, Religion, Instruction. — Area 84,800 square miles, of which 510 square miles is water. In the last 4 census years the total population was — 1880, 32,610 (0.4), 1890, 84,395 (1.1), 1900, 161,772 (1.9), 1910, 325,594 (3.9). In the white population were included 1,467 Chinese, 1,291 Japanese, and 4,226 Indians. Of the total population 24,606 were foreign born, 3,943 being English, 2,974 German, 2,923 Canadian, 2,822 Swedish, 1,173 Norwegian and 1,681 Irish.

The population is largely Mormon; other religious denominations in the order of their numbers, being Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Disciples or Christians.

For supervision of the public schools there is a Board of Education, of which the Superintendent of Public Instruction is President. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 2,232 teachers, 76,168 enrolled pupils while the 51 public high schools had 4,093 pupils and 212 teachers. The two public normal schools had 22 teachers and 211 pupils in 1910. Superior instruction is given in the State Academy of Idaho and the State University of Idaho, founded in 1892, which had 61 professors and 517 students in 1910. The State has an industrial training school, and a school for the deaf and blind. There are also 11 sectarian colleges or schools to which, however, pupils are admitted without respect to their religious belief.

Charity. — Idaho has a State home for aged soldiers, two asylums for the insane, and a penitentiary. Within the State are 11 hospitals (for benevolent purposes, not for profit), into which, in 1904, 1,494 patients were admitted, the number of inmates at the end of the year being 111. The board of county commissioners may contract for the maintenance of the indigent sick and poor. There is no requirement as to residence on the part of applicants for relief, aid being extended to residents of other States, nor is there any provision for the support of the poor by relatives. Applications for relief must be written, signed, and addressed to the clerk of the court or other proper officials. On January 1, 1905, there were 11 almshouses, 11 pauper inmates (one of whom was coloured).

Finance, Defence. — For the 11 years ending September 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements were as follows:—

	Dollars
Cash in hand October 1 1910	967,716
Receipts, 1910-1912	6,858,682
Total	7,826,398
Disbursements, 1910-12	6,545,745
Balance, September 30, 1911	1,280,653

On Sept. 30, 1912, the State bonded debt amounted to 2,364,250 dollars sinking fund 400,000 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property to 120,000,000 dollars.

The Militia or National Guard of Idaho consists of a regiment of infantry containing 59 officers and 592 men.

Production and Industry—A great part of the State is naturally arid, but extensive irrigation works have been carried out irrigating 1,266,336 acres, and there are many being constructed works to cost 18,811,000 dollars for the irrigation of 490,000 acres in the State. The most important crop is wheat to which, in 1912, 510,000 acres were devoted, the yield amounting to 14,366,000 bushels. Other crops in 1912 were oats, 17,017,000 bushels, barley, 6,916,000 bushels, besides potatoes and hay. Fruit and vegetables are also grown. There is an active livestock industry, especially in sheep the number of which in 1910 was put at 4,248,000, and the clip (1911) at 16,600,000 pounds. The State contains about 19,648,355 acres of national forest.

The State has rich deposits of gold, silver, and other metals. About 7,000 miners are employed. In 1911 the output of gold amounted to 65,688 fine ounces of the value of 1,357,900 dollars, of silver, to 8,184,900 fine ounces of the value of 4,419,800 dollars, copper, 4,514,116 pounds (564,265 dollars), lead, 117,159 short tons (10,544,310 dollars); zinc, 3,180 short tons (962,520 dollars). Coal is mined, but not to a great extent, in 1911 the output was only 1,805 short tons (4,808 dollars). Iron, nickel, cobalt, mica, phosphate rock, antimony, tungsten, graphite, sandstone, limestone and lime, pumice, and salt are worked more or less. Total value of mineral output in 1911, 17,588,340 dollars.

Besides the agricultural and mining industries the State has manufactures of considerable importance. In 1910 there were together 725 industrial establishments, employing a total of 9,909 persons including 8,220 wage-earners, with a total capital of 32,477,000 dollars, cost of material being 9,920,000 dollars and value of output 22,400,000 dollars. The chief of these industries are the working of lumber and timber, (capital, 17,872,000 dollars, wage earners, 5,212, cost of material, 8,145,000 dollars and value of product 10,689,000 dollars), and flour and grain milling (capital, 2,038,000 dollars, wage earners, 125, cost of material, 2,025,000 dollars and value of product, 2,480,000 dollars). Within the State there are 260 lumber mills, the one at Potlatch is said to be the largest in the world and can cut 750,000 feet daily. Idaho has also several flour mills.

The State contains (1910) 2,178 miles of railway, besides 145 miles of electric railway track. The principal railways running through the State are the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Oregon Short Line.

Charity.—The relief of the poor generally falls to the counties, but sometimes to cities. Overseers of the poor provide relief either out door or in poor houses.

Within the State there are 257 benevolent institutions, hospitals, orphan ages, homes, and schools for the deaf and blind. Of these institutions 20 are public, 117 private, and 120 ecclesiastical. Overseers of the poor in counties not under township organization and in towns with over 4,000 inhabitants are designated by the county board, in counties with township organization the trustees of the towns are overseers of the poor. Where there is no poorhouse the overseer may contract for the support of the poor. Provision is made for the establishment and maintenance of poorhouses. Paupers must (in whole or part) be supported by relatives according to their ability. For bringing a pauper into a county where he has no legal residence a fine of 100 dollars may be imposed.

Finance. Defence.—For the 2 years ending September 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements were —

The State has no debt. Outstanding bonds which have ceased to draw interest amount to $17,500 dollars. For the assessed value of property $1,128,663,157 dollars.

The State Militia, or National Guard, consisting of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, had a total strength of 520 officers and 6,615 enlisted in 1909. The naval militia had 51 officers and 587 enlisted.

Production, Industry.—Illinois is largely agricultural. In 1910 the farm area comprised 32,522,937 acres, of which 28,048,323 acres were improved land. The chief cereal crops were maize, 426,320,000 bushels in 1912; wheat, 9,819,000 bushels; oats, 182,726,000 bushels; barley, rye, and buckwheat being also grown. The potato crop in 1912 amounted to 13,837,000 bushels, and hay to 3,266,000 tons. Tobacco, grown on 1,000 acres, yielded 750,000 pounds, valued at $58,500 dollars in 1911. The State has an active live stock industry. In 1911 there were 1,655,000 horses (farm animals), 152,000 mules, 1,232,000 milk cows, 1,974,000 other cattle, 817,000 sheep, and 3,772,000 swine in the State. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 4,900,000 pounds of wool, valued at 1,095,640 dollars. In 1910 Illinois had 18,028 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 1,548,171,000 dollars, employing 561,044 persons (salaries and wage earning), using material costing 1,160,927 dollars, and giving an output worth 1,919,477,000 dollars.

The chief industries with the capital number of wage earners, cost of materials, and value of output, were —

Charities.—All public charities and many of those of a private nature are under the supervision of the Board of State Charities. This is an unpaid, advisory body of six members appointed by the Governor who is its president. The State Board of Charities is for the purpose of erecting and maintaining State Homes for Soldiers and Sailors, Orphan schools for deaf blind and feeble minded respectively, Village for Epileptics. In every county there is an asylum for the poor. The superintendents are appointed by the Board of county commissioners for two years and are paid. In each of the counties there are boards of county charities who inspect the public institutions and report to the County Commissioners, the circuit court the local press and the Board of State Charities. The township trustees are the poor not in institutions is in the hands of the township trustees who are ex officio overseers of the poor. These officials are for a term of four years and once a quarter send a detailed report of their work to the County Commissioners and the Board of State Charities. They are expected to give only temporary aid and are required by law to make a thorough investigation before giving relief. Work dependent neglected delinquent or orphan children under the supervision of the Board of State Charities. The State employs agents who inspect orphanages, place and visit children in family homes. No person or organization can conduct an orphan's home, a maternity hospital, boarding house for infants, place children in homes without a license from the Board. Children are supported at public expense only when made public wards by the juvenile court. The laws provide for a juvenile court and a board of children's guardians and a County Board of Charities and Correction in every county.

There are in Indiana 1 State charitable penal and correctional institutions, 8 orphanages receiving public wards and 11 receiving only private wards, 23 homes for the aged, 47 general hospitals, 92 county poor asylums, 91 county jails and a number of town lock ups and city police stations.

In 1910 the population consisted of 740,017 white and 1,864 coloured persons, and ■ others; total, 742,371. There were 377,053 males, and 365,318 females. The foreign-born population numbered 93,330, of whom 36,169 were English Canadian, 30,908 French Canadian, 10,159 Irish, and 4,798 English. Within the State, especially in the north, there is a strong French and French-speaking element. The largest city in the State is Portland with a population of 58,571 in 1910. Other cities and towns (with population in 1910) are: Lewiston, 26,247; Bangor, 24,808; Biddeford, 17,079; Auburn, 15,064; Augusta, 13,211; Bath, 9,376; Waterville, 11,458.

The largest religious body is Roman Catholic; then come Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Protestant Episcopalians.

Education is free for pupils from 5 to 21 years of age, and compulsory from 5 to 14. The State Superintendent has general supervision ■ education; there are ■ county superintendents. Cities and towns have elective school attendance committees. In 1911 the 4,645 public elementary schools had 6,932 teachers and 132,823 enrolled pupils. The 183 public high schools had 565 teachers and 11,759 pupils; ■ academies, institutes, and seminaries had ■ teachers and 4,055 pupils. For the training of teachers in 1911 there ■ six public Normal Schools with 49 teachers and ■ students. The University of Maine, founded in ■ at Orono, has 112 professors and teachers and 772 students. It is endowed by and receives large ■ priations from the State. Bowdoin College, founded in 1792 at Brunswick, has 78 professors and ■ students. Bates College at Lewiston has 29 professors and ■ students, and Colby College at Waterville ■ professors and ■ students.

Public schools ■ mainly supported by appropriations from the towns or cities ■ from the State, and by ■ income from school funds.

Charity.—Apart from almshouses ■ asylums for ■ insane, &c., ■ are 42 benevolent institutions in the State, nearly all being provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 12 hospitals (one public), 10 orphanages (one public), 20 homes for adults (one public), and a school for the deaf (public). Children are sent to an institution at Boston at the expense of the State, which also makes grants in aid of charitable associations. The overseers of towns have charge of the poor, and of the poor farm and buildings and may send all their paupers to be supported there, but veterans may not be sent to an almshouse. Towns may contract for the support of their poor. Settlement is obtained by residence for three successive years without poor relief and entitles a pauper to support. Parents, grandparents, children, and grand-children are liable for each other's support. It is a punishable offence to bring a pauper into a town where he has no settlement. Towns are reimbursed by the State for the support of a pauper who has no legal settlement in the State.

Finance, Defence.—For 1912 the amount of revenue and expenditure follows:—

Balance from 1911	502,202

The bonded debt, in 1912, amounted to 269,000 dollars.

The total valuation of the cities, towns, and plantations for 1911, as certified by the municipal assessors, amounted to 404,397,651 dollars, an increase over the valuation of 1910 of 10,346,243 dollars. These figures do not include the valuation of the wild lands, as fixed by the Board of State Assessors, which is 41,279,390 dollars.

The National Guard of Maine contains 1,396 enlisted men (cavalry and infantry) and 134 officers. The Naval Militia has 7 officers and 109 men.

Production, Commerce, Railways.—The products of Maine are derived chiefly from agriculture, forestry, quarrying, and fisheries. The State has, besides other attractions, excellent hunting and fishing, and is a favourite resort. The soil is not generally fertile, an important exception being that of the Aroostook valley, which is well adapted for the growing of fruit and vegetables. In 1910 the State contained 60,016 farms with a total acreage of 6,296,859 acres, of which 2,360,657 acres was improved land. The chief crops were oats (1912), 4,602,000 bushels; maize, 640,000 bushels; buckwheat, potatoes and hay. In 1910 the farm animals comprised 119,000 horses, 175,000 milk cows, 139,000 other cattle, 254,000 sheep and 62,000 swine. The wool clip amounted to 900,000 pounds of wool, valued at 208,000 dollars in 1910.

In 1911 the quarries yielded granite to the value of 2,263,200 dollars; slate, 263,516 dollars. In the State there are mineral springs, which in 1911 yielded 1,254,783 gallons, valued at 431,740 dollars. The value of the total mineral output in 1911 was estimated at 4,645,630 dollars.

In the State are large granite works, cotton mills, paper mills, manufactures of clothing, &c. In 1910, according to the census of manufactures of that year, the State had 3,546 manufacturing establishments employing altogether 4,860 salaried officials and 79,955 wage-earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to 202,260,000 dollars; the cost of materials in a year to 97,101,000 dollars, and the value of a year's output to 176,029,000 dollars. Statistics of the leading industries are as follows:

Production and Industry—Agriculture is an important industry in the State, about 82 per cent of the area being in farms mostly worked by their owners. The chief crops are wheat (599,893 acres valued at 8,686,000 dollars in 1912), maize (24,445,000 bushels, valued at 13,450,000 dollars), hay potatoes (87,000 acres, 2,144,000 bushels, valued at 2,404,000 dollars in 1912), vegetables and fruit. In 1911 the yield of tobacco was 17,845,699 pounds valued at 7,457,112 dollars. Maryland canned 46.5 per cent of the tomatoes put up in the United States ■■ 1911. The dairy output ■■ 1910 was worth 4½ million dollars, the poultry products, 3,650,000 dollars. The flour mills in 1910 gave ■■ output of 1,016,866 barrels of wheat flour, besides corn meal feed, and offal. The farm animals ■■ the State ■■ January 1, 1910, were horses, 160,000, mules, 20,000, milk cows, 160,000, other cattle, 138,000, sheep, 163,000, swine, 273,000. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 742,400 pounds of wool, valued at 171,494 dollars.

Of mining industries in the State the most important ■■ coal mining, which, ■■ 1911, gave an output of ■■ 685,795 short tons, valued at 5,197,066 dollars. Some ■■■■ are also worked. Quarrying is also of importance, the value of the output of stone of various sorts amounting to 1,070,623 dollars in 1909. Other products were sand, talc, slate, lime, and natural rock cement. The output of bricks, tiles, pottery, ■■■■ of the value (1911) of 1,848,273 dollars. Pig iron was produced (8,467,789 dollars) ■■■■ imported from other States. The total mineral output ■■ 1911, excluding pig iron, was valued at 9,386,663 dollars.

The fisheries of the State ■■■ valuable, especially the oyster fisheries, which yield more than any other State in the Union. Other fishery products are shad, bass, perch, and various shell ■■■■. Value of fishing products in 1908, 3,305,670 dollars.

The manufacturing industries carried on within the State are extensive and various. In 1911, the capital invested in them amounted ■■ 251,237,000 dollars; they employed 17,568 salaried officials and 107,921 wage-earners; the cost of the raw material used was 200,024,000 dollars, and the output was of the value of 315,669,000 dollars. The most important industries of Baltimore (according to the value of output) in 1910 are indicated thus:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Num.	Dollars	Dollars
Men's clothing	19,283,000	18,596	30,672,000	86,869,000

The leading industry is copper smelting and refining; others are petroleum refining, shipbuilding, and the manufacture of cotton duck, but of these industries totals cannot be given.

The State has ample facilities for traffic both by sea and land, having railways with 2,165 miles of line in the State and 495 miles of electric railway, while 30 steamboat lines enter the port of Baltimore, which is one of the best ports on the Atlantic coast. The city, since the disastrous fire in February, 1904, is constructing piers, docks and wharves, widening streets, constructing a costly sewerage system, improving the water supply, and continuing electric railways. The harbour channel has been deepened to 14 ft. at mean low water. The railway companies have wharves, piers, and warehouses at their terminals, with elevators and other facilities for the handling of grain, coal, and other merchandise. The tonnage entering the port in 1911 in foreign trade amounted to 1,151,792 tons, and that clearing, to 1,385,186 tons. The value of the imports in 1911 was 28,382,580 dollars (5.840,037*l.*), and of the exports, 94,465,806 dollars (19,439,055*l.*). The exports consist of wheat, flour, meat, and other provisions, cattle, tobacco, cotton, and dried fruits, many of the products being from Central and Western States.

The construction of a Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal by the Federal Government is progressing. The Inter-coastal commission has recommended its purchase at a cost of 2,500,000 dollars (514,400*l.*), and that it be increased to a width of 250 feet on the surface and a depth of 25 feet. It further recommended that the canal be continued from Norfolk to North Carolina by the purchase of the existing Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal, linking the Elizabeth River near Norfolk with Currituck Sound in North Carolina. This canal is to have a depth of 12 feet. The entire section, from the Delaware to Beaufort, is estimated to be fully completed within four years after construction has been begun. At Locust Point, Baltimore, the United States Government will erect a new immigrant station.

Constitution and Government.—After various attempts had been made to colonise the coast of the region which afterwards called New England, the Plymouth Company in 1607 undertook exploring expeditions and obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. It is supposed that the coast of Massachusetts was visited by the Norsemen as early as the year 1,000, but the first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1628 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province. By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1691 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected annually by popular vote, the State being divided into 40 senatorial districts each of which returns one senator. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 178 districts, each of which returns one, two, or three representatives according to population. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

Male citizens of the United States who can read and write may vote in all elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the election district or precinct.

The State sends 12 Senators and 12 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor.—Eugene N. Foss, of Boston, re-elected for 1913, third term, (salary, $3,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Frank J. Donahue, 1913.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 14 cities and 14 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area, Population, Instruction.—With a land area of 8,040 square miles Massachusetts had, according to the United States census of 1910, a population of 3,366,416, representing an increase of 561,070 or 20·0 per cent. The average number of persons per square mile was 418·7 in 1910, as compared with 388 in 1900. The total population of the State in 1910 was 3,366,416, of whom 1,655,226 were males and 1,711,190 were females; 3,325,058 were white; 38,042, coloured; 2,493, Chinese; 1,111, Japanese; and 688 Indian. The native born numbered 2,085,636 and the foreign born, 918,044. For nationality of the foreign born showed the following leading nationalities of the foreign born were: Irish, 236,378; Canadian-French, 118,247; English, 88,893; Nova Scotian, 66,181; Italian, 50,558; Canadian-English, 49,978; Russian, 49,304; Swedish, 37,517; German, 30,358; Canadian (New Brunswick), 24,715; Scotch, 24,663; Polish, 21,490;

Portuguese (Western Islands), 20,850. These returns show that there has been a large influx of immigrants from Italy and Russia — 1900

According to the United States census of 1910, the population of each of the 33 cities of the State was as follows —

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Boston (capital)	60,583	Brookline	11,115	Waltham	8,841
Worcester	14,604	Malden	11,115	Chicopee	25,401

The Registrar's Report for 1911 showed Births, 88,327, deaths, 58,062, divorces granted, 2,187. The number of marriages in 1911 was 32,051. Divorce was granted for cruelty, desertion, drunkenness, imprisonment, impotency, intoxication, support and nullity of marriage.

The total number of church members and communicants in the State in 1908 (Special Report, United States Bureau of the Census) was 1,562,621, compared with a total population in 1900 of 2,806,346. Of the 1,562,621 members and communicants, 1,080,706 were communicants of the Roman Catholic Church, and 449,358 were members of Protestant bodies while the remaining 32,557 belonged to other religious bodies. The leading Protestant bodies, with the number of members were as follows: Congregational, 119,196; Baptist, 78,165; Methodist Episcopal, 61,626; Protestant Episcopal, 51,836; Church of Christ, Scientist, 43,547; Unitarian, 35,440; Universalist, 12,983.

The only provision for religious instruction in the public schools of the State is that a portion of the Bible shall be read daily, without written notes or oral comment, but a pupil, whose parent or guardian informs the teacher in writing that he has conscientious scruples against it, shall not be required to read from any particular version, or take any personal part in the reading. The school committee shall not purchase or use school books in the public schools calculated to favour the tenets of any particular religious sect. The law provides, however, for moral instruction in the public schools and in the higher educational institutions.

There is a State Board of Education. School attendance is compulsory from 7 to 14 years of age. For the school year ending June 30, 1912, the number of teachers required for the public schools was 16,408, the total number of pupils enrolled was 546,326, and the average attendance was 457,589 (returns for town not included). The public high schools had 2,718 teachers and 69,090 pupils. In 1911 there were 401 private schools and academies with 102,910 pupils, and there were 10 State normal schools with an enrolment of 2,355 pupils.

State aided vocational schools were inaugurated in Massachusetts under a law enacted in 1906. In 1907-08 the number of such schools was 24 with an enrolment of 1,400. In 1911-12 the number was 24 with an enrolment of 7,164. The year 1910-11, the State expended 65,784 dollars by way of reimbursement for one of the operating expenses of these schools. The State was expended for reimbursement of towns maintaining approved day and evening industrial, agricultural and household art schools under the provisions of Chapter 471, Acts of 1911.

Production, Industry, Commerce In 1910 the number of farms in Massachusetts (a farm being defined for census purposes as any tract of land of three or more acres used for agricultural purposes, and also any tract containing less than three acres which produced at least $100 worth of farm products in the year 1909) was 36,917 or 2.1 per cent less than in 1900.

Approximately 87 per cent of the total land area of the State was in farms, the total acreage of farm land having decreased 8.1 per cent since 1900. Notwithstanding this decrease in area of farm lands, the value and productivity of such lands have increased considerably since 1900. The value of all farm property (including land valued at 105,582 dollars) in the State in 1910 was 226,474,025 dollars, representing an increase in value of 38 per cent during the decade. Of the 36,917 farms in the State, approximately 87 per cent were operated by the owners, 1 per cent by managers, and 8 per cent by tenants. The total value of the agricultural products of the State during the year 1909, was 31,948,095 dollars, representing an increase of 38 per cent over the corresponding total for the year 1900. The principal agricultural products in 1909 with their values were: Hay and forage 11,290,989 dollars; potatoes and other vegetables, 8,184,219 dollars; flowers and plants and nursery products, 3,061,342 dollars; forest products of farms, 2,668,410 dollars; fruits and nuts, 2,108,799 dollars; small fruits, 1,670,790 dollars; cereals, 1,617,131 dollars; and tobacco, 1,218,060 dollars. The cultivation of tobacco is confined largely to the Connecticut valley.

In the last half of the nineteenth century so many industrial enterprises came into existence that Massachusetts has been quite transformed from an agricultural into a manufacturing community. At present nearly three-fourths of the population dwell in the cities or closely settled places.

The census of manufactures in the State in 1910 showed that the total capital invested in manufactures was 194,442,498 dollars (in 1905, 965,948,887 dollars), employing on the average 578,551 persons (in 1905, 488,399 persons), who earned 304,852,641 dollars (in 1905, 282,388,946 dollars) using raw material valued at 863,381,866 dollars (in 1905, 626,410,431 dollars), and turned out products worth 1,465,749,310 dollars (in 1905, 1,124,092,051 dollars).

The Massachusetts fisheries are important. According to the Census of 1905 they employed 16,798 men including officers and crew, 1,309 vessels and 2,422 boats, the value of their products was 8,986,186 dollars. The fish caught included cod, haddock, mackerel, halibut, and herring, besides oysters and other shell fish.

In 1905 the first census of mercantile trade ever taken in the United States was taken in Massachusetts. The returns showed that the total value of goods sold by all the mercantile establishments in the State was $384,241,383 dollars, of which amount the sum of $67,514 dollars was credited to Boston. The number of establishments in the State was 29,045; the total capital invested in them was 287,966,458 dollars.

There is very little mining within the State. Iron pyrites is worked to a limited extent in the west. Coal is found, but it is of little value. Asbestos, talc and soapstone, infusorial earth and emery are found. Mud, peat, sand, and clay are found throughout the State, and there are extensive brick and earthenware works. The output of clay products (bricks, pottery, etc.) in 1911 was valued at 1,700,287 dollars. There are large stone quarries at Quincy and Rockport. The output of granite in 1911 was valued at 3,691,747 dollars. Other quarry products were sandstone, trap rock, marble and limestone. The value of all the mineral products (including pig iron from two blast furnaces) was 6,628,077 dollars in 1911.

A large foreign trade is carried on through the Port of Boston which is port of entry for several foreign steamship companies. In the year 1911 (including the trade of Chalkstone) the imports were valued at 115,662,053 dollars and the exports (including foreign, transhipped) at 78,913,823 dollars. The principal commodities imported, with valuation, were: Wool, 12,161,433 dollars; hides and skins, 17,503,395 dollars; cotton, 19,549,494 dollars; sugar, $519,150 dollars; fibres and vegetable grasses, 13,698,313 dollars; chemicals, drugs and dyes, 5,325,113 dollars; and iron and steel manufactures, 4,060,486 dollars. The principal exports with valuation, were: Meat and dairy products, 15,705,530 dollars; leather, 12,708,347 dollars; cotton, 10,576,830 dollars; breadstuffs, $104,516 dollars; iron and steel manufactures, 6,424,812 dollars; and animals, 4,913,281 dollars.

According to the State census taken in 1905 the value of vessels (including outfit but not wharf property, &c.) registered in Massachusetts and engaged in coastwise and foreign trade was 21,652,277 dollars. The total earnings of these vessels was 30,513,157 dollars.

In 1911 the vessels engaged in foreign trade which entered the port of Boston had a tonnage of 2,907,821, and those which cleared, 1,891,754. The tonnage of vessels engaged in the coasting trade and entering the port of Boston was 11,905,887.

The total number of immigrants from Trans-Atlantic ports admitted at the Port of Boston during the year 1911, arriving at this port for the first time and intending to remain permanently, was 41,900, classified as follows: — Italians (principally South Italian), 10,498; English, 7,042; Irish, 6,699; Scandinavian, 4,584; Scotch, 3,331; Portuguese, 3,150; Jews, 2,182; Finnish, 1,054; all others, 3,460. Of the total number (41,900) 25,126 or 59.97 per cent gave their destination as Massachusetts.

On June 30, 1911, there were 2,111 miles of main and branch railroad tracks in the State. The 3 principal railroads, the Boston and Albany (New York Central and Hudson River, lessee), Boston and Maine, and New York, New Haven and Hartford, each having a terminus in Boston, have operated about 95 per cent of the railroad mileage and conducted 98 per cent of the entire passenger and freight business expressed in gross income. Charity.—Each county has 3 Superintendents of the poor, appointed by the board of supervisors, and has (or may have) infirmaries. Either indoor or outdoor relief may be given, indigent persons suffering from disease or injury are sent to the University Hospital at Ann Arbor. Where there is a distinction between county and township poor, the poor are supported by the township in which they have a settlement. Parents are liable for support of children and vice versa. In general, settlement is gained by a year's residence. To bring an indigent person into the State is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment. Poor houses are inspected and reported on by the State board of corrections and charities. Number of persons maintained in the poor-houses during 1911 8,635. Average number for the entire year 8,460. Within the State there are (apart from almshouses, &c) 118 benevolent institutions, most of them provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise 59 hospitals (six public), a sanatorium for the treatment of persons suffering from tuberculosis, six dispensaries, ■ orphan ■ (one public), ■ homes for adults (one public), and three schools for the deaf and blind (3 public).

Secretary of State—Julius A. Schmahl

There are 82 counties, few of which contain less than 36 square miles and 2,000 inhabitants. Townships, as in other western States, are, geographically, areas of land 36 miles square, each divided into 36 sections of one square mile, numbered on a uniform principle. When organized they are corporate bodies with a town meeting, 3 supervisors, and other officers elected for one year. Incorporated villages have not less than 175 inhabitants, they form separate election and assessment districts and have each a village council. The State Capital is St. Paul.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 83,366 square miles, of which 4,160 square miles is water. The population in 1910 numbered 2,076,708 (1,108,511 males and 967,197 females) of whom 7,084 were coloured. The foreign born inhabitants numbered 505,318, comprising, 117,007 Germans, 115,476 Swedes, 104,895 Norwegians, 35,515 English Canadians, 22,426 Irish, 16,299 Danes, 12,063 French Canadians, and 12,022 English. The Indian Reservations in the State have an area of 1,481 square miles and contain over 9,000 Indians.

The largest towns are Minneapolis with a population of 301,408 in 1910, St. Paul (the administrative capital), 214,744; Duluth, 78,466, Winona, 18,583, Stillwater, 10,198, Mankato, 10,365.

The chief religious bodies are the Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist.

In 1910 the public elementary schools of the State had 15,157 teachers and 440,087 enrolled pupils, 199 public high schools had 1,086 teachers and 23,613 pupils. For the instruction of teachers (who are examined and licensed by county superintendents) there are 5 public normal schools with 111 teachers and 3,601 pupils in 1910. The University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, founded in 1868, had 1,000 professors and 4,482 students in 1910. Other institutions for superior instruction are—

On May 11, 1846, the Mexican began, when peace made February 2, 1848, New Mexico recognized belonging to the United States. On September 9, 1850, Organic Act of the Territory passed by the United States Congress. The boundaries of the Territory had been made to include part of Texas but Utah formed a separate Territory, in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1863 Arizona disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present.

In June, 1910 Congress passed an Enabling Act permitting the Territory of New Mexico to frame a State Constitution. This ratified by Congress and the President, and in November, 1911, New Mexico admitted to Statehood.

The Constitution provides for the election of a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State and other State officials including a corporation commission, consisting of three members. Under the Constitution these officers elected in November, 1911, hold office until 1915, thereafter, State and county officers are elected every four years. The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 47 members of the House of Representatives. Under the reapportionment the State is entitled to one member of Congress, in place of two chosen at the first State legislature.

NEW YORK STATE

Constitution and Government.—From the region now called New York under the sway of the Dutch; then it under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 9, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York transformed independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the original

The legislative authority is vested in a Senate of members elected every two years, and an Assembly of members elected annually. There are annual sessions

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 30 days, and has resided in the State for a year preceding the election. A voter must also have resided four months in the county, and 30 days in the election district. Woman Suffrage was passed in January, 1913.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution is to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1916. If a revised Constitution is duly framed, it has to be submitted to the people for ratification not less than six weeks after the adjournment of the Convention.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 37 Representatives.

In 1910 the death-rate in cities was 15.3 per 1,000 of population, in rural districts 15.6; in the whole State, 16.1.

The chief churches are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, and Baptist.

Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16 years. In 1910-11 the children enrolled in the public elementary schools numbered 1,318,889, and the number of teachers was 38,622. There were 709 public high schools with 174,387 pupils, and 6,832 teachers. There were 10 public normal schools with 279 teachers, and 6,965 students, and 11 schools of education connected with higher institutions. There were 86 universities, colleges, and professional schools with 4,663 professors and teachers and 86,215 collegiate and graduate students.

The Education Department is under the legislative direction of the Regents and the executive direction of the Commissioner of Education. This Department is quite similar to the Ministries of Education in Europe. It is charged with the general management and supervision of all public schools and of the educational work of the State including the operations of the University of the State of New York. The University is governed and all its corporate powers are exercised by a Board of Regents, whose members are at all times three more than the existing judicial districts in the State—at present 11 districts and 14 Regents—who exercise legislative functions concerning the educational system of the State and determine its educational policies.

Within the State are many sectarian and non-sectarian colleges. The names, year of foundation, and numbers of instructors and students in all departments of the chief colleges in 1910-11 are as follows:—

Educational work is maintained chiefly by the proceeds of the Fire School Tax levied in counties for common schools, and of the general State Tax from which appropriations are made for education.

Charity—The State Board of Charities, a constitutional body (12 members) appointed by the Governor with consent of Senate, term 8 years), has power to inspect all charitable institutions which receive any public funds, establish rules for reception of inmates, approve or disapprove the incorporation of charitable and correctional institutions subject to inspection, license dispensaries, supervise placing out of children, support and remove State, alien and non resident poor, investigate the condition of the poor seeking public aid, advise measures for their relief, and collect statistical information. The State maintains in whole or in part 28 institutions, charitable and reformatory, including those for delinquents, total census, October 1 1911, 10,806, there are 56 county, city, and town institutions, including public hospitals, census 17,637, 29 public and 143 private children's homes, census 33,702, and approximately 1,100 other charitable institutions. Superintendents of the poor have charge of the almshouses and poor prisons in the 61 counties, and decide disputes concerning settlements of poor persons. Overseers of the poor give temporary relief and commit poor persons to almshouses. Persons of full gain a settlement in a town by one year's residence. No poor person may be removed to a different town or county without legal authority, nor foreign poor be brought into the State, under penalty of 50 dollars. No child from 2 to 16, soldier, sailor, or idiot may be committed to any almshouse. Such poor as have not resided 30 days in a county within the year preceding application for relief are sent to special almshouses. State poor. Insane poor must be removed to one of the 16 State hospitals for the insane, in charge of the Commission in Lunacy.

Finance, Taxes—The sources of public revenue are (1) the general property tax, for county and municipal purposes only (2) an inheritance tax, for State purposes, (3) corporation taxes, business taxes the accrued debt tax licenses, for State, county, and municipal purposes. The general property tax is levied on real and personal property. Property comprises (for taxation purposes) "special" franchises (mostly railway, telegraph, and other public service rights), and tangible property connected therewith. Most State debts of taxpayers may be deducted from their credits (debts to them), but, in New York State, no such deduction is allowed. The whole amount of taxpayer's personal property is to be provided against the payment of the tax. "Special" franchise corporations pay their franchisees working property included in realty tax assessments and assessments or appointed locally. In New York City a board of assessments, and in other cities individuals are not required to make a statement of their property, but corporations. Property is assessed at full value. Assessors act locally as officers of the State. The county board of supervisors and the State of equalisation equalise value of real property in equalised Corporation include organisation taxes on domestic, and license taxes on foreign corporations, franchise and various taxes on different classes of corporations

The State and expenditure for 1911 were respectively follows —

The City of New York in 1909 had total receipts amounting to 402,914,106 dollars, expenditure of 412,068,978 dollars and net funded debt of 646,878,999 dollars.

The militia, or national guard of New York, contains (March 31, 1912) 668 cavalry, 722 field artillery, 2,038 coast artillery, 10 infantry, engineers, 694, medical and hospital corps, 601, signal corps 141 general officers and departmental and 11 C officers, 157 total, 15,703.

The naval militia contains 61 commissioned officers and 847 enlisted men, total, 908.

Production, Industry, Commerce — New York has large agricultural interests. In 1910 it contained 215 farms of a total area of 22,030,367 acres, of which 14,844,039 acres improved land. Common agricultural crops are raised, market gardening, fruit growing, sugar beet production, and tobacco culture pursued. In 1912 the crops comprised maize, 19,763,000 bushels, wheat 5,360,000 bushels, oats, 714,000 bushels, besides potatoes, hay, and other products. The area under tobacco 5,900 acres, the yield, 7,375,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. The farm animals — 1910 comprised 717,000 horses, 4,000 mules, 1,771,000 milk cows and 889,000 other cattle, 1,177,000 sheep, and 650,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 4,030,000 pounds of wool, valued 924,385 dollars.

Other productive industries are mining and quarrying. In 1911 the within the State yielded 1,057,984 long tons of iron (2,959,000 dollars), mostly magnetite. In 1911 the output of talc was 62,030 short tons, valued at $613,286 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum in 1911 was 952,515 barrels, valued at 1,248,950 dollars, the yield of natural gas was of the value of 1,418,767 dollars. Mineral springs yielded 10,246,261 gallons, valued at $98,063 dollars. The output of granite, trap rock, sandstone, marble, and limestone in 1911 was valued at 6,895,466 dollars, of Portland cement, 2,812,440 dollars, of mineral waters, 989,003 dollars. The production of bricks, tiles, pottery, &c., was estimated at the value of 10,194,378 dollars. In 1911 the output of gypsum was 472,834 short tons, valued at 1,199,596 dollars. The State also produces infusorial earth, emery, garnet, crystalline quartz, and other minerals. Excluding pig iron, and including ore, the value of mineral output in 1911 amounted to 42,892,180 dollars.

Manufacturing Industries—The statistics of manufacturing industries of New York State according to the census results of 190 and 1910 are summarized thus:—

The output of the flour and grist mills in 1910 was of the value $69,802,276. The material used in the year comprised wheat, 6,671,723 barrels, valued at $5,530,689 dollars; corn, 3,090,587 barrels, valued at $5,967 dollars; rye, 220,902 barrels, valued at $70,707 dollars; buckwheat, 60,682,577 pounds, valued at $1,734,664 dollars; barley, 1,530,934 pounds, valued at $25,087 dollars.

In 1910 there were 1,938 newspapers, 40 of which 231 dailies, 11 Sunday papers, 76 semi-weekly, 975 weekly, 521 monthly, and 54 quarterly. Of the dailies, 84, with an aggregate circulation of 2,168,690, were morning papers. In English 1,759 were published, and of the foreign languages, 40 were in German, 27 in Italian, 19 in Yiddish, 19 in Polish, 11 in Spanish, 11 in Swedish, 4 each in Bohemian, Croatian, French, Hungarian, Russian, 3 each in Ruthenian and Syrian and 2 in Danish. A total of 1,640 publications, with an aggregate circulation of 16,116,760 copies per week, were devoted to politics and family news, 185 with a circulation of 4,037,905 religious in character; 119 with a circulation of 12,664,218 were devoted to general literature.

New York city ranks as the third shipping port of the world, coming after London and Liverpool. The imports during the fiscal year of 1911 amounted to the value of $17,121,800 dollars, and the exports to the value of $07,096,417 dollars. The exports consist largely of grain, flour, cotton, tobacco, apples, and other fruits, preserved provisions, cattle, and frozen meat. Most of the great railway lines which bring merchandise from the west have their terminals on the New Jersey side of the harbour, but there are ample facilities for the transfer of goods to the docks on the eastern side by means of lighters and of barges which carry the loaded goods across. At New York in 1911 the tonnage movement in the foreign trade was: entered, 18,588,296 tons; cleared, 13,516,922 tons.

In New York State there were in 1910 8,429 miles of railway, and 4,720 miles of electric railway track. The canals of the State, used for commercial purposes, have a length of 161 miles, of which the Erie canal has 136 miles.

NORTH CAROLINA

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 100 members, and a House of Representatives of 100 members, elected for two years.

All male citizens of the United States, resident in the State two years, and in the county six months next before the election, and registered, have a vote. For registration, the requirements are payment of poll-tax and ability to read and write in English (a test not imposed on descendants of voters of 1867).

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and ten Representatives.

Governor.—Locke Craig, 1913-17 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State. J. Bryan Grimes.

North Carolina is divided into 100 counties. The Capital is Raleigh.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 52,250 square miles, of which 3,670 square miles is water.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1820	419,200	219,629	638,829	13.2
1900	1,269,341	624,469	1,893,810	39.0

In 1910 there were 1,098,471 males and 1,107,816 females.

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	632,155	303,624	49	2,349	938,677
Female	631,448	320,845	2	2,338	955,133
Total	1,263,603	624,469	51	5,687	1,893,810

Of the total, 4,492 were foreign-born, 1,191 being German, and 1,100 English. Cities (with population in 1910) are: Wilmington, 25,748; Charlotte, 34,014; Asheville, 18,762; Raleigh (capital), 19,218; Greensboro, 15,895; Winston, 17,167; Durham, 18,241.

About half of the church members are Baptist, and three-fifths Methodist. The others are mostly Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Protestant Episcopal.

In several counties school attendance is compulsory. Separate schools are provided for white and for coloured children. In 1911 the public elementary schools of the State had 11,451 teachers, and 528,413 enrolled pupils. There were 177 public high schools with 273 teachers and 6,514 pupils. Teachers were trained in 11 public normal schools, with 11 teachers and 1,089 students.

Higher instruction is given in 11 university and college institutions, the most important of which are the University of North Carolina (founded in 1795) in 1910 had 101 professors and 1,000 students; and the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1889) had 42 professors and 1,000 pupils. There are large colleges, and schools and colleges for coloured youths.

Charity.—Within the State there are (apart from "almshouses" and asylums for the insane, &c.) 57 benevolent institutions, of which are public, the rest having been provided by private associations and religious bodies. They comprise 11 hospitals, 1 dispensary, 11 orphanages (two public), 1 day nursery, eight homes mainly for adults (one public), 2 schools for the deaf and 1 (both public). The board of commissioners for each county has the care of the poor, appoints the and controls the home indigent and aged poor are sent. Paupers without legal settlement (gained by a year's residence) in a county are supported at the cost of their county of settlement till they be sent thither. The State board of charities inspects the homes. In all the almshouses in 1911 there were 1,393 pauper inmates (600 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The State had receipts and disbursements in the year ending November 30, 1912, as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1911	218,221
Receipts, 1911-12	3,418,655
Total	3,631,876
Disbursements, 1911-12	3,341,020
Balance, December 1, 1912	290,856

In 1913 the outstanding debt amounted to 7,832,950 dollars. The State stock in railway and turnpike companies. In the 1909 the assessed value of property was: real property, 287,245,762 dollars; personal property, 277,959,461 dollars; total, 565,005,223 dollars. The true value of all property within the State in 1911 was estimated at:—

Real property	399,567,905
Personal property	442,504,313
Total	842,172,218

The militia, or National Guard, consisting of artillery and infantry, had, in 1911, a total strength of 237 officers and 2,277 enlisted men. The naval militia has 40 officers and 324

Production and Industry.—The chief occupation of the inhabitants of the State is agriculture. In 1910 the of the farm land was 22,439,129 acres, of which 8,813,056 acres improved land. Wheat and maize grown, the yield of the former in 1912 having been 5,322,000 bushels, and of the latter, 51,106,000 bushels. The chief crop, however, is cotton, of which for 1909 was 1,359,000 acres, and the yield 649,886 bales; yield for 1911, 774,752 bales; estimated yield for 1912, 878,000 bales. Another important product is tobacco, grown on 179,000 acres, which yielded in 1912, 110,980,000 pounds, valued 17,757,000 dollars. Other products are peanuts, potatoes, oats, and rye. The rice crop in 1912 amounted to 10,000 bushels. Stock-raising is not important, but there is a growing dairy industry. In the farm animals 192,000 horses, 181,000 mules, 297,000 cows, 449,000 other cattle, 215,000 sheep, and 1,356,000 swine.

In the eastern portion of the there are shad and oyster fisheries, both valuable.

Minerals in variety, but not in large quantities, are in the State, chief being corundum, mica (217,299 in 1911), bismuth, talc, and soapstone barytes, graphite, coal, phosphate rock, gold (3,478 oz.), value 71,900 dollars in 1911), silver (1,000 oz., 100 dollars in 1911). The quarries, in 1911, yielded granite, limestone, and sandstone to the value of 828,928 dollars. Monazite and zircon, used in the manufacture of incandescent light mantles, are also found. The clay products of the State (bricks, pottery, &c.) in 1911 were of the value of 1,280,126 dollars. The total value of the mineral products in 1911 was put at 2,797,155 dollars.

The prosperity of North Carolina is associated chiefly with cotton, tobacco, and lumber, but within the State a variety of other industries are pursued. The value of the output of all manufactures in the State in 1910 was put at 218,656,000 dollars. Statistics of six manufacturing industries are given as follows (census 1910):—

The chief sea-port is Wilmington, the exports from which, in 1911, amounted to the value of 28,705,448 dollars, nearly all for cotton grown in North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, and shipped mostly to Bremen, Liverpool, and Ghent. Harbour improvements are in progress.

The State has several navigable rivers; in 1911 it contained 4,701 miles of steam railway, and 98 miles of electric railway track. The chief railway lines are the Atlantic coast line, the Seaboard Air line, the Southern railway, and the Norfolk and Southern railway, the latter being formed by the union of about half-a-dozen independent lines.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Wilmington.

Industry.—Agriculture is the chief pursuit of the Dakota population. In 1911 the farmland had 28,426,650 acres, of which 20,455,092 improved land. The land to be irrigated within the State under the Federal Reclamation Act extends to 40,000 acres, while in Montana and North Dakota 66,000 acres are to be dealt with. The chief products are cereals, potatoes, hay and flax. The wheat crop in 1912 amounted to 143,820,000 bushels; oats, 95,220,000 bushels; barley, 85,162,000 bushels. In the 1911 year the area under flax (grown for the seed) 1,246,000 acres, and the yield amounted to 12,086,000 bushels of seed, valued at 13,778,000 dollars. The State has also an active live-stock industry, chiefly horse and cattle-raising. In 1910 the farm animals were 712,000 horses, 247,000 milk cows, 616,000 other cattle, 621,000 sheep, and 206,000 swine. The wool clip yielded 1,812,500 pounds of wool, valued at 348,725 dollars in 1911.

The mineral resources of North Dakota are inconsiderable. Cement is made and there are coal mines, the output from which in 1911 amounted to 502,628 short tons, valued at 720,489 dollars. The clay products were valued at 210,616 dollars. Total mineral output in 1911, 957,425 dollars.

In the State in 1910 there were 752 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 13,196,000 dollars, employing 2,789 wage-earners, using raw material costing 13,674,000 dollars, and giving an output valued at 19,187,000 dollars. The most important of these industries are flour and grist milling, which, with an aggregate capital of 2,388,673 dollars, employed 3 wage-earners, used material worth 5,426,541 dollars, and gave an output worth 8,463,228 dollars (in 1900, 3,849,829 dollars). The dairy output (butter, cheese, and condensed milk) amounted to 562,461 dollars (in 1900, 123,128 dollars).

In 1911 there were 5,336 miles of steam railway in the State, and 18 miles of electric railway. The principal lines are the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Sault Ste Marie.

Charity—State institutions comprise a Penitentiary, a Reformatory, an industrial home for boys and one for girls, 11 hospitals, an institution for deaf mutes, one for the blind, one for feeble-minded youth, a soldiers' and sailors' home, and a soldiers' and sailors' orphans' home.

Within the State (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) there are benevolent institutions, 62 of which are public (12 belong to the Federal or State or municipal authorities) while the rest have been provided by private associations or religious bodies. The institutions comprise 74 hospitals (eight public), seven dispensaries, 106 orphanages (49 public), eight day nurseries, 11 homes (three public) and five institutions for the deaf and blind (two public). The trustees of townships are the proper officials of corporations to relieve the poor, but applicants with legal residence elsewhere (acquired by 12 months' continuous residence without poor relief) are to be sent to their county of settlement. Paupers may be required to support by labour public property. County infirmaries (almshouses) are under boards of directors who appoint superintendents. Directors and superintendents may not sell or furnish supplies for the poor. Directors report to the State board of charities. Special provision is made respecting pauper children. There is a penalty of $500 for bringing paupers into a county to make them a public charge. On January 1, 1911, the almshouses had 7,949 pauper inmates (296 coloured).

Finance, Defence—The taxation levies for all purposes, and the expenditure, for the fiscal year ending November 15, 1912 were—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, Nov. 16, 1911	3,768,116
Income, 1911-1912	14,086,902
Total	17,855,018
Disbursements, 1911-12	18,122,180
Balance, Nov. 16, 1912	$ 662,838

In 1911 the newly constituted State Board of Taxation fixed the values of all forms of property and property values at par the dollar, the aggregate exceeding $1 billion.

The State annually expended out of the tax levy for schools and school purposes slightly above 2,500,000 dollars.

The levelling up of all forms of property and property values to par has the effect of placing the tax burden on an automatically just basis—on a dollar, not the penny.

There is no bonded debt in the State. Certain trust funds which constitute an irreducible debt of the State amount to 4,991,421 dollars, on which interest is paid amounting to 294,153 dollars. Various educational institutions. The local debt (County, City, Township, &c.) amounts to 148,271,411 dollars.

The Ohio National Guard consists of 11 officers and 6,906 enlisted men. The Naval Militia consists of 11 officers and 11 men.

Agriculture and Industry.—Ohio is extensively devoted to agriculture. In 1911 it contained 289,945 acres of an aggregate area of 25,665,850 acres, of which 19,244,472 acres were improved. The principal crops are cereals, hay, potatoes, fruits and vegetables, tobacco. The wheat crop in 1912 amounted to 174,410,000 bushels, the corn crop to 9,760,000 bushels; oats, 93,280,000 bushels. The _____ under tobacco (86,200 _____ in 1912), yielded 79,204,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. Horse rearing, cattle-breeding, and dairy farming are important. In 1910 the live stock _____ the State _____ estimated at 977,000 horses, 22,000 mules, 947,000 milk cows, and 978,000 other cattle, 3,203,000 sheep, and 2,047,000 _____. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 18,850,000 pounds of wool, valued _____ 4,429,750 dollars. The farm products and live stock industries give rise to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and the meat packing industries.

Ohio has also extensive mineral _____. Its coal fields have _____ of about 12,000 square miles, and provide employment for 50,000 miners. In 1911 the output of coal amounted to 30,759,986 short tons, valued _____ 31,810,128 dollars. The output of non ore in the State amounted to 16,697 long tons. With coal is associated petroleum, the output of which amounted to 8,817,112 barrels (of 42 gallons) valued at 9,479,542 dollars. At the _____ time natural _____ produced in the State to the value of 9,367,347 dollars. From quarries sandstone and limestone were produced to the value of 5,796,829 dollars. irrigation by private companies. Work has been begun on Federal irrigation schemes covering 15,000 acres in Oregon alone, to cost altogether nearly 20 million dollars, while projects are under consideration for the irrigation of 172,000 acres more in California and Oregon. Oregon has one-sixth of the standing timber of the United States. In 1910 there were 46,502 farms with an acreage of 11,685,110 of which 4,274,803 were improved land. The leading crops are wheat (21,018,900 bushels in 1912) and hay. Oats, barley and flax seed are grown to some extent. Potatoes, sugar beet, and especially hops are important crops. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, strawberries, and cherries, to the value of 6,662,500 dollars in 1910. There is an active livestock industry. Horses on January 1, 1910 numbered 1000, milk cows, 174,000; other cattle, 698,000; sheep, 2,581,000; swine, 267,000. In 1911 the wool clip yielded 15,300,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant. The weight of salmon caught in the Columbia River (Oregon side) in 1910 and from coast streams was 35,000,000 pounds. Salmon fry, 11,255,000, were liberated in the Columbia in 1910. The State has various mineral resources. In 1911 the output of gold amounted to 30,679 fine ounces valued at 200 dollars; of silver (1911), 44,800 fine ounces valued at 24,200 dollars; of copper 125,943 pounds (15,748 dollars). The output of coal was 46,661 short tons, valued at 108,083 dollars. Granite and other building stones were extracted to the value of 588,398 dollars. Other minerals are quick silver, nickel cobalt, lead, gypsum, and sand and opals are found. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 1,198,796 dollars.

In 1910 the manufacturing industries of Oregon had 2,246 establishments with an aggregate capital of 89,092,000 dollars; they employed 3,473 salaried officials and 24,750 wage earners; the cost of the raw material used was 50,552,000 dollars; and the value of the output 93,005,000 dollars. These industries are associated with the forest, agricultural, pastoral, and fishery products of the State.

Government.—Full rights of suffrage are enjoyed by all male persons over 21 years of age who are, or who propose to become, citizens of the United States, and who have resided in the United States for one year in South Dakota for six months, in the county for thirty days, and in the election precinct for ten days, immediately preceding any election.

Legislative power is vested in a Senate and a House of Representatives, but to the people is reserved the right that not less than 5 per cent of the electors may (1) propose measures which the legislature shall enact and submit to a vote of the general body of electors, (2) demand a referendum in respect of laws enacted by the legislature before such laws take effect, in case of urgency. The Senate consists of not less than 11 and not more than 45 members, and the House of Representatives of not less than 75, more than 135 members.

Amendments to the Constitution must be sanctioned by the direct vote of the people, at the first general election after such amendments have been approved by a majority of the members elected to each House of the legislature. A convention for the revision of the Constitution must be summoned if proposed by two thirds of the members elected to each House and sanctioned by a majority of those voting at the next general election.

Governor—Frank B. Byrne ($3,000 dollars)

Production 1 Industry.—In 1 there were 246,012 farms in the State with 1 acreage of 30,041,657 of which 10,890,484 acres was improved land. The 1 important crop is maize, amounting in 1912 to 88,298,000 bushels. 1 wheat yield was 7,077,000 bushels. Oats, hay, potatoes 1 sweet potatoes, pease, sorghum, 1 other products 1 grown, the physical conditions permitting a great diversity of crops. Peanuts are grown in the Tennessee valley. The cotton crop for 1909 covered 735,000 acres, and yielded 253,397 bales, in 1910 the yield was 337,596 bales, in 1911, 449,737 bales, and the estimated yield for 1912, 854,000 bales. The tobacco crop (1912) from 110,000 acres was 72,600,000 pounds, valued at 5,155,000 dollars. Fruit trees and small fruits (notably strawberries) are cultivated. There are important forest products from about 27,300 square miles of woodland. Stock raising in the State is falling off. In 1910 the farm animals consisted of 324,000 horses, 290,000 mules, 321,000 milk cows, 1,000 other cattle, 347,000 sheep, and 1,264,000 pigs.

The coal fields of Tennessee have an area of about 4 square miles. The coal output in 1910 was 433,150 short tons valued at 7,209,784 dollars. Petroleum also is obtained. Pyrites was obtained in 1910 to the amount of 297,594 long tons (value 3,439,644 dollars). Copper was produced to the amount of 18,965,143 pounds, valued at 2,370,643 dollars in 1911. The zinc output was 1,000 short tons (114,000 dollars). Other products were gold, 576 fine ounces, valued at 11,900 dollars, phosphate rock 481,566 long tons valued at 1,688,267 dollars, sandstone marble, and limestone, to the value of 1,498,798 dollars. Clay products amounted to the value of 1,385,100 dollars. Including the value of iron ore and of some products from coal, but not pyrites, the mineral output of the State amounted to the value of 17,902,451 dollars in 1911.

The manufacturing industries include iron and steel working, but are mainly concerned with agricultural products. Flour milling, lumbering, the manufacture of cotton seed oil and cake, the preparation of leather and of tobacco are progressing. There are also textile manufactures. According to the results of the census of manufactures in 1910 there was in the State, 4,609 manufacturing establishments, with a total capital of 167,924,000 dollars, employing 4,117 salaried officials and 73,840 wage earners. The salaries paid in a year amounted to 9,186,000 dollars and the wages to 28,252,000 dollars, the cost of materials used amounted to 104,016,000 dollars and the value of the output was estimated at 180,217,000 dollars. The following are the statistics of the important industries in 1910—

AREA, POPULATION, INSTRUCTION

TEXAS.

In 1836 Texas declared its independence of Mexico, and after maintaining independent existence, as the Republic of Texas, for 10 years, it was in 1845 received as a State into the American Union.

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 31 members elected for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of Representatives of 142 members elected for two years. Qualified electors are all male citizens (and aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens) resident in the State one year and in the district or county six months next before the election, but persons subject to the poll tax must have paid their tax prior to February 1 of the year in which they desire to vote.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 18 Representatives.

Governor.—O. B. Colquitt, 1913-15 (4 000 dollars).

Secretary of State. C. C. McDonald.

The State is divided into 246 counties. The State Capital is Austin.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 265,896 square miles (including 3,498 square miles of water).

Years	Population	Per sq mile	Years	Population	Per sq mile
1880	1,591,749	6.1	1900	3,048,710	11.6
1890	2,235,523	8.5	1910	3,898,542	14.8

In 1910 the population included 2,017,612 males, 1,878,930 females; 240,012 foreign born, 690,020 negroes, 702 Indians, 575 Chinese, and 111 Japanese.

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	1,267,670	310,135	832	263	1,578,900
Female .	1,158,999	310,537	17	207	1,469,810
Total	2,426,669	620,722		470	3,048,710

Of the total number (1900) 179,357 were foreign-born, 71,062 being Mexican, 48,295 German, 9,204 Bohemian, and 8,213 English. The largest cities of the State with population in 1910—San Antonio, 96,814; Houston, 78,800; Dallas, 92,104; Galveston, 36,981; Fort Worth, 73,312; Austin, 29,860; El Paso, 39,279; Waco, 26,425; Beaumont, 20,640; Laredo, 14,855; Denison, 13,632; Sherman, 12,412.

The largest religious bodies are the Baptist and Methodist, other important denominations being Catholic, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterian, and Episcopalian.

The employment of illiterate children under 14 years of age in factories, &c., is illegal. Separate schools are provided for white and coloured children. In 1909-10 the public elementary schools had 20,878 teachers and 821,631 enrolled pupils; 1908, 364 high schools had 1,079 teachers and 24,569 pupils. The State has four public normal schools with, in 1910 11, teachers and 2,510 students. For superior instruction there are numerous institutions.

Balance, Aug. 31, 1912	430,433

The bonded debt in 1912 amounted to 3,977,500 dollars. The bonds are held mostly by State educational and charitable funds. In 1910 the assessed value of taxable property was 2,388,500,124 dollars.

The Organised Militia or Texas National Guard consists of four troops of cavalry, a battery of field artillery, and three regiments of infantry, having a total strength in 1910 of 216 officers and 2,513 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Texas is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1910 it had 417,770 farms with an area of 112,435,067 acres of farmland, of which 27,360,666 acres were improved land. In the arid region of Texas and New Mexico an area of 160,000 acres is being reclaimed under the Federal Reclamation Act. The chief crops in 1910 were (in bushels) maize, 153,300,000; wheat, 11,025,000; oats, 81,140,000; rice 9,429,000; potatoes, 3,276,000. The yield of cotton in 1910 covered 10,060,000 acres, and yielded 3,072,982 bales. In 1911, the yield was 4,256,427 bales and the estimated yield for 1912, 4,850,000 bales. Other products are tobacco (140,000 pounds in 1912), cane-sugar (10,000 pounds in 1909-10), sorghum, vegetables, and fruit (especially peaches). The State has a very great live-stock industry; in 1910 it contained 1,369,000 horses, 702,000 mules, 1,137,000 cattle, and 1,137,000 sheep.

7,131,000 other cattle, 1,902,000 sheep, and 3,205,000 swine. The wool clip 1911 amounted to 2,450,000 pounds of wool, value 1,621,620 dollars.

There are valuable forests in Eastern Texas yielding yellow pine. The excellent oyster and other fisheries

The coal mines of Texas in 1911 yielded an output of 1,974,593 short tons, valued at 3,273,288 dollars. The production of petroleum 9,626,474 barrels (of 31.5 gallons), valued at 6,554,552 dollars. Quick-silver produced to the amount of 3,320 flasks of 75 pounds, valued 154,413 dollars, being 20 per cent. of total production of United States during 1910. Other minerals worked salt (385,200 barrels, valued 279,537 dollars), cement, gypsum, granite, sandstone, limestone. The clay products (chiefly bricks) amounted to the value of 2,659,919 dollars. The value of the mineral output (including gold and silver, coal products, cement, asphalt, lead, zinc, sulphur, and phosphates) amounted in 1911 to 18,817,304 dollars.

In 1910 there were in the State 4,588 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 216,876,000 dollars, 9,849 salaried officers, and 70,230 employees. The cost of material used in the year was 173,179,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 272,896,000 dollars. Statistics of industries (1910 census) are as follows:

Industry	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of Material	Value of Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour and grist	13,219,000	1,216	24,657,000	32,485,000

Brewing	7,027,000	768	1,603,000	4,464,000

Other important industries are printing and publishing (aggregate output 11,587,000 dollars in 1910), bakery and confectionery, planing-mill work, cotton manufactures, copper-work, ice manufacture, and lead smelting and refining.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston, where in 1911 the imports from abroad were valued at 773,0191, and the exports to foreign countries at 41,094,4071. The exports comprise cotton, grain, flour, meat products, &c., the produce of many States and Territories. Galveston is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port it is second only to New York. The harbour channel is being deepened. Wharves are being extended and piers built providing space for warehouses. A permanent causeway is being built to connect Galveston with the mainland. The level of the town is being raised as to protect it from storms. The United States has constructed an immigration station at a cost of 70,000 dollars. The railways in the State (Jan. 30, 1910) have a length of 13,819 miles. The principal lines are the Southern Pacific, the Texas Pacific, and the Colorado Southern. Railway construction is actively proceeding. There are 550 miles of electric railway track. The long coast line with its good harbours facilitates traffic by sea.

British Consul at Galveston.—Alexander Spencer Percival.

There is a vice-consul at Galveston.

Constitution and Government — Utah, which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war, was in 1847, settled by Mormons, and in Sept 9 1850 organized as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union in 1896.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, but the Constitution provides for the initiation of any desired legislation by the legal voters or such number of them as may be determined by law, and such voters may require any law passed by less than a two thirds vote of each House of the Legislature to be submitted to the voters of the State before coming into effect.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 18 members, elected for four years, the House or Representatives has 46 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens male or female, who, not being idiots, insane, or criminals, have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 30 days in the precinct in which the election is held.

Governor — William Spry, 1913 17 ($ 000 dollars.)

Secretary of State — D. Mattson

There are 27 counties in the State. The Capital is Salt Lake City.

Area, Population, Instruction. Area, 84,928 square miles, of which 2,601 square miles is water. The population in 1900 numbered 276,749, of whom 2,623 were Indian, 672 Negro, 572 Chinese, and 417 Japanese. There were 777 foreign born, of whom English and Scandinavian were the most numerous.

Years	Pop.	Per sq. mile	Years	Pop.	Per sq. mile

Total	4,633,970
Total disbursements	2,752,375

Cash on hand, December 1 1911 1,871,595

The assessed valuation, 1911, amounted to 194,172,000 dollars. The bonded debt of the State on November 30, 1911, amounted [REDACTED] 1,160,000 dollars.

By the State Statistician the total value in 1911 was estimated [REDACTED] 570,526,000 dollars.

The National Guard, with headquarters at Salt Lake City, consists of cavalry, artillery and infantry, with signal and hospital corps. Total strength (1911), 47 officers and 859 men.

Production and Industry.—The area of appropriated land within the State on June 30, 1910, was 56,74,608 acres; reserved, 8,785,048. In 1910, unappropriated and unreserved, 35,955,554 acres, of which 11,766,486 were surveyed and 24,189,068 acres unsurveyed. The State contains 52,597,760 acres, of which 1,795,840 are water. In 1910 it had 21,676 farms with a total area of 3,397,699 acres, of which 1,368,211 were improved land.

In 1911 there were 10 incorporated irrigation companies in the State, and the Federal Government has under way an immense irrigation project for the reclamation of a vast arid region. In 1911 works for the reclamation of 328,000 acres were in progress, the cost estimated at $953,000 dollars. In 1912 the chief crops were wheat, 6,059,000 bushels; oats, 4,222,000 bushels; potatoes, 3,515,000 bushels; hay (chiefly alfalfa), 1,023,000 tons. Maize, barley, and rye were also grown. The production of beet sugar in 1910 amounted to 319,588 short tons. Much attention is paid to vegetables and fruit trees. There is a considerable live-stock industry. In 1910 the numbers were: horses and mules 133,000, milk cows 88,000, other cattle 327,000, sheep 3,177,000, swine 61,000. The wool clip (1911) yielded 19,451,000 pounds of wool, valued at $3,395,690 dollars.

The State has valuable mines, chiefly gold, silver, copper, and coal. The output of gold in 1911 was 217,020 fine ounces, valued at 4,486,200 dollars; silver, 11,630,600 fine ounces ($6,280,500 dollars); copper 142,340,215 pounds (17,792,527 dollars); lead, 55,198 short tons (4,967,820 dollars). Other products are manganese ore, gypsum, petroleum, sulphur. Zinc was obtained in 1911 to the amount of 7,004 short tons (798,456 dollars). Salt was collected, 286,178 barrels (167,024 dollars). The total value of the mineral output in 1911 was 41,139,075 dollars.

In 1910 there were 749 manufacturing establishments employing 1,660 salaried officials and 11,785 wage earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to $2,627,000 dollars; cost of material in a year 41,266,000 dollars; value of output 61,989,000 dollars. The following are the statistics of the important industries in 1910:—

Industry	Capital	Wage Earners	Cost of Material	Value of Output
Flour and grist mills	2,142,000	194	2,511,000	3,181,000

VIRGINIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States, a course objected to by the western portion of the State, which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates, the former containing not more than 40 nor less than 38 members, and the latter not more than 100 nor less than 90. Senators are elected for 4 years. The House of Delegates contains 100 members, elected for 2 years. Qualified electors are (with few exceptions) all male citizens 21 years of age resident in the State for 2 years and in the county, city, town, or precinct for which the election is held for 60 days, who have paid their State poll taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives.

Governor :—William H. Mann, Feb. 1910—Feb. 1914 ($5,000 dollar.).

Secretary of Commonwealth :—R. O. James.

The State Capital is Richmond.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is successfully pursued in the State, not least in the arid region of the Cascade Mountains, where there are extensive systems of irrigation.

In 1904 the area irrigated was estimated by the irrigation expert of the United States Department of agriculture at 178,000 acres. Under the Federal "Reclamation Act," which provides for the irrigation and sale of lands, the proceeds to be continually applied to further irrigation, an area of 740,000 acres has been taken in hand. In 1910 there were 56,192 farms with an acreage of 11,712,285, of which 6,378,311 acres was improved land. The wheat yield in 1912 was 58,728,000 bushels; barley, 7,869,000 bushels; oats, 13,689,000 bushels. In Pacific coast region, as well as in the eastern counties, fruit of various sorts is produced in vast quantities. In 1910 the farm animals were 380,000 horses, 5,000 mules, 205,000 milk cows, 358,000 other cattle, 783,000 sheep, 183,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 3,700,000 pounds of wool. The fruit-growing area has doubled within the last two years, and fruit-canning has become an industry in the State. The value of the 1910 fruit crop was from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 dollars. The timber wealth of the State is immense, having an area of 34,000 square miles, representing about 390,000,000 board feet. The trees are mostly fir, cedar and spruce, with hard-wood. The lakes, rivers, and coast waters provide lucrative fisheries. Salmon is abundant, and the waters are stocked from State hatcheries, which supplied about 80,000,000 salmon fry in 1908. Marine fish, halibut, herring, cod, shad, and many other species are taken in increasing quantities. Shell-fish, notably oysters, are improving in quality and quantity. The total value of the fish output for the year 1909 was 13,534,010 dollars.

Coal is mined in large quantities, the output in 1911 having been 3,572,815 tons, valued at 8,174,170 dollars. In the same year there was an output of gold valued at 840,000 dollars; of silver, valued at 124,000 dollars; of copper, 195,503 pounds (24,438 dollars). The quarries yielded granite, sandstone, marble, and limestone to the value of 1,679,872 dollars. Clay products in 1910 amounted to a value of 2,840,372 dollars. Iron ore is mined, but not in great quantity. (601 short tons) are worked; antimony, arsenic, molybdenum, tungsten, and platinum are found. The value of the mineral output in 1910 was 15,853,556 dollars.

In 1911 the manufacturing industries had 3,674 establishments with an aggregate capital of 222,261,000 dollars; they employed 7,734 salaried officials

At the Puget Sound ports including Seattle, Tacoma and Port Townsend, in the year 1911, the imports amounted to 7,894,564 lb, and the exports to 10,005,371 lb.

The railways within the State had, in 1910, 4,833 miles (main track), besides ■ miles of electric railway. The principal railways operating in the State are the Northern Pacific Company and subsidiary companies, Great Northern Railway Company, Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, the Bellingham Bay and British Columbia Company, the Columbia and Puget Sound Railroad Company, the Tacoma Eastern Railroad Company and the Spokane and British Columbia Railroad Company, the Chicago, Milwaukee, and Puget Sound, the Union Pacific, and the North Coast Railways each have a terminus at Seattle.

Steamers ply the Columbia and other rivers. The Dalles and Cato canal will open the Columbia and Snake Rivers to river navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Several lines of steamers sail regularly to ports on the Pacific coast, to Japan and China, the Philippines, and other eastern countries, and to Europe. At the Puget Sound ports the traffic facilities, both railway and shipping, are being multiplied.

These are British Vice Consuls at Port Townsend, Seattle and Tacoma.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Government.—In 1862, after the State of Virginia, as a whole, had seceded from the Union, the electors of the western portion ratified an ordinance providing for the formation of a new State, and this State was admitted into the Union in 1863 under the name of West Virginia.

The Legislature consists of the Senate and the House of Delegates. The right to vote is given to every citizen (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age and resident in the State one year and in the county sixty days prior to the election. The Senate is composed of 30 members elected for a term of four years in such a manner that half the Senate is renewed biennially. The House of Delegates consists of 60 members elected biennially.

Governor.—Henry D. Hatfield, March 4, 1913—March 4, 1917 ($5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Stuart F. Reed.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators elected by the Legislature for 6 years, and five Representatives chosen for 2 years, for the election of whom the State is divided into five congressional districts.

For local administration the State is divided into 55 counties. The State Capital is Charleston.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 24,715 square miles.

Year	Population		Year	Population
	Total	Per sq. mile		Total	Per sq. mile
1880	618,457	25.1	1900	958,800	38.9
1890	672,794	31.0	1910	1,221,119	50.8

In 1910 the population included 644,044 males and 577,075 females; 57,072 of foreign birth; 64,173 were negroes; 1,000 Indians; 1,000 Chinese, and 3 Japanese.

In 1910 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	474,013	26,167	56	6	499,242
Female	441,220	18,332	—	6	459,558
Total	915,233	44,499	56	12	958,800

Of the total, 22,451 were born in foreign countries and of these 4,537 came from Germany, 3,342 from Ireland, 2,921 from Italy, and 2,622 from England. In 1910 the population of principal cities: Wheeling, 41,641; Parkersburg, 17,842; Charleston, 22,996; Huntington, 31,161.

The numerous denominations are Methodists, Baptists, Roman Catholics, United Brethren and Presbyterians. 10 of the denominations have colleges within the State. Elementary education is free for all from 7 to 21 years of age, and school attendance for 12 weeks annually is compulsory for all children between the ages of 8 and 14 years. The public free schools are non-sectarian. A rigid code of moral instruction is enforced, but no sectarian teaching is permitted. In 1911 the public elementary schools had 276,468 enrolled pupils and 8,782 teachers, and 61 public high schools had 197 teachers and 9,982 pupils. The 6 public normal schools had 24 teachers and 1,656 students.

The West Virginia University, founded in 1867, at Morgantown offers higher instruction free to all residents of the State, and at nominal fees to those from other States. In 1911 it had 71 professors and 1,422 students. Bethany College, under the control of the Christian Church, has 19 instructors and 344 students. West Virginia Wesleyan College, a Methodist institution, has 21 instructors and 159 students. There are two other institutions, one at Barboursville, Methodist Episcopal, with 6 teachers and 168 students, the other at Elkins, Presbyterian, with 6 teachers and 40 students.

Charity.—The State has a Penitentiary, a Reform School for boys, and an Industrial Home for girls. The State Humane Society has authority to take under its care children who are abused or neglected, to find homes for the aged, and protect the lower animals. Other State institutions include Hospitals for the Insane, Asylums, Miners' Hospitals, Schools for the Deaf and Blind, and County Farms (one in each county). These farms provide shelter, food, clothing, and medical attendance for the poor in each county. There are also many institutions (including 15 hospitals) provided by public, private or ecclesiastical beneficence. Each county court appoints overseers for magisterial districts and may establish a county infirmary for the poor. Legal settlement is gained by a year's continuous residence. Necessary relief must be given to a pauper without settlement, but he must be removed to the county where he is chargeable. Parents, children, brothers and sisters of a pauper are liable for his support. To bring an indigent person into the State is a penal offence.

Finance, Defence.—The State Fund revenue and expenditure for the year ending September 30, 1912, were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1911	1,179,342
Receipts during year	4,625,212
Total	5,798,554
Payments to September 30, 1912	4,665,766
Balance September 30, 1912	1,132,788

The Constitution provides that 'no debt shall be contracted by the State.' The State has, in fact, a large surplus remaining in its Treasury each year. In 1907 the assessed value of real property was 487,110,791 dollars, and of personal property, 442,838,425, total assessed value, 929,949,216 dollars.

The militia, the National Guard consists of a General Staff, two Regiments of Infantry and a Medical Department. The total strength in 1909 was 116 companies and 1,194 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—In 1910 the State had 96 farms with an area of 10,028,442 acres, of which 5,521,757 acres were improved land. The chief agricultural products in 1910 were wheat, 3,378,000 bushels, Indian corn, 24,505,000 bushels, oats, 3,108,000 bushels, hay, 1,028,000 bushels, potatoes, 5,264,000 bushels. The yield of tobacco was 15,800 tons, the yield amounted to 12,008,000 pounds, valued at $18,210,000. Apples, peaches, plums, and grapes are grown. In 1910 the farm animals were 197,000 horses, 12,000 mules, 247,000 milk cows, 511,000 other cattle, 709,000 sheep, and 328,000 swine. In 1911, the wool clip from 600,000 sheep produced 3,450,000 pounds of wool valued at 897,345 dollars.

The wooded area of West Virginia is estimated at 18,400 square miles (11,778,000 acres), or 83 per cent. of the area of the State. Most of this area is occupied by timber of merchantable size and quality, and the lumber industry is the most important in the State. There are about 10½ million acres of virgin soil not yet brought into cultivation.

West Virginia has extensive mining and quarrying industries, besides great quantities in petroleum and natural gas. The coal area extends 17,280 square miles, and about 50,960 men are employed in coal mines. The output of coal in the State in 1911 amounted to 59,831,580 short tons, valued at 53,670,515 dollars. The output of crude petroleum amounted to 9,785,464 barrels (of 42 gallons), valued at 12,767,298 dollars. Of natural gas produced, the value amounted to 28,451,907 dollars. In the State there are iron-mines, but their output is not separately distinguished. In 1910, 174,661 long tons of pig-iron (2,619,915 dollars) were produced from blast furnaces in the State. The quarries yielded sandstone and limestone to the value of 1,106,012 dollars. The output of salt was 188,379 barrels (78,805 dollars). The value of the output of the clay-working industries was 4,833,420 dollars. The total mineral produce was valued at 101,948,248 dollars for 1911.

In the State there are important leather industries. According to the census of manufactures of 1910, there were in West Virginia 2,586 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 150,928,000 dollars, employing 4,971 salaried officials, and 63,893 wage-earners, wages in the year amounted to 83,000,000 dollars. The cost of the material used was 92,878,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 161,950,000 dollars. The following are statistics of the important industries in 1910 :—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Leather	18,164,000	1,571	10,383,000	12,451,000
Lumber	30,334,000	18,643	8,976,000	28,758,000
Iron and steel	16,276,000	3,060	15,896,000	24,435,000
Coke	12,521,000	4,426	5,012,000	7,568,000
Railway cars	2,117,000	6,642	3,968,000	6,738,000

In 1910, there were within the State 3,600 miles of railway (main line and branches), besides 100 miles of electric railway track. The important railway systems are the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Norfolk and Western, and the West Virginian Central and Pittsburg. The coal-fields in the west are well opened up by the Ohio and its tributaries, which provide some of the cheapest means of coal carriage in the world.

There are within the State 170 State banks having deposits in 1917 amounting to 52,217,945 dollars. There are also 88 National Banks with aggregate capital of 7,646,000 dollars; surplus 3,720,000 dollars; deposits 36,912,449 dollars.

WISCONSIN

Government.—The legislative power is vested in a Senate and Assembly. The Senate consists of 13 members elected for a term of four years, only about half of the members being elected at one time. The Assembly consists of 43 members, elected for a term of two years, all of the members being elected at the same time.

Eligible to the Legislature are males who are qualified electors in the district to be represented and who have resided one year within the State, except members of Congress and officers holders under the United States. Wisconsin has universal suffrage for males over 21 years of age. There is no property or educational qualification.

Wisconsin is represented in Congress by 3 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Wisconsin is unique among other States in that it has delegated important legislative power to three Commissions, each of which is composed of three members at 5,000 dollars yearly for each. The Railroad Commission fixes rates of railroads and public utilities, the Tax Commission assesses and collects all taxes, including the progressive income tax, the Industrial Commission administers all laws relating to factory inspection, women's and child labour, workmen's compensation, truancy, street trades, fire employment offices, &c. The latter commission has power to enforce rules of its making regarding the safeguarding of machinery, sanitation and ventilation.

Governor—F. E. McGovern, 1913-15 (5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State—John H. Donald

The State Capital—Madison, population, 25,531 in 1910

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 56,040 square miles, of which 54,450 square miles is land. In 1910 the population numbered 2,383,860 (1,208,541 males and 1,125,319 females) of whom 512,569 were of foreign birth, 2,900 were negroes, 10,142 Indians, 324 Chinese and 34 Japanese. The foreign born population in 1900 numbered 515,971, the principal nationalities represented being Canadian, English, German, Irish, Norwegian, Polish, Swedish, and Italian. In 1910 the population of the cities follows—

Cities	Pop	Cities	Pop	Cities	Pop
Milwaukee	373,857	Green Bay	25,296	Ashland	11,594
Superior	40,384	Eau Claire	18,310	Janesville	13,894
Racine	38,002	Fond du Lac	13,797	Beloit	15,125
Oshkosh	38,062	Appleton	16,773	Manitowoc	13,027
La Crosse	30,417	Kenosha	21,371	Merrill	8,689
Madison	25,531	Marinette	14,610	Chippewa Falls	8,893
Sheboygan	26,398	Wausau	16,560	Stevens Point	8,692

The religious are—Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Congregationalist, Baptist.

School attendance is compulsory for children between 7 and 14 years of age, in cities for the entire school year, and in towns and villages for 9 months a year. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 14,729 teachers, and 464,311 enrolled pupils, the public high schools had 1,394 teachers and 30,370 pupils. The 12 public normal schools had 1,000 teachers and 2,790 pupils in 1909.

The University of Wisconsin at Madison was begun in 1850. It is governed by a Board of Regents, consisting of one member from each congressional district, and two from the State at large, appointed by the Governor for a term of 4 years. It has 100 professors and instructors, and 5,741 students. Instruction by correspondence has been introduced with 5,936 students enrolled in 1911. Other important Colleges in the State are Beloit College of Beloit, non-sectarian, 36 instructors and 465 students, Lawrence University of Appleton, inter-denominational with 100 instructors and 1,000 students, Ripon College, non-sectarian with 23 instructors and 280 students, St. John's Military Academy, Delafield Episcopal 18 professors and instructors and 211 students, Concordia College (Lutheran), Milwaukee with 7 professors and 203 students, and Marquette University Milwaukee, R. C., with 187 instructors and 1,660 students. There are besides several smaller colleges.

Charity—In 1910 the State had ten charitable and penal institutions and the number of their inmates were: State prison 709, reformatory, 240, industrial school for boys 360, public school for dependent children, 180, school for the deaf, 194, a school for the blind 77, home for the feeble minded, 917, two hospitals for the insane 1,000. The administration of these institutions is subject to the State Board of Control. In 1910 the cost of their maintenance was $71,546 dollars. The State expenditure in maintaining the chronic insane in county asylums was (in 1910) $81,622 dollars.

The supervisors of each town have care of the poor who have a settlement (gained by a year's residence) in the town. The county board has charge of the poor who have no settlement in town, city or village and may establish a poorhouse, but the distinction between town and county poor may be abolished by vote of the town supervisors, and the county be responsible for the support of all such poor. The county judge may commit a pauper to the poorhouse for 30 days or indefinitely. To bring a pauper into a town where he has no settlement is punishable by fine. Parents and children are liable for each other's support.

Finance, 1908-1910—For the 2 years ended June 30, 1910, the receipts and disbursements (all funds) of the State Government were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars.
Balance June 1, 1908	1,728,047
Receipts for 2 years	23,507,463
Total	25,235,510
Disbursements for 2 years	23,675,523
Balance June 30, 1910	1,559,987

The State has no bonded debt, but in 1908, $251,000 dollars was raised in the form of bonds. The State also has certificates of indebtedness arising out of the sale of State lands. The assessed valuation in 1910 was $2,478,561,786 dollars.

The true value of all the property within the State in 1910 was estimated by the Federal Census Bureau at:—

Real property	1,682,068,672
Personal property	1,156,609,567
Total	2,838,678,239

The militia of the State consists of three regiments, a separate battalion of infantry, a troop of cavalry, a battery of light artillery, one battery of naval militia, and hospital corps, aggregating 217 commissioned officers and 2,999 enlisted men. The State naval militia contained 10 officers and 100 enlisted men.

Production. Industry, Communications.—Wisconsin is very largely an agricultural State. In 1910 the farms numbered 177,127 with a total area of 21,060,066 acres, of which 11,907,606 acres were improved land. The chief crops are wheat, maize and other cereals, potatoes, sugar-beet, grapes, fruit and tobacco. The yield of maize in 1912 was 58,262,000 bushels; of wheat, 3,564,000 bushels; of oats, 84,746,000 bushels; of barley, 24,843,000 bushels, rye and buckwheat being also grown. The yield of potatoes was 34,920,000 bushels; of hay, 3,600,000 tons. The area under tobacco (1912) was 42,200 acres; the yield was 54,436,000 pounds. The beet-sugar output in 1908-09 was 16,964 tons. Fruits (large and small) are extensively cultivated. In 1910 the live stock consisted of 669,000 horses, 5,000 mules, 1,506,000 milk cows, 1,081,000 other cattle, 1,034,000 sheep, and 1,651,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 4,887,600 pounds of wool, valued at 930,150 dollars.

The mineral resources of the State are considerable. In 1911 the output comprised zinc, 31,809 short tons (3,626,226 dollars); lead, 3,967 short tons (357,030 dollars); granite, limestone, and sandstone to the value of 2,375,102 dollars; natural rock cement, graphite, petroleum, mineral waters were also produced, the value of the output in 1911 (including not ores, but metal products) being 12,451,436 dollars.

In 1910 there were 9,722 manufacturing establishments in the State with a total capital of 606,657,000 dollars. The number of wage-earners was 182,583 receiving 93,905,000 dollars in wages. The value of the products was 590,306,000 dollars. As compared with 1904, the number of establishments increased 14 per cent., capital increased 47 per cent., wage-earners, 10 per cent., wages paid 12 per cent., and value of products 15 per cent.

	Establishments	Capital	Wage-earners	Wages	Value of products

Wyoming has no navigable rivers. In 1910, the railways in the State had a length of 1,644 miles, the Union Pacific, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and the Chicago and North-Western railways being the principal lines.

The system of stage route transportation is still common.

In December, 1911, there were in the State 30 National, 55 State, and 9 private banks.

OUTLYING TERRITORIES.

ALASKA [REDACTED]

Government.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia under the treaty of March 30, 1867, the purchase price having been 7,200,000 dollars. The country is not, in the political sense, a Territory, but only a District with no representative assembly nor any constitution. It is governed directly by Congress at Washington, and locally administered by a Governor appointed by the President of the United States for 4 years, and assisted by a Secretary, a Surveyor-General, and other officials.

Governor—Walter E. Clark, 1909-13 (7,000 dollars).

The [REDACTED] of the territory is about 590,800 square miles, and the census population of 1900 was returned at 63,592, of whom 30,507 (27,307 male) were white; 29,536 natives (Indians, Eskimo, Aleuts, &c.); 3,116 Chinese; 265 Japanese; 158 Negroes. In 1910 the population was 64,366, of whom 36,347 [REDACTED] whites, and the others Indian or other coloured. About 7,000 people, employed in mines, canneries, and railway construction, spend a few [REDACTED] a year in Alaska, but these [REDACTED] not included in the enumeration. The largest town is Fairbanks which, in 1910, had 8,500 inhabitants; the second largest is Nome with 2,500; other towns are Skagway (1,800), Juneau (1,800), now the seat of Government, Sitka (160 whites, [REDACTED] natives), Valdez (1,100), Ketchikan (1,000), Cordova (800). There are altogether 11 incorporated towns.

Instruction, Justice.—In Alaska many religious missions [REDACTED] at work, representing very diverse denominations: Russian Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and others.

The district is well supplied with schools, about 250,000 dollars being annually appropriated to this service by the United States Government. There [REDACTED] in the schools for natives altogether (1912) about 81 schools, 102 teachers, and 1,689 pupils in average attendance, with a total enrolment of 3,841. At the United States Indian Training School [REDACTED] Carlisle, Pa., there [REDACTED] about 80 Alaskan children (Indian, Eskimo, Thlinget, and Aleut). Many schools for white children [REDACTED] maintained, both within and outside [REDACTED] incorporated towns.

For the administration of justice the territory is constituted [REDACTED] a judicial district with [REDACTED] subdivisions and [REDACTED] courts.

Finance.—In the district of Alaska there is no provision for taxation of real personal property, except municipalities where real estate and personal property may be taxed 2 per cent. for municipal purposes only. The derived from licenses conduct businesses, a long list of which, with the cost of the respective licenses, prescribed by law.

The following is a statement of revenues from Alaska under specified heads from 1869 to 1911 and for the last three years:—

	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars

² Act of January 27, 1906

Alaska has produced from 1867 until 1911, 206,813,094 dollars in minerals, and in sea and fur products the sum of 222,710,086 dollars, and has paid into the Treasury of the United States from customs, internal revenue and license taxes, and other cash items 17,117,355 dollars, making a total production and export from Alaska to the United States of 446,640,985 dollars.

On the other side of that balance sheet is the 7,200,000 dollars which the Government of the United States paid to Russia for Alaska, then the Treasury statements for the payments made from 1867 to 1911, inclusive, and the expenses of the post office. The total money expended by the Government of the United States in Alaska from 1867 to 1911 in maintaining the National Government there, collecting customs and the revenues, maintaining the courts, the fur seal fisheries, boundary commissions, generally all items of governmental expense, have amounted only to 35,816,674 dollars. That leaves a difference between the productions of Alaska and the amount the Government of the United States has expended therein of 410,824,311 dollars.

Production, Communications.—In some parts of the territory the climate during the brief summer is not unsuitable for agricultural operations. There are agricultural experimental stations which are giving valuable demonstrations. Reindeer have been introduced from Siberia, and now 33,629 are employed by the missionaries, by the Eskimo, and by Government officials.

There are considerable timber resources, mostly of the spruce hemlock and red and yellow cedar sort. The National forests of Alaska have an area of 26,761,826 acres. In 1910 there were 11 industrial establishments, employing a total of 73,479 men (3,099 were women), having a capital of 13,060,116 dollars.

The chief industries are seal and salmon fisheries, and mining. The seal fisheries of the Fribolot Islands are under the charge of the Federal Department of Commerce and Labour.

The salmon fisheries are very valuable, and Government has provided for their preservation by securing legislative enactments for the construction and maintenance of hatcheries. The annual catch of salmon is valued over 14,000,000 dollars. Halibut, cod, herring, and whales are also caught, the herring and whales for the manufacture of oil and Gold is worked in South East Alaska, where a low grade ore is found in the interior the Yukon river, and at Nome and other places on the west coast. The output of gold in 1911 estimated at 806,179 fine ounces of the value of 16,665 dollars, and of silver 468,300 fine ounces of the value of 252,900 dollars. Copper in 1911 extracted to the amount of 22,314 pounds, valued at 2,789,361 dollars. There has recently been the production of this metal. Tin ore deposits Cape Prince of Wales are of a high grade, two companies work them, but climatic conditions are unfavourable. Lead is produced, coal is worked, petroleum, gypsum, and marble found. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 20,072,420 dollars (including some lead, but tin, though a quantity of tin ore shipped to Germany).

The value of the domestic merchandise shipped from the United States to Alaska in the year 1912 amounted to 18,809,270 dollars, from Alaska to the United States 597,712 dollars, besides gold ore and bullion. In the year 1912 487 vessels of 510,509 tons cleared from the United States for Alaska, and 594 of 505,412 from Alaska for the United States. The chief ports of shipment of the United States to Alaska are on Puget Sound.

There is a railway of 112 miles from Skagway to the White Horse Rapids (in the Canadian Yukon region), thence transport is by coach or, in summer, by steamer. The Tanana Mines Railway has 50 miles of line of iron, connecting Chena, Fairbanks, and Vault Creek. The Solomon River Railway has 60 miles of line north from Dikeon on Seward Peninsula. The Copper River and North Western Railway completed its line (standard gauge) from Cordova to Kennecott a distance of 197 miles in 1911. The Alaskan towns are connected with the United States and with Canada by telegraph. There are about 140 post offices and good mail services in the territory.

HAWAII

Government.—The or Sandwich Islands formed during the greater part of nineteenth century an independent kingdom, but in the reigning Queen, Liliuokalani, was deposed and a provisional government formed; 1894 a Republic was proclaimed, and in accordance with a resolution of Congress of July 7, 1898, Islands August 12, 1898, formally to United States. On June 14, 1900, they constituted the Territory of . The Organic Act since been amended several times. There is a Legislature of two Houses, a of 15 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 30 members elected for two years. Sessions, limited to 60 days, held biennially. The Governor and Secretary appointed for four years by the President of the United States.

Governor.—W. F. Frear, 1911–15 (7,000 dollars).

Secretary.—E. A. Mott-Smith.

The Territory is represented in Congress by a delegate elected biennially.

In the Territory divided into 5 counties within which the local authorities had restricted powers. Under subsequent statutes county, of small and population, has been deprived for the part of the few powers it had originally, while the other four counties, of considerable size and population, have been given much larger powers. These counties collect a portion of their revenues and determine in part the of others, which collected by the Territory. On January 1, 1909, the county of Oahu converted into the city and county of Honolulu with enlarged powers.

Area and Population.—The total of the islands is 6,449 square miles. The principal islands of the group Hawaii, 4,015; Maui, 728; Oahu, 598; Kauai, 547; Molokai, 261; Lanai, 139; Niihau, 97; Kahoolawe, 69. According to the census taken on April 15, 1910, the total population of the islands numbered 191,909, an increase of 37,908, or 24.61 per cent. since 1900. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 29.75. The Capital, Honolulu, in the Island of Oahu, has 52,183 inhabitants.

The number of Hawaiians in the islands in 1910 26,041; the part-Hawaiians 12,506. The decrease in the number of Hawaiians in the ten years 1900–1910 3,746, and increase in part-Hawaiians 4,658. Of the part-Hawaiians, 8,772 are Caucasian-Hawaiian and 3,784 Asiatic-Hawaiian. There are 21,674 Chinese and 79,674 Japanese. The Portuguese number 22,803; the Spanish, 1,990; other Caucasians, chiefly Americans, British, and Germans, 14,867; and Porto Ricans, 4,890. Chinese, Japanese, and Korean immigration is prohibited. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, 266 Russian, 3,247 Spanish and Portuguese, and 3,043 Filipino immigrants introduced.

Religion and Instruction.—Nearly all the natives are Christians. There an Anglican bishop Honolulu; also a Roman bishop, ministers of various denominations. Schools are established all over islands, the sum expended for public instruction for the year ending June 30, 1912, 722,912 dollars, of which 92,577 dollars was for buildings. Elementary education has always been free. The language in general use in schools is English. 1912, there were public schools with 591 23,752 enrolled pupils; also 51 private schools with teachers 6,157 enrolled pupils. Of the pupils in public private schools 1912, 8,328 or part-Hawaiian, 5,331 Portuguese, 12,983 Asiatics, 1,169 American, 187 British, 308 German. In Hawaii besides, a normal training school, a reformatory industrial boys for girls; a College of Agriculture the Mechanic Arts.

Justice.—Hawaii has a supreme court, circuit courts, district a land registration court. The circuit judges sit also as juvenile courts. judges of supreme circuit are appointed by the United President; the district magistrates by the chief justice of the supreme court. There is also a United States District Court, the judges of which are appointed by the President.

In 1912 there were 9,032 convictions, nearly all the offences being of a trivial nature.

Finance, Defence.—Revenue is derived mainly from taxation of real and personal property, income and inheritance taxes, licences, land sales and leases, waterworks and road, school and poll taxes. For the year ending June 30, 1912, the revenue amounted to 4,315,972.76 dollars of which 2,560,505.88 dollars went to the Territory and 1,755,466.88 dollars to the counties. The Territory expended 2,327,770.17 dollars. On July 1, 1912, the bonded debt amounted to 5,454,000 dollars. In 1912 the assessed value of property was: real, 90,889,057 dollars; personal, 85,945,744 dollars; total, 176,834,801 dollars.

In June, 1912, the Hawaiian National Guard contained 1,100 men. The Federal Government, with a view to the protection of the Pacific Coast and the control of the Panama Canal, has voted money for the construction of extensive military works at Pearl Harbour, about 7 miles from Honolulu, and at Honolulu and other places on the island of Oahu. The dredging of Pearl Harbour channel was completed during the year ending June 30, 1912, and the construction of the dry dock, naval station, and fortifications is well in hand.

Production and Commerce.—The islands are to a great extent mountainous and volcanic, but the soil is highly fertile and productive. In 1910 there were 4,320 farms with an acreage of 2,590,600, of which 305,058 acres were improved land. Sugar and rice are the staple industries, while coffee, honey, hides, sisal, bananas, pine-apples, wool, tobacco, cotton, and rubber are also exported. In 1911 the sugar-crop amounted to over 566,821 tons. The sugar plantations are extensively supplied with irrigation canals, and this system is coming into general use. In 1912 there were forest reserves aggregating 683,101 acres, and other reserves are contemplated. In 1910 the Territory had 500 industrial establishments, employing a total of 7,572 persons (5,904 being wage-earners), having a capital of 23,875,000 dollars, the cost of material being 25,629,000 dollars and the value of the output 47,404,000 dollars.

For the year ended June 30, 1912, the imports from foreign countries amounted to 5,598,444 dollars, and the exports to foreign countries to 378,278 dollars. The shipments of merchandise from the United States to Hawaii amounted to 23,095,878 dollars, and those from Hawaii to the United States to 55,076,165 dollars, of which 48,143,580 dollars were for sugar, 1,817,979 dollars for refined sugar, 2,744,042 dollars for fruits, 835,641 dollars for coffee, and 212,146 dollars for rice. The imports from the United Kingdom in 1911 totalled 148,183, and the exports to the United Kingdom 4,023.

Shipping and Communications.—A considerable addition to the wharfrage accommodation of the port of Honolulu has been made, and the harbour has been enlarged and dredged to a depth that will admit the largest steamers afloat. At Hilo Bay, on the east side of Hawaii Island, the construction of a breakwater has begun, this being an important place for the shipment of sugar. At Kahului, the principal port on the island of Maui, the construction of a breakwater has been completed and dredging of the harbour has begun. Many lighthouses have been constructed in recent years.

Ten lines of steamers connect the islands with the United States, (Canada, Australia, the Philippines, China, and Japan. In the year 1912, 1,370,815 tons entered, and 429 of 1,359,109 tons cleared at the ports of the islands. An inter-island steam navigation company with 17 small steamers provides communication between the different islands. There are about 100 miles of railway in the islands, and 100 lines projected. There are telephones on the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, and Molokai; total length 600 miles; nearly every family in Honolulu has its telephone. Honolulu is lighted by electricity and has lines of electric tramways. The Marconi system of wireless telegraphy is in operation between the islands for commercial purposes and for communication with vessels at sea and with the Pacific coast.

PORTO

Government.—Porto Rico, by the treaty of December 11, 1898, ceded by Spain to the United States. Its constitution was determined by Act of Congress of April 12, 1900 (known as the "Organic Act") slightly amended May 1, 1900, and March 2, 1901. It has representative government, the franchise being restricted only to males (21 years), residence (one year), and citizenship (either Porto Rican or American). The Governor and the Executive Council, consisting of 11 heads of departments and 11 natives, are appointed for 4 years by the President of the United States, while the House of Delegates, consisting of 11 members (5 from each of the 7 electoral districts), and a Resident Commissioner to the United States, having a seat in Congress in Washington, are elected by the people for 4 years. The Council and the House of Delegates constitute the Legislative Assembly, with the veto power vested in the Governor. In each of the 71 muni-capitales of the island the mayor, city council, and other chief officials are elected by the people and they, in turn, appoint their subordinates. The essential features of the United States civil service have been incorporated into a local law by the Legislative Assembly. The judiciary comprises an Attorney General and staff and a United States court appointed by the President, a Supreme Court of 5 members also appointed by the President, 7 District Courts whose judges are appointed by the Governor, and 34 municipal courts and 61 justices of the peace elected by the people.

A revised "Organic Act," known as the Olmstead Bill, designed to replace the Act of April 12, 1900, is before the Congress of the United States. In December, 1910, it passed the lower house and now awaits the action of the Senate. The new act, in its projected form grants collective American citizenship to the people of Porto Rico and a partially but progressively elective senate, extends the appointive judiciary system, establishes a coordinate and cohesive form of insular government in which the legislative and executive functions are to be separated and provides an effective health service throughout the island.

Governor —George R. Colton

Secretary —M. Drew Cuello

Area, Population and Instruction The island has an area of 3 606 square miles. The population in 1910 was 1 118,012 or 118 per sq mile. The negroes in 1899 numbered 59,490, and mulattoes 304,352. There were 589,426 whites and 76 Chinese. The coloured population was 38.2 per cent of the whole. Chief towns, San Juan, 48,716 inhabitants (1910), Ponce 68,444, Mayaguez, 42,429. Of the working population, 63 per cent are engaged in agriculture, fisheries, and mining, 21 per cent in domestic and personal service, 8 per cent in manufacturing industries, 8 per cent in trade and transportation. In 1899 over 89 per cent of the population could neither read nor write. In 1899 the school system was reorganised and education made compulsory. In 1912 there were 1 168 common schools with 160,657 pupils enrolled, 19 high schools, and a well distributed system of night schools and kindergartens. There are also a number of private schools. The University of Porto Rico, established at Rio Piedra, 12 kilometres (about 7 miles) from San Juan, and open to both men and women, consists of a normal department, a college of liberal arts, a college of agriculture, with provision for departments of natural science and engineering, architecture, law, medicine, pharmacy, and for a university hospital. It maintains a farm and a dairy equipped with modern machinery and utensils and selected stock, and with the co-operation of the United States Agricultural Experiment Station at Mayaguez is offering a thorough course in theoretical and practical husbandry.

Finance —Revenues are derived from customs and excise, from the general property tax, a collateral inheritance tax, taxes on insurance companies and from licences and fees. Receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30 1912 —

The assessed value of property in 1911 was 178,275,000 dollars. The net public debt = 4,139,760 dollars.

The police force consists of about 700 men, and the military force of about 590.

Production, Industry and Commerce.—The cultivated land in 1910 was divided into 58,371 holdings, having a total of 2,085,162 acres, of which 1,570,304 acres were improved land. The chief products of the island are sugar, tobacco, coffee, pine apples, grape fruit, oranges, and other tropical fruits, island cotton, textile fibres, bat guano, phosphate, and vegetables, and the principal industries are manufactures of hats, embroidery, drawn work, rum &c. Sugar exported in 1912 amounted to 367,000 tons valued at 31,544,063 dollars, being 63 per cent of all products exported. In 1912, 111,682,615 cigars were consumed and 169,765,656 exported, or a total output of 281,448,271, while 532,431,000 cigarettes were consumed and 11,293,350 exported, or a total of 543,724,350. Over 5,000,000 pounds of leaf and wrap tobacco, valued at $320,130 dollars, were exported in 1912. Coffee was used from 33,937,021 pounds, valued at $4,992,779 in 1911, to 40,146,365 pounds, valued at $754,913 dollars in 1912. Orange exports amounted to 584,414 dollars, fresh pineapples to 684,774 dollars, canned pineapples to 258,671 dollars, grapefruit, a comparatively new product (7,586 dollars in 1907) amounted to 525,048 dollars, while coconuts amounted to 308,883 dollars. With the completion of the system of irrigation now being constructed on the southern coast by the Government, at a cost of 3,000,000 dollars, the output of the island will be enormously increased. In 1910 there were 939 industrial establishments in Porto Rico, employing 13,122 persons (15,582 wage earners), having a total capital of 25,544,385 dollars, with an output valued at 36,749,742 dollars. There is no established mining enterprise, but gold, silver, iron, copper, bismuth, tin, mercury, platinum and nickel are found in the island. There are very productive salt works. In 1912 the imports into Porto Rico amounted to 42,926,173 dollars, the domestic exports to foreign countries amounted to 49,705,418 dollars. Shipments of United States merchandise to Porto Rico, 37,424,545 dollars, of foreign merchandise from United States, 1,046,418 dollars. Shipments from Porto Rico to United States, value 42,873,401 dollars.

Shipping and Communications.—In 1911-12, American foreign vessels of 685,198 tons cleared from Porto Rico to the United States. The vessels of 13 steamship lines (5 Spanish, the others being French, German, American, Cuban, and British) visit the island. The harbour of San Juan, the chief port, and naval station proper, is being improved to have an entrance 600 yards wide and 30 feet deep.

There are over 1,000 miles of road, the island, and 220 miles of railway. The railway system connects towns on the west coast and almost encircles the island, and penetrates the interior. A new line is open from Rio Piedras to Caguas inland. Extensions of existing lines are being undertaken, and a line across the island, with many branches, is projected. There are 590 miles of postal (government) telegraph wire. The telephone (private) is in use and is being widely extended. There are 80 post offices, and telegraph stations.

The Porto Rican island of Vieques, miles to the east, is about miles long and 6 miles broad, and has about 10,000 inhabitants, who grow sugar and cattle. Like Porto Rico the island of Vieques is fertile and healthy.

The island of Culebra, between Porto Rico and Thomas, is a good harbour and has been transformed into a naval base. It is the rendezvous of the U.S. Atlantic and Caribbean squadrons.

British Consul—W. C. Churchward.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

These islands, ceded by Spain to the United States by the treaty signed by the Peace Commissioners December 10, 1898, extend almost due north and south from Formosa to Bouueo and the Moluccas, embracing an extent of 16° of latitude and 9° of longitude.

Governor (General)—W. Cameron Forbes appointed November 11, 1909.

Vice Governor—Newton W. Gilbert appointed February 10, 1910.

Area and Population.—The islands and islets are about 3,141 in number; the two largest are Luzon (40,469 square miles) and Mindanao (38,292 square miles), and the total area, including the Sulu Islands, is estimated at 127,853 square miles. An estimate of the population made by the United States Bureau of Statistics in 1911 and based on the census of 1903, put the total at 8,368,427. Owing to the fact that the census in question greatly underestimated the number of certain uncivilised tribes, then little known, the present correct figure is probably near 8,600,000, giving a density of population of 27 per square mile. Approximately 1,000,000 of the population are non-Christians and more primitive than the Christianised peoples.

The capital of the Archipelago is Manila, constituted as a province, with (1910) 234,409 inhabitants. Other towns with their estimated present population are: Iloilo on Panay, 60,000 (including suburbs), Cebu on Cebu, 60,000 (including suburbs), Iloilo, 43,000, Alibey (including Legaspi), 40,000; Nueva Caceres, 40,000; Vigan, 38,000, (all on Luzon), and Zamboanga on Mindanao, 24,000. Baguio in the Mountain Province, Luzon, is the summer capital, corresponding to Simla in India.

Movement of Population.—Vital statistics are yet restricted to Manila, which, with a population (1910) of 234,409 had in the year ending June 30, 1912, 8,638 deaths (or 36 per 1,000) and 9,840 births (or 39.84 per 1,000). Among the American residents, however, the death-rate is only 10 to 15 per 1,000.

About 40 per cent. of the recorded deaths are those of infants under one year old, and the number of infants' deaths, year — year, equals about 1 percent of births. This high infant death rate is set off by a high birth-rate. Sanitary supervision in the Archipelago is entrusted to a Bureau of Health, which has district health officers in the several provinces.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, there were 15,068 passengers arriving at the Philippine Islands — these, 4,817 — Americans, 1,194 citizens of the Philippines, 6,539 Chinese (5,596 having been in the islands before), 813 Japanese, and 2,205 of other nationalities. Under the Chinese exclusion Act (applied to the Philippines in 1902) Chinese immigration is prohibited. Under the Act Chinese labourers must be registered.

There are about 25,000 Americans and Europeans in the islands and about 40,000 Chinese. The native inhabitants are mostly of the Malayan race, but there are some tribes of Negritos.

Government.—The whole of the Archipelago is now under civil government, but in the Moro Province comprising parts of Mindanao and the Sulu Islands, most of the civil officers, including that of governor, are filled by military officers. The central government is composed of the Governor General, who is the chief executive and President of the Philippine Commission, and eight Commissioners (four Americans and four Filipinos).

The Philippine Commission constitutes the upper house, and the elective Philippine Assembly, which was first opened on October 16, 1907, the lower house, of the legislative body. The members of the Assembly hold office for four years, and the Legislature elects two Resident Commissioners to the United States, who hold office for the same term.

There are four executive departments, Interior, Finance and Justice, Commerce and Police, and Public Instruction, of which three American and one Filipino Commissioners are secretaries. A fifth department has been authorized by Congress, but has not as yet been created by the President. The islands are subdivided into provinces, each with a governor, secretary, treasurer, and prosecuting attorney. The provincial governor is elected by popular vote, except in the 6 provinces inhabited largely by Non-Christian tribes, in the Province of Batanes, in which the governor is appointed by the Governor General of the islands, with the advice and consent of the Philippine Commission. The government of the towns is practically autonomous, the officials being elected by the qualified voters of the municipality and serving for four years. The officials consist of a president, vice president, and councillors, the latter varying in number according to population. Local municipal government has been instituted in about 730 towns.

Justice and Defence.—For the administration of justice there is a Supreme Court, with 7 judges, 17 judicial districts, each with a court of first instance, and 1 additional judge of the court of first instance of Manila and 1 additional judge of first instance, who replace absent judges otherwise disqualified for any particular cases, also a court of land registration, with 5 judges. Public order is maintained through the municipal police and the Philippine Constabulary. The strength of the Constabulary at the close of the fiscal year, 1912, was 10,000 officers and 4,157 enlisted men, distributed throughout the Archipelago in 100 stations. The director, four of the 100 directors and two inspectors are detailed to the United States Army.

Religion.—The dominant religion of the islands is the Roman Catholic, there being in addition to one American archbishop, 5 American, 1 Italian, and 2 Filipino bishops, and 1 Spanish Apostolic Prefect. In Luzon — Independent Filipino Church has come into existence. The Moros — Mohammedans, and their are pagan tribes in some of the more remote regions.

Education — Education is under the direction of the Secretary of Public Instruction. The Archipelago is divided into 36 educational divisions. The teaching staff comprises 664 American teachers for all grades, and 1,066 Filipino teachers on Insular pay and 6,488 Filipino teachers paid by the municipalities. English is taught in all the public schools of the islands to the number of over 4,000. In 1911-12 there was an average daily attendance of 329,073 pupils in the public schools. The annual cost of teachers, &c., is about $3,450,000 dollars. A school for training teachers has been at work for many years, and industrial and trade schools have been established and great stress is laid on industrial work. For higher education there is the State supported University of the Philippines, with colleges of Liberal Arts, Medicine and Surgery, Engineering, Veterinary Medicine, Agriculture and the Fine Arts. An ecclesiastical institution, the University of Santo Tomas (founded 1611) at Manila has several faculties, including one of Medicine.

Finance — The revenues and expenditures for four fiscal years, ending June 30, were:

	1908		1909		1910		1911
	Dollars	Cents	Dollars	Cents	Dollars	Cents	Dollars	Cents
Revenues	1,115,000	37	1,188,000	17	1,198,000	11	1,180,000	21
Expenditures	1,085,500	11	1,111,000	4	1,195,000	18	1,190,000	22

The net revenues and expenditures under classified headings, excluding operations from all other funds or sources, are stated as follows for 1912 —

Revenue	Dollars	Expenditure	Dollars
Taxation	20,117.14	Current	17,089.49
Various	4,127.001	Capital	4,841.74
		Various	3,424.004
Total Revenue	24,244.141
Other receipts	1,992.27
Total	26,236.411	Total	25,355.238

(On August 1, 1904, a new internal revenue system came into force. With a number of exceptions taxes are levied on banking, insurance, commerce, industries, licences being required especially for the production and sale of ale, spirit, tobacco, &c., and matches. There is also a poll tax (the cedula) on males between 18 and 60. Of the proceeds of the internal revenue 70 per cent goes to the national government, 10 per cent to the provincial, and 20 per cent to the municipal governments. The municipalities are required to devote one-half of their share to public schools. There is a tax on real estate fixed at 1½ per cent of the assessed value in the provinces and varying with a maximum of 1 per cent in the other civilized provinces. This is not a government land rent, such as exists in India.

Production and Industry.—The chief products are rice, copra, abaca (Manila hemp), sugar, corn (maize), and tobacco. Agriculture, however, is still in a primitive condition, implements and methods being antiquated, farm animals scarce, labour and means of transport insufficient, and capital wanting for the proper development of the soil.

The total area cultivated (1912) was 5,870,592 acres, the largest crop being that of rice (2,600,392 acres). The total value of crops (1912) 79,880 dollars (rice, 32,995,971 dollars).

The Islands possess wide forests of valuable timber, gum, and dye woods, and are under the supervision of the Forestry Bureau, which frames plans and rules for their protection and working. They are divided into 11 forest districts, each containing a number of forest stations in charge of foresters, rangers, and inspectors. Each forest contains native trees of many species.

In the Philippine Islands little has, as yet, been done towards the development of the mineral resources, but prospecting is now proceeding vigorously. Lignite is found in many of the islands. Iron (magnetite and hematite) is found in several provinces. Gold is found in almost all the important islands, and in some of them has been long worked by natives, it is at present the most important of the mineral products. Silver has been found only in argentiferous galena, or alloyed with gold. Platinum has been detected in small quantity in the gold gravel deposits of Rizal (Luzon). Copper is reported from several regions, and important deposits, long worked by natives, occur in Mancayan (in the mountains of Northern Luzon). Lead and manganese have been discovered, and sulphur, petroleum, rock salt, kaolin, and gypsum are also found in the Archipelago. The total value of the mineral products during the calendar year 1911 amounted to 1,381,402 dollars.

Commerce.—The values of imports and exports for fiscal years ending June 30, are stated as follows in U. S. dollars:—

	1906	1909	1910	1911	1912
Imports	70,118,857	27,792,197	27,067,030	49,833,712	54,149,980
Exports	82,816,567	30,908,563	39,964,169	39,774,629	50,819,836

* Non dutiable merchandise from the United States imported by supply of the army, navy, and insular government, and railway free entries, are included in the figures for 1911 and 1912, but are excluded in figures for years prior thereto. Imports of gold and silver coin are excluded from the figures for the years prior to 1910.

Import duties, 1912, 7,502,961 dollars. Export duties, 1912, 1,058,902 dollars.

The chief imports and exports in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912 were:—

Imports (1912)	Dollars	Exports (1912)	Dollars
Rice	16,508,949	Hemp	15,288,510
Cotton and manufactures	8,246,791	Copra	10,514,749
Iron and steel, and various	6,031,603	Sugar	400,875
and dairy products	3,641,274	Cigars	2,600,001
flour	1,761,896	Tobacco	1,902,644
oils	1,207,180

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the commerce mainly distributed as follows:—

From or to	Imports	Exports	From or to	Imports	Exports
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
United States	90,170,526	21,614,686	Germany	2,389,299	4,141,755
United Kingdom	7,509,779	12,991,960	Spain	1,254,979	1,740,020
France	1,271,000	11,347,651	Australasia	3,126,275	1,622,760
French E. Indies	1,575,741	9,584,660	British E. Indies	1,950,748	3,120,144
Japan	3,734,714	4,424,540	China	1,978,315	2,891,848

Shipping and Communications.—In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, there entered 1,861,602 tons, and cleared 908 vessels of 1,808,808 tons, in the foreign trade.

On June 30, 1912, there were in operation, 587 post-offices, 1 money-order offices, 7,278 kilometers of Insular Telegraph lines, and 1,738 kilometers of cables. At the close of the fiscal year, 1912, there were 487 postal savings banks in operation, with 35,802 accounts. The amount of deposits in the banks on June 30, 1912, was 1,194,493 dollars. Of the depositors, 29,555 were Filipinos.

There were in 1912, 77 newspapers published in the Islands, 11 being in English, 17 in Spanish, 15 in native dialects, 9 in Spanish and English, 2 in English and 1 native dialect, and 12 in Spanish and native dialect.

When the United States entered the islands in 1898 there was but a single line of narrow gauge track running between Manila and Dagupan, a distance of about 120 miles. Under the authority of the Philippine Commission several important branches were added to this line, 428 miles on the island of Luzon and 181 miles on the islands of Cebu and Panay. The total length of lines in operation at the close of the fiscal year, 1912, was 641 miles with 455 miles to be constructed. Total length of roads (1912) 4,481 miles.

Banking and Coinage.—There were four banks doing business in the Islands: the International Banking Corporation, Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, and the Bank of the Philippine Islands, formerly the Banco Español Filipino.

When the United States took possession of the Islands the Mexican dollar was the chief current coin, and fluctuations in its value caused trouble. In 1903 an order was issued making one U.S. dollar equivalent to two Mexican dollars, but before long other coins were required and Congress passed an Act making a Filipino dollar (peso) of the value of 100 U.S. cents, to be guaranteed by gold. This law came into force in June, 1904, and has worked satisfactorily.

British Consul-General—A. E. Wilman.

Vice-Consul—Hilo.—E. St. C. Pardon.

GUAM

The Island of Guam situated at the southern extremity of the Marianas Archipelago, is the largest island of that group. It is ceded by Spain to the United States and, having a convenient harbour, it is now used as United States naval station. The length of the island is 18 miles, the breadth from 4 to 10 miles, and the area about 210 square miles. The capital is Agaña (5 miles distant from Apra Harbour). The number of inhabitants on June 30, 1912, was native, 12,189, foreign, including members of the naval establishment, 378 (American, European, Chinese, and Japanese), total, 12,517. The native language contains Chimoiro and Tagal words, but Spanish is also spoken, and the use of English is compulsory.

The Commandant of the naval station is also, by appointment of the President, Governor of the island. The judiciary system comprises one Island Court for the trial of all cases, criminal and civil, and one Court of Appeals. The Spanish Colonial laws, modified by executive general orders issued as necessary by the Governor, are in force.

There are 1,560 children from 6 to 12 years of age and a compulsory school system is in operation both at Agaña and in the villages. The children are taught in English, and learn also carpentry and other handicrafts. An agricultural experimental station has been established, supported by Federal appropriations.

Public works are being carried out, new roads constructed, and old ones kept in good condition. The Federal Government has provided water supply systems for the naval station and for the capital, Agaña, a town of more than 7,000 inhabitants, and for the village of Piti, the landing place. The Insular Government has installed water supply systems in the villages of Sinajana, Yncayan Merizo, Umata, and Asau. These furnish a plentiful supply of good, wholesome water. Extensions into the other villages are contemplated. The U. S. Naval Hospital comprises three commodious buildings, of which two are in operation and the third (for gungo and other special patients) completed. The station is equipped with a wireless telegraph plant. Electric lighting is installed in the city of Agaña, and ice is distributed to those desiring it. The harbour is being improved. Since April, 1905, the island has been in telegraphic communication with Yap in the Carolines, Manila, the Bonin Islands, San Francisco, and with Menado in Celebes and thus with the eastern telegraphic system. The telephone is in operation between Agaña and the outlying villages. There is a monthly mail service per U. S. army transports, from San Francisco via Honolulu, and to Manila. Japanese schooners ply their trade between Japan, via Saipan, and to Guam.

The products of the island are maize, copra, rice, sweet potatoes, coffee, cocoa, and sugar, besides valuable timber. There are about 5,000 head of cattle, including 800 water buffaloes. The imports into the island in the year ending June 30, 1912, amounted to $111,000 dollars, and the exports to $60,674 dollars, all for copra.

The official currency is that of the United States.

Governor.—Captain R. M. Cochrane, U. S. Navy.

SAMOAN ISLANDS

(AMERICAN SAMOA.)

The Island of Tutuila and all other islands of the Samoan group east of longitude 171 degrees west came into the possession of the United States in February, 1900. For many years American influence had been strong in Samoa. In 1872 the harbour of Pago Pago, in Tutuila, had been ceded to the United States for a naval and coaling station. In 1878 this cession was confirmed, and rights of freedom of trade and extra territorial jurisdiction in Samoa were granted. In 1889 was held at Berlin the conference between the representatives of the United States, Germany, and Great Britain, resulting in the treaty recognising the Samoan Islands as neutral territory with an independent government, the natives being allowed to follow their own laws and customs, while for civil and criminal causes in which foreigners were concerned, there was established a Supreme Court of Justice, in which an American citizen was the presiding judge. This arrangement continued till 1898, when disturbances regarding the right of succession to the office of king arose. In 1899 the kingship was abolished, and by the Tripartite Treaty of November 14 of that year, accepted in February, 1900, by the United States, Great Britain and Germany renounced in favour of the United States all rights over the island of Tutuila and the other islands of the Samoan group east of 171 degrees longitude west of Greenwich, the islands to the west of that meridian being assigned to Germany. The harbour of Pago Pago had, in fact, been occupied by the United States, under already existing treaty rights, in 1898.

The Island of Tutuila, 70 miles from Apia, has an area of about 54 square miles, with a population of 5,452. Manna and the other islets (Ofu and Olosega), have an united area of about 25 square miles, with about 1,797 inhabitants. Tutuila is mountainous, luxuriantly wooded and fertile. It is described as the most pleasing of the Samoan islands. The harbour at Pago Pago which penetrates the south coast like a fiord, is the only good harbour in Samoa. It is a United States naval station under a Commandant, the Government having acquired there a land area of about 40 square miles.

The Commandant is also the Governor of Tutuila by commission from the President. He appoints officers and frames laws or ordinances, but native customs (not inconsistent with United States laws) are not changed without the consent of the people.

The islands are organised in 3 political divisions:—1, the Eastern District of Tutuila with the islet of Anuanu; 2, the Western district of Tutuila; and 3, the District of Upolu and the neighbouring isles. In each District there is a native governor under whom are native high chiefs in the 'counties,' these having the control of village chiefs. Judicial power is vested in village courts, in 5 judicial district courts, and in a high court.

Ordinances have been made for the regulation of police, the importation of spirits, assessment of taxes, possession of arms, and other matters. The sale of native lands to whites is prohibited. Especial attention is given to the general health of the natives. Systematic efforts to eradicate the hookworm disease by sanitary education and treatment have met with a large measure of

There are 4 religious work. The London Missionary Society, the Roman Catholic (French) mission, the Mormon mission, and Wesleyan. Besides the sectarian schools, there are 3 non-sectarian schools, 1 maintained by the Island Government, and 2 mainly supported by natives. All the non-sectarian schools are supplied with text books, stationery, &c., by the Island Government. There are 81 schools in the islands, attended by 1,099 boys and 837 girls.

The natives usually pay their taxes in copra, the quantity of copra annually assessed for all purposes is from 500,000 to 550,000 lbs. The annual output of copra is 1,500 tons. At Lazarego the natives are allowed to pay their taxes in cash. There is a native guard (Fitaftas) of about 75, including the 14 members of the native band, trained by a drill sergeant and a bandmaster of the U.S. navy. The chief island products, besides copra, are taro, breadfruit, yams, coconuts, and bananas. In 1911 the imports at Pago Pago amounted to 94,190 dollars and the exports to 142,740 dollars. Vessels with an aggregate tonnage of 48,861 tons entered, and of 48,831 tons cleared.

The American flag has been hoisted on many small Pacific islands, some of them uninhabited rocks.

PART THE THIRD

OTHER COUNTRIES

ABYSSINIA.

(ETHIOPIA.)

Government.

THE ancient Empire of Abyssinia, ■ 'Ethiopia,' includes the kingdoms ■ Tigra, with Lasta, in the north east, Amhara, with Gojam, in the west and centre, Shoa ■ the south, besides territories and dependencies ■ far as Kaffa ■ the south and Harar in the south east, with considerable portions of the Galla and Somali Lands. The whole ■ is 432,432 sq miles, with ■ estimated population of 3 millions. For treaties relating to the boundaries of Abyssinia see Statesman's Year Book for 1907, p 667. An agreement was reached in December, 1907, for the delimitation of the frontier towards British East Africa. The frontier follows the Dawa up to Ursulli, whence it ■ mainly westwards passing the south end of Lake Stephanie, and after crossing the north eastern branch of Lake Rudolf, runs mainly northwards and terminates at ■ ■ ■ E. This frontier however ■ not yet finally delimited and accepted by the Abyssinians.

Under an Agreement signed December 13, 1906, on behalf of Great Britain, France and Italy, the three Powers undertake to respect and endeavour to preserve the integrity of Abyssinia, to act ■ that industrial concessions granted in the interest of one of them may not injure the others, to abstain from intervention ■ Abyssinian internal affairs, to concert together for the safe guarding of their respective interests in territories bordering on Abyssinia, and they make agreements concerning railway construction in Abyssinia and equal treatment in trade and transit for their nationals. Another convention of the same date provides for the prohibition or regulation of the importation of arms and ammunition into Abyssinia.

After the overthrow of Theodor King of Amhara, by the British in 1868, the sovereign power passed to Prince Kasai of Igire, who assumed the old title of Negus Negust ('King of kings'), and was crowned in 1872 as Johannes II Emperor of Ethiopia. After the death of this potentate in 1889, Menelik II king of Shoa (born 1842), G C B, G C M G, became the supreme ruler of Abyssinia. Menelik has ■ direct heir, but he has proclaimed as his successor Liy Yasu (or Lij Yessu) G C A O, son of Menelik's daughter, Walzato Shoa Begem and Bis Mikael, now (1913) about 16 years old. Liy Yasu owing to the illness of the Emperor Menelik (since 1909) fulfils the functions generally performed by his grandfather. The political institutions ■ essentially of a feudal character, analogous to those of medieval Europe. There ■ a vague State Council consisting of the most important rases, under whom, for administrative purposes, ■ governors of districts and provinces and chefs of villages. A Council of Ministers has been constituted by the Emperor, Ministers being appointed for Justice, Finance, Commerce, War, Foreign Affairs, Posts and Telegraphs, Interior, and ■ sort of Lord Privy Seal. The ■ important Minister is the Minister of War. The Council met for the first ■ July, 1908, and ■ employed chiefly ■ defining the duties and powers of the ■ departments. The legal system ■ said ■ based on the Justinian Code. The regular army, consisting of contingents from the ■ provinces, numbers about 150,000 men, and is supplemented by irregular ■ territorial army. Theoretically, but not ■ fact, every ■ the regular army is mounted. The forces are stationed in garrisons over the country. Population.

The population consists of Semitic Abyssinians, Galla, Somalis, Negroes (in the South West), and Falashas (of Jewish religion) with a considerable number of natives (Indians, Arabs, Greeks, Armenians, and a few Europeans). Except Harar, and perhaps in the north, there are no towns in Abyssinia in our sense of the word—not even Adis Ababa, which consists of villages and suburbs scattered round the Palace. It would be about three miles in diameter. The most important towns, politically and commercially, are Gondar, capital of Amhara, 3,000, Addis, capital of Tigre, 3,000, Aksum, ancient capital of Ethiopia, and still the seat of Abuna, 5,000, Antalo, former capital of Tigre, 1,000, Ankober, former capital of Shoa, 2,000, Adis Ababa, present capital of Abyssinia and Shoa, 40,000–50,000, Daba labor (Mount Tabor), Magdala, and Makalle; Gore, Saryu, Nekemti, Samere, 3,000–4,000, and Sokoto, 1,500, important trading centres, Mahdara Munam (Marsa Rest), 4,000. The population of Harar is estimated at 50,000, at Dui Dawa there are a considerable number of Europeans. Gambula in Western Abyssinia is a trading station leased to the Sudan Government. It is an important outlet for the trade in the West. A service of steamers are maintained from June to November with Khartoum.

Religion and Instruction.

Since the conversion of the Abyssinians to Christianity in the fourth century they have remained members of the Alexandrian Church. The Abuna, or head bishop, is always a Copt, appointed and consecrated by the Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria, but his influence is controlled by the Erhagich, a native ecclesiastical dignitary, who presides over the spirituality, numbering about 100,000 ecclesiastics. Both Copts and Abyssinians are monophyrites, rejecting the decrees of the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451).

Education has hitherto been restricted to the teaching of the secular and regular clergy, but in October, 1907, the Emperor issued an edict enjoining compulsory education on all male children over the age of 12. This is, however, a dead letter. There is a school at Adis Ababa, directed by a few Coptic teachers, introduced by the Abuna—this is the only Abyssinian school in the country. It has over 100 pupils, but the attendance is most irregular, and the institution unpopular as yet with the ignorant people. Justice is administered by the provincial governors, and shums, or petty chiefs, with the right of appeal to the Emperor.

Agriculture.

The chief industries are pastoral and agricultural. Cattle, sheep, and goats. The cattle are fine, but there is much loss from cattle plague. The horses of the country are small but hardy, mules are bred everywhere, being used as pack animals, donkeys are also small and useful for baggage animals. The soil belongs theoretically to the Negus, the idea of landed property scarcely exists among the populace, and agriculture is therefore backward. Cotton, the sugar-cane, date-palm, coffee, and many other things thrive in many districts, but nowhere extensively cultivated. The production of Harari coffee (long berry Mocha) is on the increase. But this, which is cultivated, there is especially in southern Abyssinia a wild coffee plant, yielding a berry known as Abyssinian coffee, which may have commercial possibilities in the future. At present, owing principally to indifferent presentation, it does not command a good price, except at Khartoum, where it is preferred to Brazilian. Besides hides and skins the native produce includes barley, millet (dihurra), wheat, gesho (which is used as a substitute for hops), tobacco, but not in sufficient quantities for export. Manufacturing industries are few and similar to those of the surrounding countries. The forests abound in valuable trees and rubber. Iron is abundant in some districts and is manufactured into spears, knives, hatchets &c. Placer gold mining and washing are carried on in many districts, coal is known to exist in the country, silver, copper, and sulphur have been found.

Commerce.

The value of exports and imports through Jibuti in 1910 was about 950,147l., and in 1911, 819,030l., and through Gambela and Western Abyssinia to the Sudan in 1911, 116,432l., besides British East Africa, Zeila, and the Italian (colony) trade. The exports by Jibuti are estimated at about 469,484l., and through Gambela and Western Abyssinia, 75,609l. The exports consisted mainly of hides and skins, coffee wax, ivory, civet and native butter. The imports comprised grey shirting (abujedni), cotton goods, arms and ammunition provisions, liquors, railway material and petroleum. The imports are chiefly from England, France, India, Italy and the United States. The direct imports from Abyssinia into Great Britain in 1911 amounted to the value of 179l. the domestic exports from Great Britain to Abyssinia amounted in 1911 to 2,441l.

Abyssinia has commercial treaties with Great Britain (189) for most favoured nation treatment with Italy (1897) terminable on 3 months notice, with the United States (1893) for 10 years then subject to one year notice with Germany and Austria Hungary (190) for 10 years then subject to one year notice with France (1904) for 10 years and then subject to 3 years notice.

Communications.

Roads in Abyssinia are mere tracks, and transport is effected by mules, pack horses, donkeys, and, in some places, camels. In the capital and its vicinity a few miles of metalled road have been constructed. There is a railway of a metre gauge from the port of Jibuti in French Somaliland to Dere Dawa (about 25 miles from Harar) in the south east of Abyssinia, 187 miles. In January, 1909, a new company was formed to complete the line to Adis Ababa, taking the portion completed on French territory. The survey for the new line has been made and the section to the Hawash River 150 miles from Dere Dawa and the distance from Adis Ababa, is expected to be finished by the autumn of 1913. There are telegraph lines (1,056 miles) connecting Adis Ababa with Harar, with Sidamo, with Jibuti in French Somaliland, and with Mawraa in Eritrea. Telephone lines connect Adis Ababa with Harar, also with Gore and Gambela (in the west), Jimma and Shuaba (south west), Dessie (north), and Debia Tabor and Gojam, and with Ankober, and Asmara with Adua and Barronaida.

Money and Credit.

The Bank of Abyssinia, with authorised capital of 500,000l. and paid up capital of 125,000l., has its head office at Adis Ababa and agencies at Harar, Dere Dawa, Gore, Sana, Gambela and Desse. By its constitution the Governor of the National Bank of Egypt is its President, and its governing body is the Cairo. The current coin of Abyssinia is the Theresa dollar, but the coinage (coined at Paris) has been put in circulation, with the Menelik dollar for the standard. This coin, the talari, or dollar, worth about 2s., weighs 28 grammes, 835 fine. It has nominally the same value as the Theresa dollar, but the capital is liked, and in some places is not taken. The Bank of Abyssinia introduced a large stock of 100l. notes (16 dollars) Other

AFGHÁNISTÁN.

AFGHÁNISTÁN is a country of Asia lying between parallels 29° and 38° 20' of north latitude, and 61° and 72° of east longitude, with a long strip extending to 75° east longitude (Wákhán). On the north-east, the boundary follows a line running generally westward from a fixed point of the peaks of the Sarikol Range to Lake Victoria, thence along the line of that branch of the Oxus which issues from the lake, and so, following the of the Oxus, to Khamiáb. From Khamiáb, the line in a south-westerly direction to Zulfikár, the river Hari-Rúd, and thence by Kál-i-Kalla to Hashradan. Between Hashradan and Siah Koh, north of Bandan, the boundary is undefined. The Helmund river forms the boundary between Siah Koh and Band-i-Seistan and thence the boundary in a straight line to Koh-i-Malik Siah where the frontiers of Persia, Afghánistán and Baluchistan meet. Here the boundary turns round and runs generally eastwardly to the Khwája Amran range. The eastern and southern boundaries of Afghánistán long remained uncertain, but the basis of a delimitation settled in 1893, at a conference between the late Amir, Abdur Rahmán, and Sir Mortimer Durand, and the boundary agreed upon, with the exception of the Khaibar-Asmar section, has since been demarcated. The Amir agreed that Chitral, Bajaur and Swát should be included within the British sphere of political influence. While he himself was to retain Asmar and the Kunar valley above it, as far as Arnawai, and the tract of Birmal, west of Waziristán. In the subsequent demarcation, Káfiristán was included within the countries under Afghán control, and has since been partially garrisoned by the Amir's troops. The Amir has withdrawn his pretensions to Waziristán. Between March, 1903, and May, 1905, the boundary towards Persia was demarcated from Koh-i-Malik Siah to the Helmund, and thence to Siah Koh. In July, 1905, Sir Henry McMahon announced his award concerning disputed water rights over the Helmund river, but the award has not yet been ratified by the Persian Government.

Habibullah Khán, the reigning Amir, son of Abdur Rahmán Khán, grandson of Afzul Khán, and great-grandson of Dost Muhammad Khán, born July 3, 1872, and succeeded on the death of his father, October 3, 1901. The Amir has five sons:—Inayatulla Khán (born Oct. 20, 1888), Hayatulla Khán (born Dec. 29, 1888), Amánulla Khán (born June 1, 1892), Kabirulla Khán (born Oct. 4, 1895), and Asadulla Jan (born May 23, 1910). Brothers of the Amir:—Nasrulla Khán (born April 7, 1875), Aminulla Khán (born Oct. 12, 1885), Muhammad Umar Khán (born Sept. 16, 1889), Ghulám Ali Khán (born Sept. 3, 1890).

In 1896, the Amir Abdur Rahmán formally assumed the title of Zia-ul-Mil-at-waddín, 'Light of the Nation and Religion.' The present ruler has formally adopted the title of Siraj-ul-Mil-at-waddín, 'Lamp of the Nation and Religion.'

The origin of the Afgháns is involved in obscurity. The Pathán dynasties of Delhi form part of Indian history. The whole of Afghánistán was conquered by Timúr, Kábul remaining in the hands of his descendants, and Kandahár being added to it by Sultán Bábar in 1522. For the next two centuries Kábul held by the Mughal Emperors of Delhi, and Herát by Persia, while Kandahár repeatedly changed hands between the two. Nádir Sháh, the Persian, held the Afghán provinces till his assassination in 1747, after which the provinces were formed into a single empire under Ahmad Sháh, Durráni, including the Punjab and Kashmir to the east, and extending to the north. After various insurrections and interferences by Great Britain, ■ the ■ of 1880, when Kabul and Kandahar were held by British troops, the British Government offered the Amirship of Kabul to Abdur Rahman, who accepted it and the British force withdrew. Abdur Rahman agreed to leave the control of his foreign relations to the British Government, who, on their part, undertook not ■ interfere in the internal government of Afghanistan, and, ■ of unprovoked foreign aggression ■ Afghan dominions to aid the Amir in such ■ ■ to them might seem ■ ■ ■, provided he unreservedly followed their advice in regard to his external relations. In 1893 this position was ■ ■ ■, and in a formal treaty signed ■ Kabul dated March 21, 1905, Amir Habibulla Khan accepted unreservedly the engagements which his father ■ ■ entered into with the British Government. In the Anglo-Russian agreement of August 31, 1907, Great Britain undertakes neither to annex nor occupy any portion of Afghanistan nor to interfere in the internal administration of the country, provided the Amir fulfils his engagements towards the British Government. The Russian Government declares that Afghanistan is outside the sphere of Russian influence, and engage that their political relations with Afghanistan shall be conducted through the British Government. The principle of equality of commercial opportunity will be observed.

The government of Afghanistan is monarchical under ■ hereditary prince, whose power varies with his own character and fortune. The dominions ■ are politically divided into the four provinces of Kabul, Turkistan, Herat, and Kandahar, Badakhshan being now under Turkistan. Each province ■ under ■ ■ ■ ■ or governor (called Naib ul Hukums), under whom nobles dispense justice after ■ feudal fashion. Spoliation, exaction, and embezzlement are almost universal.

Area, Population, Defence.

The extreme breadth of Afghánistan from north to south is about ■ miles, its length from the Herat frontier to the Kharibar Pass, about 600 miles; the ■ ■ about 250,000 square miles. The surrounding countries are, on the north, the Central Asian States, under the influence of Russia, ■ the west, Persia; on the south, the British Political Agency of Baluchistan and the North West Frontier Province, and ■ the east, the mountain tribes scattered along the north western frontier of India, and included within the sphere of British influence.

Population about 5,900,000, the dominant race being the Durránis, and the most ■ ■ the Ghilzais, who amount to about 1,625,000 souls; then follow the Tajiks, Hazais, and Aimaks, Uzbaks.

Justice ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ supposed to be administered by a kázi, ■ chief magistrate, assisted by miftis, or mohlaui (the latter ■ species of detective officers), and regulated by laws ■ which, if rightly acted on, would be tolerably equitable.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ revenue of Afghánistan is subject to considerable fluctuations. The Government share of the produce recoverable ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ said to vary from one-third to one-tenth, according to the advantages of irrigation. The Amir ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ a subsidy from the Indian Government, ■ Rs. 1,850,000 a year. ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ total revenue is estimated ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ between ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ and 13 million rupees, but this estimate ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ probably too low.

In addition to ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ regular army ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ Amir's military forces ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ largely supplemented by local levies of horse ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ foot. The mounted levies ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ simply the retainers of great chiefs, or of the latter's wealthier vassals. The foot levies are now permanently embodied, and ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ irregulars forms a valuable auxiliary to the regular infantry. The mountain batteries are believed to be serviceable. As engineers, the Hazara 'sappers,' who are regularly enrolled, are excellent workmen. The Afghan army is said to number between 50,000 and 60,000 men, including 15,000 cavalry and 45,000 gun. In 1896, the Amir ordered a conscription of one man in every seven; the conscription was carried out in a characteristically loose fashion, and then in many districts where it has been impossible to enforce it. Cannon, rifles, and ammunition are manufactured at the Kabul arsenal, and there are also mountain guns and Howitzers from Essen. Apart from large numbers of weapons of precision smuggled through Persia the State possesses probably enough breech loading rifles to equip 100,000 infantry, but it is uncertain how many of these weapons have been issued, or to what extent the troops are trained in their use. Few, if any, of the regimental officers can be considered competent either to instruct or lead the troops. In recent years the Amir has entertained several Turkish officers for the training of his army, and considerable improvement has resulted.

Production.

There are five classes of cultivators—1st, proprietors, who cultivate their own land, 2nd, tenants, who hire it for a rent in money or for a fixed proportion of the produce, 3rd, baggers, who use the same as the métayers in France, 4th, hired labourers, and, 5th, villeins, who cultivate their lord's land without wages—i.e. slaves. There are two harvests in the year in most parts of Afghanistan. One of these is sown in the end of autumn and reaped in summer, and consists of wheat, barley, Erium Lens, and Cicer minimum, with peas and beans. The other harvest is sown in the end of spring and reaped in autumn. It consists of rice, millet, arna (Panicum stolonum), Indian corn, &c. The castor oil plant madder and the saxifraga plant abound. The fruits, viz. the apple, pear, almond, peach, quince, apricot, plum, cherry, pomegranate, grape fig, mulberry, are produced in profuse abundance. They form the principal food of a large class of the people throughout the year, both in the fresh and preserved state, and in the latter condition are exported in great quantities.

Northern Afghanistan is reputed to be tolerably rich in copper, and lead is found in many parts. Iron of excellent quality is found from Bazar (outside Afghanistan), and the Farnah district (or Barmah), and a gold mine is being successfully worked under the supervision of a British expert at Kandahar, and is expected to yield a good profit, gold in small quantities is also brought from the Laghman Hills, and Kunai. Badakhshan is famous for its precious stones, especially lapis lazuli. The Amir has frequently engaged European geologists and mining experts to search for coal, but hitherto with little success.

Silks, felts, carpets, articles from camels and goats' hair, and other articles are manufactured for local consumption. The sheepskin poshtin manufacture is one of the most important industries.

Trade

The registration of the trade of Afghanistan has yet been obtained. The frontier trade between Afghanistan and Afghanistan (according to statistics) follows for four years ending March 31 —

AFGHÂNISTÂN

Imports from India	570 4 9	191 088	103	852
Exports into Afghanistan	714 274	84 413	974 996	877

Of the exports from India to Afghanistan the chief items are cotton goods, indigo and other dyeing materials, sugar, and tea, mostly the China leaf. The imports into India include horses, fruits and vegetables, grain and pulse, ghi and other provisions, assafetida and other drugs, spices, wool, silk, cattle, hides, tobacco. The through transit duties levied by the Amir have been reduced, but the rates on imports into Afghanistan remain very high.

The imports from Bokhara are stated to amount to nearly 4,000,000 roubles, and the exports to Bokhara to as much.

The rupee appears to be the usual currency, though Government demands are often paid in kind.

The Amir's mint at Kabul was for many years under the supervision of a European. The current coins in Kabul are Dinari, Paisa, Shahi, Samanu or Misqali, Abbasi, Qaran, Rupee and Tumani. Dinari and Tumani are imaginary coins intended for purposes of calculation only. Paisa and Shahi are copper coins, and Misqali, Abbasi, Qaran and Rupee are silver coins.

10 Dinari	= 1 Paisa or 2 Shahi	1 Abbasi	= 1 Qaran
1 Paisa	= 1 Shahi	1 Qaran	= 1 Rupee
2 Shahi	= 1 Samanu or Misqali	20 Rupees	= 1 Tumani
2 Samanu	= 1 Abbasi

One Afghan Rupee is equal to about eightpence.

The trade routes of Afghanistan are as follows:—From Persia by Mashad to Herat, from Bokhara by Merv to Herat, from Bokhara by Kashghar, Balkh, and Khulm to Kabul, from East Turkistan by Chitral to Jalalabad, but chiefly over the Khawak, from India by the Khaibar and Abkhina roads to Kabul, from India by the Gomal Pass to Ghazni, from Chaman, the terminus of the North Western Railway, to Kandahar and thence to Kabul or Herat.

The Khaibar and Bolan roads are fit for light wheeled traffic as far as Kabul and Kandahar respectively. During the last two or three years the Amir has paid great attention to the improvement of the roads through out the country. His Majesty is introducing a small motor car service to connect between Kabul and Peshawar, and it will carry the Afghan post and possibly passengers. A motor car recently performed the journey between Kabul and Peshawar in the space of 1 day. There is, however, no wheeled carriage, except artillery, proper to the country, and merchandise is still transported on camel or pony back. There is practically no navigable river in Afghanistan, and timber is the only article of commerce conveyed by water, floated down the Helmand in rafts. Telephonic communication exists between Jalalabad and Kabul, and is being extended to Kandahar.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

(REPÚBLICA ARGENTINA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Constitution of the Argentine Republic bears date May 15, 1853, with modifications in 1860 and 1898. The executive power is left to the President, elected for six years by electors appointed by the fourteen provinces, equal to double the number of senators and deputies combined; while the legislative authority is vested in a National Congress, consisting of a Senate and a House of Deputies, the former numbering 30, two from the capital and from each province, elected by a special body of electors in the capital, and by the legislatures in the provinces; and the latter 130 members elected by the people. By the Constitution there should be one deputy for every 33,000 inhabitants. A deputy must be 25 years of age, and have been a citizen for four years. The deputies are elected for four years, but one-half of the House must retire every two years. Senators must be 35 years of age, have been citizens for six years. One-third of the Senate is renewed every three years. The two chambers meet annually from May 1 to September 30. The members of both the Senate and the House of Deputies each receive 18,000 pesos per annum. A Vice-President, elected in the same manner and at the same time as the President, fills the office of Chairman of the Senate, but has otherwise no political power. The President is commander-in-chief of the troops, and appoints to all civil, military, and judicial offices, and has the right of presentation to bishoprics; he is responsible with the Ministry for the acts of the executive; both President and Vice-President must be Roman Catholics, Argentine by birth, and cannot be re-elected.

President of the Republic.—Dr. Roque Sáenz Peña; elected March, 1910; assumed office, October 12th, 1910.

Vice-President.—Dr. Victorino de la Plaza.

The Ministry, appointed by and acting under the orders of the President, consists of eight Secretaries of State—namely, of the Interior, Foreign Affairs, Finance, War, Justice and Public Instruction, Agriculture, Marine, and Public Works.

The President has a salary of 96,000 dollars paper, and 28,800 dollars paper for official expenses; the Vice-President 36,000 dollars paper for his salary, and 24,000 dollars for official expenses, and each of the eight ministers 40,800 dollars per annum.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The Constitution, with certain small exceptions, is identical with that of the United States. Such matters as affect the Republic as a whole are under the superintendence of the Central Government. The Republic is divided into 14 provinces, 2 territories and 1 federal district (Buenos Aires). The governors of the various provinces are invested with very extensive powers, and their constitutional functions are independent of the central executive. They are elected by the people of each province for a term of three years and four years. The provinces elect their own legislatures, and have complete control over their own affairs. The territories are under the supervision of governors appointed by the President. In Buenos Aires municipal government is exercised by a Mayor appointed by the National Government with the approval of the Senate. It is assisted by a deliberative council elected by tax-paying inhabitants of the various city parishes. This body has no measures relating to city finance, works, and general administration, ■■■ its decisions are carried out by the executive. Other municipalities have constitutions ■ a similar nature.

Religion and Instruction.

The Roman Catholic religion is that of the State, but all other creeds are tolerated. There is 1 archbishop (Buenos Aires) and 8 suffragan bishops. For the clergy there are 5 seminaries. In 1884 civil marriage was established in the Republic.

Primary education is free (subsidised by the General and Provincial Governments), secular and compulsory for children from 6 to 14 years of age. In the capital and the territories it is under the charge of a national council of education, assisted by local school councils; and in the 14 provinces under their respective governments. Population of school age (1911), 1,025,570, of whom 45 per cent. attended school; of the latter only 13 per cent. could read and write. Of the total population over 14 years of age, 50.5 per cent. were illiterate. There were (1911) 7,163 primary schools, public and private, with 746,725 pupils and 22,456 teachers. The secondary or preparatory education is controlled by the general Government, which maintains 27 national colleges with 10,237 pupils and 1,533 teachers. There are also 62 normal schools with 5,954 pupils and 1,858 teachers. Twenty schools for special instruction (commercial, industrial, artistic, also for the blind, &c.) with 6,848 pupils. There are 3 national universities at Córdoba, Buenos Aires, and La Plata, provincial universities at Santa Fé, and Paraná, comprising faculties of law, medicine, agriculture and engineering, with 1,100 professors and a total of 7,317 students. The university of Buenos Aires in 1911 had 4,364 students; a school of mines (39 students), a college of agriculture, a naval and a military school. There is a well-equipped national observatory at Córdoba, and another at La Plata, museums at Buenos Aires and La Plata, and a national meteorological bureau at Córdoba.

In 1911 the Government spent 19,241,252 dollars on education.

In Argentina there were 794 newspapers published, 1,000 in Spanish, 100 in Italian, 6 in German, 10 in English, and others in Scandinavian, French, Basque, Russian.

Justice.

Justice is administered by the Federal Courts and by Provincial Courts. The former are only with one of a national character, in which different provinces are represented by different provinces as parties. The Federal Courts are the Supreme Courts, with 5 judges at Buenos Aires; 1 Appeal Courts, each with 3 judges, at Buenos Aires, La Plata, Paraná, Córdoba, and Rosario of 2nd instance in each of the provinces and territories. Each province has its own judicial system, with a Supreme Court (generally so-called) and several minor courts. Trial by jury is established by the Constitution for criminal cases and is practised.

ARMY.

The army of the Argentine Republic is a National Militia, service which is compulsory for all citizens from their 20th to their 45th year. For the first 10 years the men belong to the 'active' army, the first line. After completing 10 years in the first line, the men pass to the National Guard and serve in it for another 10 years, finishing their service with 2 years in the Territorial Guard. The period of continuous service, training in the ranks, is for the greater proportion of the annual contingent only 3 months, the remainder serve for 1 year. The reservists can be called out for training periodically.

The territory of the Republic is divided into 5 military districts, each of which provides on mobilisation a complete division of the first line, and also a reserve division, irrespective of the National Guard and Territorial troops. The strength of the 'active' divisions will be about 12,000 each. The 'active' army comprises 9 regiments of cavalry, 5 regiments of field artillery of 4 batteries each, 2 batteries of field howitzers and 2 mountain batteries, 2 battalions of engineers and 1 railway battalion, 10 regiments of infantry of 2 battalions each and 2 separate battalions. Batteries have 6 guns.

The total peace strength of the army is about 215,000 officers and men. There is a reserve numbering 150,000.

The weapon of the Argentine infantry is at present the Mauser magazine rifle. The cavalry have a carbine of the same system. The artillery is armed with a Krupp 7.5 cm gun.

Military expenditure is somewhat less than 2,000,000 per annum.

In 1899 a conversion law was approved by Congress fixing the value of the paper dollar at 44 cents gold. On December 31, 1912, the gold held by the Bank of the Argentine nation and the Conversion Office amounted to 259,062 dollars. In December, 1912, the total circulation in currency, nickel and copper, equivalent to 13,671,947¹/₂ dollars. On December 31, 1912, there was paper money in circulation to the value of 722,924,213 dollars.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The silver Peso is equal to dollar of 100 centavos is of the value of 4s at par. The dollar gold piece weighs 8.0645 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 7 grammes of fine gold. One pound sterling = 5.01 gold dollars.

The silver dollar (like the French 5 franc piece) weighs 25 grammes fine, and thus contains 22.5 grammes of fine silver. There are 50, 20, and 10 centavo silver coins, and both nickel and copper fractional money.

Practically the standard of value is gold. The money in circulation is chiefly paper. The paper dollar, being convertible at 44 gold dollar, is worth 1s 8¹/₂d (11.45 to the £).

Since January 1, 1887 the use of the French metric system is compulsory.

The imperial and royal family descends from Rudolf of Habsburg, a German Count, born 1218, who was elected King of the Romans in 1273. In 1282 he bestowed the Duchy of Austria upon his son Albrecht afterwards Roman Emperor. The male line died out in 1740 with Emperor Karl VI (III of Hungary, whose only daughter, Maria Theresa, gave her hand (1736) to Duke Franz of Lothrine and Tuscany afterwards Kaiser Franz I of the House of Lorraine, who thereby became the founder of the new line of Habsburg Lorraine. Maria Theresa succeeded, in 1780, by her son Joseph II, who, dying in 1790 succeeded by his brother Leopold II, at whose death, in 1792 his son Franz II (I of Hungary) ascended the imperial throne. He reigned till 1835, and, having been married four times, left a large family, whose descendants form the present Imperial House. Franz was the first sovereign who assumed the title of Emperor, or 'Kaiser, of Austria, on being compelled by Napoleon, in 1806, to renounce the imperial crown of Rome, for more than three centuries practically in the Habsburg family. For about two years, however, he had already coupled with his title of Emperor of the Romans that of Hereditary Emperor of Austria. Franz I as he now called himself, was succeeded by his son, Emperor Ferdinand I (I of Hungary), whose abdication, Dec. 2, 1848, the Emperor told to his nephew, the present Emperor King Franz Josef I.

The present Emperor King has a civil list of £ 600,000 crowns. A moiety of this sum, 11,300,000 crowns, is paid to him as Emperor of Austria, out of the revenues of Austria, and the other moiety as King of Hungary, out of the revenues of Hungary.

Political Delimitation between Austria and Hungary.

Austria and Hungary or, as in international relations they officially called, the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, consists of the States, the Austrian Empire and the Hungarian Kingdom. The relation between the two States is present and was fully regulated by so called Compromise (Ausgleich, kiegyezés) of 1867. According to this agreement the two States are perfectly independent of each other, possessing each its own constitution, its legislative power and its executive departments for most branches of State affairs. There is, however, a close political connection between them through the identity of the Sovereign and the community of certain departments of State affairs.

The common head of the monarchy is the Emperor (Kaiser) of Austria and Apostolic king (Apostoli Kiraly) of Hungary. The crown is hereditary in the Habsburg-Lorraine dynasty, passing by right of primogeniture and linal succession to males and (on failure of males) to females (the so-called "successio mixta"). The monarch must be a member of the Roman Catholic Church. He is styled 'His Imperial and Apostolic Royal Majesty, being Emperor of Austria, King of Bohemia, &c., and Apostolic king of Hungary.'

Affairs common to the two States are:—(1) Foreign affairs, (2) military and naval affairs, and (3) finance relating to common affairs. The two States administer these matters by common institutions and ministries. The conduct of all diplomatic affairs and the diplomatic representation of the two States abroad is common to both. The greater part of the armed force and the entire navy is common, but the Austrian Landwehr and Austrian Levy in mass and the Hungarian Honvedség and the Hungarian Levy in mass, although standing in organic connection with the common army, are special institutions administered by a particular ministry of each State. The financial business is in so far common, as the costs and expenses are common, which are applied for the common institutions and their conduct, but each State provides separately for the assessment, collection, and transmission of its contribution.

Legislative power relating to common affairs (including the voting of money for common purposes) is exercised by the Parliaments of both States, but the duty of examining the requirements of the common services and advising what amount of money should be voted for each belongs to the so-called Delegations. Of these there are two, each consisting of 60 members, of whom 30 are chosen from each of the Upper Houses (the Austrian Herrenhaus and the Hungarian Forudház), and 40 from each of the Lower Houses (the Austrian Abgordnetenhau and the Hungarian Kisevveloház). The members are appointed for one year. The Delegations are summoned annually by the Emperor and King, alternately at Vienna and Budapest. They deliberate independently of each other, their decisions being communicated reciprocally in writing, and if, after three such interchanges, they do not agree, then all the delegates (or an equal number of members from each Delegation) meet together, and, without discussion, settle the matter by vote.

Besides the political connection between Austria and Hungary, which is of a permanent character, there is a commercial union which is not permanent, but renewable at intervals of ten years. Under this arrangement the two States form practically one customs and commercial territory with the common coinage, weights and measures, a joint bank of issue and the same commercial (consular) representation abroad, while the monopolies connected with industrial production (salt, tobacco, spirits, beer, sugar and so on) are administered on identical principles in both countries. This political and commercial union, begun in 1867, was renewed in 1878, 1887, and 1907. In 1907 an agreement was attained, in fact, however, a commercial union was kept in vigour.

(maintained also legally by Hungary, by Law XXX, 1899) — the condition of reciprocity.

The three ministries — executive departments for — affairs —

1 The Common Ministry of Foreign Affairs and of the Imperial and Royal House — Count Leopold Berchtold, Privy Councillor Appointed February 19, 1912

2 The Common Ministry of War — General Krobatkin Appointed December 10, 1912

3 The Common Ministry of Finance — Dr. de Biliński, Privy Councillor, born January 16, 1851, formerly Imperial Finance Minister Appointed Minister of Finance for the whole Monarchy, February 20, 1912

To these departments must be added —

The Common Court of Public Accounts — Dr. Ernst Baron Plener, Privy Councillor, born October 18, 1841 Appointed July 10, 1895

The Ministers — responsible for the discharge of their official functions to the Delegations Common Finance.

The cost of the administration of common affairs is borne by both States in a proportion agreed on by the Reichsrath and Parliament (Országgyűlés), and sanctioned by the Emperor and King. The agreement, which expired in 1897, was renewed for ten years — 1907. According to this agreement the net proceeds of the common customs shall be applied to the common expenditure, and for the remainder Hungary shall pay as its quota 86 per cent and Austria 63.6 per cent.

I FRONTIER

Austria-Hungary lies in the heart of Europe. The land frontier is formed in the W by Bavaria, the Canton of St Gallen, Liechtenstein, the Canton Graubünden, and Italy, in the E by Italy, Montenegro, Turkey, Serbia, and Rumania, in the E by Rumania, in the N by Russia, in the N by Prussia, and in the N W by Saxony.

Natural frontiers are the Rhetian Mountains, the Bohemian Massif, the Inn, and the Alpine towards Bavaria, the Alpine towards the Canton of St Gallen, the High Alps towards Graubünden and Italy, the Lago di Garda and Carnic Alps, also towards Italy towards Turkey, the Danube towards Rumania, towards Serbia, Sava and Danube towards Rumania, the South and Carpathians towards Russia, the Danube and Vistula towards Prussia, the Risen and Jura Gebirge towards Saxony, the Elbe towards

The following are the chief territorial defences.—In Galicia, Cracow, fortified and entrenched camp at Przemyśl. Hungary, on the left of the Tisza, Gyulafahervar, Arad, and Temesvar, on the Danube, Komárom, Pétervárad, and Orsova. In Dalmatia is the coast fortification of Cattaro in Istria, Pola, fortified naval harbour. The Alpine frontier, Tyrol have defences on all the routes, and also between Tyrol and the Adriatic. Sarajevo is a fortified place. The Austrian capital, Vienna, and the Hungarian capital, Budapest, are undefended. Pola, the chief naval port, is strongly fortified, both towards sea and land, and has been recently enlarged, so as to be able to accommodate the entire fleet. The arsenal of the imperial and royal navy is also in Pola. Trieste is the great store house, and there is also an arsenal of the navy.

II ARMY

The peculiar Constitution of the Dual Monarchy is reflected in the organisation of its military forces. The first line of the Austro-Hungarian army is under the common government, and is known as the 'Common' Army, which includes the troops raised in the newly annexed Provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Austrian Landwehr and Landsturm are, however, entirely separate from the Hungarian Landwehr (Honvéd) and the Hungarian Landsturm (Nepfőlkész). The two latter form the Hungarian national army.

Military service is compulsory and universal throughout the Empire, extending to all, including the Mahomedans of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Liability extends from the 19th year to the end of the 42nd year. Actual service usually is the 3rd year. In the 'Common Army, continuous service is, according to law XXX of 1912, for 2 years (years for cavalry and horse artillery), by 10 in the reserve (years with colours and 7 reserve for cavalry and horse artillery), and 2 years in the reserve of the Landwehr; years altogether.

There is no Landwehr in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but the men remain 12 years in the reserve. Reservists must undergo three trainings in their service, no one period to exceed 4 weeks. In practice the training periods are much less. After completion of his 12th year of service the soldier passes to the Landsturm, in which he remains till he has reached his 42nd birthday. The annual contingent of recruits for the Common Army is fixed at 159,500, but of these 4,000 at present go to the Navy.

The Landwehr forces are not formed, except to a small extent, of men who have passed through the first line. Both Austrian Landwehr and Hungarian Honvédek are permanently embodied, and train their recruits, though the peace establishments of units are lower than in the Common Army. When the young men of proper age present themselves for enrolment, those who draw the lowest numbers are allotted to the Common Army until the required contingent is obtained. The next lowest go to the Landwehr, and the remainder of those who are physically fit are passed, with very few exceptions, to the Ersatz, or supplementary, reserve. Landwehr service is 2 years with the colours and 10 in the reserve. The reservists of the Austrian Landwehr are liable to be called out for training for a total of 20 weeks and those of the Honvéd for a total of 25 weeks, in their entire life service, no one period to exceed 4 weeks. Men who have passed through the first line can be called out once in their 2 years. The contingent of recruits for the Austrian Landwehr is 19,500, that for the Honvéd is 25,000.

The Ersatz reserve is primarily intended to maintain the strength of units on field service. There are separate Ersatz reserves for the Common Army, and for each of the Landwehr forces. All undergo 4 weeks' training in their first year and are afterwards liable to be called out for the same periods as the other reservists of the force to which they belong.

One year volunteers are admitted to the army, and many of them become reserve officers.

The Empire is divided into 16 army corps districts. Each army corps district is supposed to furnish a complete army corps of 2 divisions of the Common Army, but one district has 3 divisions. Each of these divisions consists of 2 brigades (each of 3 battalions), 1 artillery brigade (16 batteries of 6 guns each), a regiment of cavalry, a jagm (militia) battalion, &c. Each Army Corps district, except those including Bosnia and Herzegovina, has also 1 Landwehr and Honvéd division, but one district has 2 Honvéd divisions. The Austrian Landwehr has artillery, the Honvéd at present consists only of infantry and cavalry, but artillery is now to be organised. Bosnia and Herzegovina are almost entirely garrisoned by battalions detached from line regiments, while the 4 B. H. regiments are brigaded with Austrian regiments at Vienna and elsewhere, so that the higher organisation is somewhat complicated, and the brigades are generally short of a battalion or two.

There are 6 permanent cavalry divisions (3 of these on the Russian frontier), but 8 could be mobilised in event of war. Each army corps would have about 34,000 combatants, and each cavalry division about 4,000 combatants. The total strength of regulars in the field army may therefore be taken at 590,000 combatants. To these must be added the Austrian Landwehr and Honvéd divisions, about 230,000. Grand total about 820,000 combatants.

The War Minister (always a general officer of high rank) is the head of the Imperial War office, which administers the Common Army. The Austrian Defence Minister is in charge of the Austrian Landwehr and Landsturm, and the Hungarian Defence Minister (Honvéd Minister) of the corresponding Hungarian forces, they are severally responsible to the Emperor-King for efficiency, while their respective Parliaments for administration and finance.

The following were budgeted on account of the Army in 1911: Common Army, £14,760,178, extraordinary expenditure, £1,749,614; Austrian Landwehr, £2,689,156; Hungarian Honvéd, £2,648,822; military expenditure charged Bosnia-Herzegovina, £268,026. Total, £22,060,797.

The of the Austro-Hungarian infantry is the Mannlicher magazine rifle, model 95, calibre 315. The cavalry carry the Mannlicher which takes the ammunition as the rifle.

The field gun fires a shrapnel of 14½ lb. The field howitzer batteries are armed with a 10.5 cm. piece, weighing 10 cwt and firing a 30-lb. shell. The mountain gun is the 7 cm. malleable bronze gun, weighing 257 lb., shell 10½ or 10½ lb.; a 10 cm. mountain howitzer is being introduced. All batteries have 6 guns in peace. In war, field guns and howitzer batteries, 6 guns, mountain batteries, 4.

The following table shows the peace establishments of the Common Army, the Austrian Landwehr, and the Hungarian Honvédség, in 1912:—

NAVY

Estimates (expenditure), 1912, 2,989,884; 1911, 2,860,717; 1910, 2,781,550.

The Hungarian navy is mainly a coast defensive force, maintained in a state of high efficiency, and including a flotilla of monitors for the Danube. It is administered by the Naval Department of the Ministry of War. The ships are to replace others growing obsolete, and the programme provides for a fleet of 12 armoured cruisers between 20,000 and 30,000 tons, 12 second-class cruisers (4,000 to 7,000 tons), 12 third class cruisers (1,500 to 2,500 tons), 12 torpedo boat destroyers, and 12 torpedo boats, exclusive of the Danube flotillas. The headquarters of the fleet is Pola, and there are other establishments upon the Dalmatian coast. The Austro-Hungarian fleet is thus constituted:—

In the common customs territory the values are fixed annually by a commission, comprising representatives of agriculture, sylviculture, trade and industry. In general, net values are taken for imports and gross values for exports, and be determined at the crossing of the frontier. The commission has for according to the countries of origin or of destination, and only employ averages exceptionally. Quantities declared, but the administration may, and in imports always does, declarations. Weight declared either net or gross, according to the tariff regulations. The recorded country of origin of production, the country of destination is that where goods are to be consumed. When the prime origin and ultimate destination unknown, the most distant points of transit recorded. Trade by countries:—

Money and Credit.

The only State bank is the Austro-Hungarian, formerly the National Bank (Nemzeti bank). The bank, during the continuance of its privilege, has the exclusive right to issue bank-notes. The charter of the bank, which expired at the end of 1910, was renewed and extended to the year 1917. The sum of bank-notes in circulation, at least two-fifths must be covered by supply of metal, silver or gold, coined or in bullion. The amount of notes in circulation exceeds the necessary to cover them by Money, Weights, ■ Measures.

In Austria by law of August 2, 1892, and in Hungary by Law XVII of 1902, the monetary system of Austria-Hungary was reformed ■ a gold basis, though the standard coin, the crown (krona, korona), is not coined in gold.

The new coins with English equivalents are—

Gold:—

The hundred-crown piece (gross weight 33.8753387 grammes 0.900 fine, and fine weight 30.4878048 grams)=4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* (law of August 11, 1907).

The twenty-crown piece (weighing 6.775067 gramme 0.900 fine, and thus containing 6.09756 grammes of fine gold) = 16*s.* ■

The single ducat = 11 ■ 29 heller (fillér) = 9*s.* 4½*d.*

Silver:—

Five-crown pieces = 500 heller.

Two-crown pieces (weighing 10 grammes) = 200 heller.

The single ■ (weighing 5 grammes ■ fine, and thus containing 4.175 g ■ of fine silver) = 100 heller = half-a-gulden (forint) of the old coinage = 10*d.*

The metrical system of weights and measures is legal and obligatory in Austria-Hungary. The old weights and measures were:—

The Centner (maße)	= 100 Pfund = 56 kg.	= 128½ lbs. avoirdupois.
„ Eimer (akó)	= 56.59 litre	= 12.49 wine gallons.
„ Joch (hold)	= 5,754.64 square metre	= 1.43 „

AUSTRIA.

Constitution and Government.

I. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT.

The political representation is twofold—(1) for all the Austrian provinces (Reichsrath); (2) for each separate province (Landtag).

The Reichsrath or Parliament consists of an Upper and a Lower House. The Upper House (Herrenhaus) is formed, 1st, of the princes of the Imperial family who are of age, 15 in number in 1911; 2nd, of a number of nobles—81 in the present Reichsrath—possessing large landed property, in whose families by nomination of the Emperor the dignity is hereditary; 3rd, archbishops, 10 in number, and bishops, 7 in number, who are of princely title inherent to their episcopal seat; and 4th, of any other life-members nominated by the Emperor, on account of being distinguished in art or science, who have rendered signal services to Church or State—159 in 1911. (Under law of January 26, 1907, the number of these members must not exceed 170, nor be less than 150.)

Under the Electoral Law of January 26, 1907, the Lower House (Abgeordnetenhaus) is elected on the basis of universal, equal, and direct suffrage. Entitled to vote for a deputy are all Austrian male citizens over 24 years of age who have resided for at least a year in the place of election. The electoral districts are in most provinces composed, as far as possible, of uniform nationality, and are divided from each other, according to their character, into urban (industrial) or rural. In general there is only one deputy to be elected for an electoral district; but in the districts of Galicia, two for each. In these 36 districts the principle of the single vote is followed, inasmuch as each qualified elector has only the right to one vote, though two deputies may be chosen. The candidate who receives more than half the number of votes recorded is regarded as the first deputy, and the one who receives more than a fourth of the votes, as the second. For the deputies of these electoral districts, there are elected, at the same time, substitutes who, in case of failure of the deputy's mandate, enter the House, so that for one of these districts an election is held only when the mandates of both deputies fail. By this system the national minorities in those parts of Galicia which have a mixed Polish-Ruthenian population have their representation assured. In Moravia, the population entitled to vote is divided, in elections for the provincial Landtag, according to nationality, so that German and Bohemian electors choose their deputies separately. In Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, Carniola, Moravia, Silesia, Vorarlberg, Bukovina, under provincial laws each elector is obliged to appear at the election for a member of the Reichsrath, and present an electoral ticket, the penalty for neglect of this obligation being a fine of up to fifty kronen.

The total number of members is distributed as follows. Lower 64, or 1 for every 55,185 subjects of the State, Upper Austria 22, = 1 for 38,773, Salzburg 7, = 1 for 30,677, Styria 30, = 1 for 48,139, Carinthia 10, or 1 for 39,620, Carniola 12, = 1 for 71,833, Trieste 5, or 1 for 15,902; Gorz and Gradisca = 1 for 43,154, Istria 6, = 1 for 67,261, Tyrol 25, or 1 for 37,865, Vorarlberg 4, or = 1 for 36,352, Bohemia 130, or 1 for 52,074, Moravia 49, or 1 for 51,516, Silesia 15, or 1 for 50,443, Galicia 106, = 1 for 75,714; Bukovina 14, = 1 for 57,150, Dalmatia 11 = 1 for 58,697, Total 616, = 1 for 55,372. The duration of the Lower House of the Reichsrath is for the term of six years. Members of the Lower House receive 20 crowns (164 8d) for each day's attendance, with = indemnity for travelling expenses. In case of dissolution new elections must take place within = months. The Emperor nominates the president and vice president of the Upper House of the Reichsrath, while those of the Lower House = elected by the members. It = incumbent upon the head of the State to assemble the Reichsrath annually. All constitutional matters concerning rights, duties and interests that are common to all provinces of Austria Proper must be regulated by the Reichsrath. To give validity to bills passed by the Reichsrath, the consent of both Chambers = = well = the sanction of the head of the State. The members of both the Upper and the Lower House have the right to propose new laws = subjects within the competence of the Reichsrath.

Lower House (June, 1911) German Nationalists, 100, Christian Socialists (German), 73, German Social Democrats, 49, United Bohemian Club, 84, Bohemian Social Democrats, 25, Poles, 70, Polish Social Democrats, 9, Ukraine Union, 28, Croatian Slavonian Club, 27, Dalmatians, 7, Union latina, 21; Independents, 23.

The Ministry for Austria Proper is as follows, November, 1911:—

Premier —Count Karl Stürgkh

Minister of the Interior —Dr Karl Baron Heilmold

In Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, Styria, Carinthia, Carniola, Trieste and district, Goriz and Gradiska, Istria, Vorarlberg, Moravia, and Bukowina, there is besides, a general electoral class in which every qualified male subject of the State ■■■ 21 years of ■■■ who has been domiciled for the required time has a vote. Where a general electoral class exists, persons authorised to vote in the other electoral classes are authorised to vote also in the general electoral classes; this ■■■ not the case with respect to votes for the Landtag in Styria, Vorarlberg, and in the cities of Vienna and Trieste. In Moravia, under the arrangement made by the Provincial Diet November 27 1905 the proportional system ■■■ introduced for the electoral classes of the great landowners and the chambers of commerce and industry, the other electoral classes (town country parishes and general electoral classes) are divided into constituencies according to nationality, German and Bohemian electoral districts being formed, ■■■ that German and Bohemian voters choose their representatives separately.

Religion.

The leading principle is religious liberty, and the independence of the Church as regards the State, saving the rights of the sovereign arising from ecclesiastical dignity.

The Minister for Ecclesiastical Affairs will grant legal recognition to any religious bodies if their doctrine worship, constitution, and designation contain nothing illegal or immoral (Statute of May 20, 1874).

The Catholic Church has 7 Latin archbishoprics, 1 Greek-Ruthenian, and 1 Armenian archbishopric, 11 Latin and 11 Greek-Ruthenian bishoprics. The Greek Oriental Orthodox Church has 1 archbishopric and 11 bishoprics. Protestants have 11 superintendents of the Augsburg confession, 8 of the Helvetican, and 1 of the mixed. The Gymnasias and Realschulen are schools whose practical purpose consists especially in the preparation they supply for the universities and technical and other high schools. The curriculum of the former extends over eight years, of the latter, over seven. They are, so far as they are public, maintained by the State, by separate provinces, by the larger communes, or (in the case of confessional schools) by ecclesiastical foundations &c., eventually with a subvention from the State. Private middle schools of a semi-official kind are included in the following table: these are under the same regulations as public schools.

Justice and Crime.

In Austria the ordinary judicial authorities are —

(1) The Supreme Court of Justice and Court of Cassation (Oesterreichs-Obersten Gerichtshof) in Vienna. (2) The 9 higher provincial courts (Oberlandesgerichte). (3) The 71 provincial and district courts (Landes- und Kreisgerichte) and, in connection with these, the jury courts (Schwurgerichte). (4) The 962 county courts (Bezirksgerichte).

There exist also special courts for commercial (3 courts, and 3 county courts), for industry (20 courts) shipping revenue, military, and other matters.

In case of conflict between different authorities the Court of the Empire (Reichsgericht) in Vienna has power to decide. Private persons ■ in certain cases appeal against the decisions of magistrates to the High Court for Administrative Affairs.

Pauperism

The right to poor relief is defined by an imperial statute, but the regulations for the apportionment of the cost are made by the separate provinces. The funds first available are the public funds for the support of the poor (Localarmutskasse and Armenanstalt), the latter existing now only in Styria, Vorarlberg, Moravia, and Tyrol, derived from endowments, voluntary contributions, the poor's third of the property left by intestate secular priests, and certain percentages on the proceeds of voluntary sales. In some provinces the poor's funds are augmented from other sources, e.g. theatre money (Spectakelgelder), hunting licences, dog certificates, and in some large towns percentages on legacies ■ a fixed amount. When, in any given case, these funds ■ exhausted, the ■ of origin (Heimatsgemeinde) must make provision. Those who are wholly ■ partially unfit for work ■ be provided for ■ such ■ as the ■ judges propose. Besides poor houses and money relief, there ■ ■ many provinces the practice of assigning the poor—in respect of board and lodging—to each of the resident householders in fixed succession (Kinlegensystem).

In ■■■■ provinces unions (Verbande) have been formed by statute ■■■■ undertake certain burdens ■■■■ to poor relief. In Lower Austria the care of the poor is incumbent partly on the communes and partly on the District Unions (Bezirksarmenverbände). By the erection of houses for forwarding vagrants ■■■■ their proper ■■■■ (Schubstationen), a great step ■■■■ taken towards the suppression of begging and vagrancy.

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY.

The cultivation of the soil furnishes employment to nearly half the population. The proportion of productive land is greatest in Dalmatia, Silesia, Moravia, Bukovina, Bohemia, and Galicia; least in Salzburg and Tyrol.

An enumeration made ■ June 3, 1902, showed that there were at that date 2,856,849 holdings of land, of which 2,133,506 were for agriculture; 713,382 for agriculture and forestry; and 9,461 for forestry only. Of the agricultural holdings, 19,746 were vineyards, 3,445 were gardens, 112,067 (of 175,070 hectares) were under sugar-beet, and 27,767 (of 20,020 hectares) under hops. Of the holdings, 2,054,035 were owned by the occupier, 681,042 were partly owned and partly rented, 151,649 were rented and 19,023 were held in shares, or for service, or otherwise.

HUNGARY.

Constitution and Government.

I CENTRAL AND PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

The Constitution of the eastern part of the monarchy, or the kingdom of Hungary including Hungary Proper and Croatia Slavonia, dates from the occupation of the country by the Magyars about 1000. The first king, Saint Stephen, was crowned in 1000. The first charter—constitutional code is the 'Bulla Aurea' of King Andrew II. granted in 1222 which defined the form of government as an aristocratic monarchy. The Hungarian Constitution has been repeatedly suspended and partially disregarded, until, at the end of the armed struggle of 1849 it was declared to be forfeited by the nation. This decree was repealed in 1860, and the present sovereign, on June 1 1867, swore to maintain the Constitution and was crowned king of Hungary.

The Hungarian Parliament (Országgyűlés) has legislative authority for Hungary, and for Croatia and Slavonia in matters which concern these provinces in common with Hungary Proper. It consists of an Upper House (Kisasszony) and a Lower House (Kezvezőtestület).

The House of Magnates, reformed by an Act passed in 1885, includes the archbishops who have attained their majority (18 years), those Hungarian princes, counts and barons—of age (24 years) and paying at least 6,000 crowns a year land tax—whose families possess the right of hereditary peerage (designated by Act of 1885—having received it since by a special Act), 38 archbishops, bishops, and other dignitaries of the Roman Catholic and Greek Churches, 12 ecclesiastical and lay representatives of the Protestant Confessions, life peers appointed by the Crown not exceeding 50 in number, life peers elected, once for all, by the Upper House, 17 members ex officio, being State Ministers (Ministerpräsident) and high judges, and lastly, 9 delegates of Croatia Slavonia, and the Governor of Banat. In the year of 1911 12 the number of archbishops was 15, and there were 229 hereditary peers holding the property qualification, and 60 life peers appointed by the Crown or chosen by the House of Magnates.

The Lower House—House of Representatives is elected by the vote of all male citizens, of 26 years of age, who pay a small direct tax on house property or land, or on an income varying with occupation, but all classes low. Certain large classes—professional, scientific, learned, and others—are entitled to vote without other qualifications. There were in 1911, 99,329. The number of the electorate was in 1911 in Hungary Proper, 1,197,726—24.9 per cent of the total civil male population over 20 years. New elections must take place every five years. By the electoral law now in force, the House of Representatives consists of 413 members, of whom 413—deputies of Hungarian towns and districts, and 11 delegates of Croatia and Slavonia.

Members of the Lower House receive 4,800 crowns (200l.) a year, with allowance of 1,600 crowns (66l. 13s.) for house rent.

The Parliament is summoned annually by the King at Budapest. The language of the Parliament is Hungarian, but the representatives of Croatia and Slavonia may speak their own language.

Lower House (June 1910).—"National party of work, 255; Independents (in their two sections—Kossuthites, 58, and Justhites, 38), 91; other parties (Social Democrats, Christian Socialists, Farmers), 111."

The executive power of the kingdom is in a responsible ministry, consisting of a presidency and nine departments, namely —

The Presidency of the Council — Dr Ladislas Lukacs, Privy Councillor, born October 24, 1850 appointed April 22, 1912

1 The Ministry of Finance — John Telezsky, Privy Councillor, born September 15 1868, appointed April 22, 1912

2 The Ministry of National Defence (Honvedelm) — Samuel Hazni, Privy Councillor, born 1851, appointed January 17, 1910

3 The Ministry of the king's person (ad latus) — The Premier

4 The Ministry of the Interior — Dr Ladislas Jula, Privy Councillor, appointed April 22, 1912

5 The Ministry of Education and of Public Worship — Count John Zichy, Privy Councillor, born May 30 1868, appointed March 1 1910

6 The Ministry of Justice — Dr de Balogh, Privy Councillor, appointed January 4, 1913

7 The Ministry of Industry and Commerce — Ladislas Scutty, born June 4, 1860, appointed October 18, 1911

8 The Ministry of Agriculture — Count Adalbert Serey, Privy Councillor, born June 16, 1866, appointed January 17, 1910

9 The Minister for Croatia and Slavonia — Gata Jospovich, Privy Councillor, appointed April 22, 1912

The provinces of Croatia and Slavonia have autonomy for home affairs, public instruction, and justice

The Croatian Slavonian Provincial Diet meeting annually at Zagreb (Agram), consists of 114 members, elected for five years, representing 21 town districts and 69 rural districts, and of personal voters (not more than half). The electors must have a low property qualification, be of certain professions, or pay a small tax. Personal voters are certain ecclesiastical and political dignitaries, and the members of certain noble families (Magnates) possessing the right by inheritance or by royal nomination. They must pay at least 2,000 florins of land tax.

At the head of the autonomous provincial government, which has three departments (Interior, Public Instruction and Worship, and Justice), is the Ban, who is responsible to the Provincial Diet and to the Hungarian Prime Minister.

Ban — Edward Csanaky Privy Councillor, appointed January 19, 1912

II LOCAL GOVERNMENT

In Hungary, a distinction is observed between communes which are large or small, or may be townships with regular magistrates, and municipalities, which are regarded as communes of a higher order. The communal electoral right is possessed by every male inhabitant over twenty years of age who for two years has paid the State tax. The representative body is composed half of members elected for three years, and half of persons who pay the highest tax. The committee consists of members appointed for the towns for six years, in the rural communes for three years, with officials appointed for life. The counties and cities invested with similar rights are independent municipalities. Their council constituted similarly is the representative body of the communes; 12 members are elected for three years. All electors for the communes are qualified to vote. In Budapest they must be able to read and write. The executive is in the hands of the official body of the municipality, who sit and vote with the council.

In Croatia and Slavonia each county has an assembly similar to the Hungarian local representative bodies. The electoral qualification is the same for the Diet. The municipalities within the county (except Zagreb and Eszék) send delegates, and the higher county officials also sit and vote. In the rural communes the representative body is the council, elected for three years, in the towns for four years. In the former the executive is in the hands of the magistrates, in the latter, of the municipal council.

Area and Population.

I.—PROGRESS AND PRESENT CONDITION

The Hungarian dominions, including Croatia and Slavonia, have an area of 324,857 square kilometres, or 125,395 English square miles. At the last four census enumerations the total (civil and military) population was as follows:—

Year	Population	Absolute increase	Yearly increase per cent

The executive power of the kingdom is in a responsible ministry, consisting of a presidency and nine departments, namely —

The Presidency of the Council — Dr Lúdvig Lukács, Privy Councillor, born October 24, 1850 appointed April 22, 1912

1 The Ministry of Finance — John Telezky, Privy Councillor, born September 15 1868, appointed April 22, 1912

2 The Ministry of National Defence (Honvédség) — Samuel Hauer, Privy Councillor born 1851, appointed January 17 1910

3 The Ministry of the King's person (ad latus) — The Premier

4 The Ministry of the Interior — Dr Lúdvig Fülöp, Privy Councillor, appointed April 22, 1912

5 The Ministry of Education and of Public Worship — Count John Zichy, Privy Councillor, born May 1865, appointed March 1 1910

6 The Ministry of Justice — Dr de Balogh, Privy Councillor, appointed January 4, 1913

7 The Ministry of Industry and Commerce — Lúdvig Beatty born June 4, 1860 appointed October 18, 1911

8 The Ministry of Agriculture — Count Adalbert Szevay, Privy Councillor born June 16, 1866, appointed January 17, 1910

9 The Ministry for Croatia and Slavonia — Gisa Jorjosek Privy Councillor, appointed April 22, 1912

The provinces of Croatia and Slavonia have autonomy for home affairs, public instruction, and justice.

The Croatian Slavonian Provincial Diet meeting annually at Zagreb (Agram), consists of 90 members, elected for five years, representing 21 town districts and 69 rural districts, and of personal voters (not more than half). The electors must have a low property qualification, be of certain professions, or pay a small tax. Personal voters are certain ecclesiastical and political dignitaries, and the members of certain noble families (Magnates) possessing the right by inheritance or by royal nomination. They must pay at least 2,000 crowns of land tax.

At the head of the autonomous provincial government, which has three departments (Interior, Public Instruction and Worship, and Justice), is the Ban, who is responsible to the Provincial Diet and to the Hungarian Prime Minister.

Ban — Edward Csáky Privy Councillor, appointed January 19 1912

II LOCAL GOVERNMENT

In Hungary, a distinction is observed between communities which are large or small, which may be townships with regular magistrates, and municipalities, which are regarded as of a higher order. The communal electoral right is possessed by every male inhabitant over twenty years of age who for two years has paid the State tax. The representative body is composed half of members elected for five years, and half of persons who pay the highest taxes. The committee consists of members appointed, in the towns for five years, in the rural communes for three years, with officials appointed for life. The counties and cities invested with similar rights are independent municipalities. Each has a council constituted similarly to the representative body of the communes; the members are elected for six years. All electors for the Parliament are qualified. In Budapest they must be able to read and write. The executive is in the hands of the official body of the municipality, who sit and vote with the council.

In Croatia and Slavonia each county has an assembly similar to the Hungarian local representative bodies. The electoral qualification is the same for the Diet. The municipalities within the county (except Zagreb and Bazar) send delegates, and the higher county officials also sit and vote. In the rural communes the representative body is the council, elected for three years; in the towns for four years. In the former the executive is in the hands of the magistrates; in the latter, of the municipal council.

Area and Population.

1.—PROGRESS AND PRESENT CONDITION

The Hungarian dominions, including Croatia and Slavonia, have an area of 824,857 square kilometres, or 125,395 English square miles. At the last four census enumerations the total (civil and military) population was as follows:—

Year	Population	Absolute increase	Yearly increase per cent
1880	15,739,259	—	—
1890	17,463,791	1,724,532	0.99
1900	19,254,559	1,790,768	0.93
1910	20,886,787	1,631,928	0.85

The following table gives further details:—

Religion.

There is perfect equality among all legally recognized religions. These are — The Roman and Greek Catholic, the Evangelical (Augustine and Helvetian), the Unitarian, the Greek Oriental, the Gregorian Armenian, the Baptist (since 1906) and the Jewish. Each has the independent administration of its affairs.

The following figures relate to 1911 —

Persons secular (not including bishops, canons, vicars, provosts &c) —	Ministers of orders —
Catholic Church	Roman Catholic (male)	34
Greek Catholic Church	Roman Catholic (female)	131
Greek Oriental Church	Greek Catholic (male)	3,799

Instruction.

Public education in Hungary comprises the following grades — (1) infant schools, (2) elementary schools and repetition courses, (3) middle or secondary schools, gymnasia and realschools (in Croatia and Slavonia, realgymnasias), (4) preparatory and training institutions for infant school teachers and male and female teachers, (5) academies (high schools) of law, (6) institutions for religious education, (7) universities, (8) polytechnicum (technical high school). The schools for special subjects, such as agricultural, industrial, commercial, mining, and military schools, are for the greater part administered by the competent ministries, while the philanthropic and artistic schools are placed under the authority of the Ministry of Public Instruction.

The progress of elementary education in Hungary in two intercensal periods is shown in the following statement —

School attendance is compulsory for children of six to twelve years and repetition courses for children of twelve to fifteen years. The industrial law of 1884 requires special courses for apprentices, and by the law of 1891 children from three to six years of age may be sent to infant schools, unless otherwise provided for.

Every parish or commune is bound to maintain an infant school. There were in 1911 altogether 2,817 infant schools with 217,344 infants, and 10 training colleges for nurses.

Primary education is of three grades — (1) Elementary schools connected with a repetition school, (2) high primary schools for boys and girls separately, with, respectively, a three and two years' course for commercial or industrial education, and closely associated with the sixth class of the elementary school, (3) the so-called 'higher schools' (Polgári iskolák) for boys and girls separately, with, respectively, a six and a four years' course, and connected with the fourth class of the elementary school. There are also high schools for girls mostly supported by the State.

Every parish or commune is bound to have a school if the number of children of school age is thirty. For the support of the elementary schools every commune levies an additional tax of 5 per cent on the direct State taxes. There were in 1910-1911, 19,339 primary schools with 47,487 teachers, and 2,938,091 pupils. The number of the children of school age was 3,545,014, number of training colleges 96, with 1,201 teachers and 10,271 pupils. There were besides 200 'humanistic' schools, and 100 prison schools with a total attendance of 68,873.

In the gymnasia and realschools (in Croatia and Slavonia, the realgymnasias) the curriculum extends to eight years. They are maintained by the State, by the larger communes, or (in the case of the denominational schools) by ecclesiastical foundations, with sometimes a subvention from the State. There were in 1910-1911, 187 gymnasia, with 3,852 teachers and 63,544 pupils, 42 real schools, with 1,020 teachers and 14,072 pupils.

There are five universities maintained by the State, each comprising four faculties, viz., theology, law, medicine, philosophy (the university of Zágráb is without the faculty of medicine): the university of Budapest, with 422 professors, &c., and 6,858 students; the University of Kolozsvár (Klausenburg), with 139 professors and 2,107 students; the University of Zágráb (Agram), with 91 professors and 1,197 students in 1911, and the Universities of Pozsony (Presburg), and Debreczen—the last two having been founded in 1912. There are also 49 theological colleges, viz., 29 Catholic, 1 Greek Catholic, 4 Greek Oriental, 10 Protestant, and 1 Jewish, with a total of 330 professors and 2,153 students; and 10 law schools with 122 professors and 1,380 students. The technical high school (polytechnicum) in Budapest has 11 professors and 1,676 students. There were in 1911, 64 institutes for agriculture, 673 for industries of all kinds, 187 for commerce, 54 for art and music, 6 for mining, 15 for military training, with 143,290 students and 9,210 teachers. There were of the 673 industrial schools, 590 for apprentices, with 4,378 teachers and 101,990 pupils; of the 187 commercial schools, 111 for apprentices, with 522 teachers and 6,743 pupils. The number of pupils at elementary schools was 2,159,698; at middle schools, 577,324; at higher city schools (polgári iskolák), 91,709. Of the school children (in proper Hungary) 1,424,821 were Magyar (Hungarian). Of the 18,126 elementary schools, 13,094 were Magyar; 463 German; 422 Slovaks; 2,301 Rumanian; 1,769 Croatian and Serb; other languages, 77. The number of teachers in elementary schools was 86,053.

In 1911, 2,019 periodicals of various kinds were published in Hungary, 411 being political papers. Of the whole, 1,498 were in Hungarian (80·27 per cent. in Hungary proper), 71 in Hungarian with another language, 158 in German, the rest being in Slovakish, Croatian, Serbian, Ruthenian, French, Italian, &c.

Justice and Crime.

In Hungary the ordinary judicial authorities are:—

The Royal Supreme Court (kir. Kuria) in Budapest and the Supreme Court of Justice (Tábla of Septemvirs) in Zágráb (Agram), of the highest instance in all civil and criminal matters; 12 Royal Tables (királyi táblák) of second instance. As courts of first instance, 76 county courts (törvényszékek) with collegiate judgeships; 458 district courts (járásbíróságok) with single judges; 15 jury courts, (sajtóbiróságok) for press offences, besides an army special court.

There are 11 penal establishments in Hungary for males, and 1 for females.

There have been convicted in Hungary proper for offences falling under the competence of the county courts and of the district courts 129,794 persons in 1908, 121,601 in 1909, 122,994 in 1910; and 125,465 in 1911; for offences within the competence of the administrative authorities, 625,948 in 1908; 682,113 in 1909; and 693,017 in 1910. In Croatia-Slavonia the number of the convicted at the county courts was 2,893 in 1908; 4,095 in 1909; 3,969 in 1910; and 3,223 in 1911; at the district courts 30,906 in 1908, 32,081 in 1909, 29,613 in 1910, and 30,368 in 1911.

Pauperism.

In Hungary poor relief is attached to the Ministry of the Interior, but in the main is left to communal administration. In the smaller towns orphans and the indigent are cared for by official guardians and trustees while in the larger towns are poor-houses, the funds being mostly derived from fines and taxes. The number of asylums for paupers and orphans is about 300. The Church and charitable societies also render assistance, and several millions of florins are annually bestowed in legacies and gifts towards benevolent purposes.

Production and Industry.

I.—AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY.

The cultivation of the soil is the chief industry of Hungary, since (if we include the forests) it furnishes employment to 68·4 per cent. of the population. According to the census of 1900, 12,977,419 persons are supported by agriculture properly so-called; 11,864 persons by dairy work, sheep breeding, and poultry; 43,954 persons by market gardening and horticulture; 182,399 by forestry, the chase, and charcoal-burning, and 9,447 by other agricultural occupations.

The total area of all the holdings in 1911 was 32,496,701 hectares (81,241,752 acres), and the different branches of culture were distributed as follows:—

Branch of culture (1911)	Hectares	Percentage of area
Arable land	18,971,943	42·99
Gardens	430,327	1·32
Meadows	3,170,020	9·78

Government.—The Provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina were, by the Treaty of Berlin (July 13, 1878), handed over to the Austro-Hungarian Government for administration and military occupation. By autograph letter of October 5, 1908, addressed to the Premiers of the two States, the sovereignty of his Majesty the Emperor-King was extended over these two provinces. The direction of their administration is exercised by the Bosnian Bureau, entrusted to the common Austro-Hungarian Finance Minister in Vienna in the name of the Emperor-King.

Common Minister of Finance and Administrator.—Dr. de Bilinski, appointed Feb. 20, 1912.

The chief authority in the province itself, with its seat in Sarajevo, is the provincial government (Landesregierung), in four departments, for internal affairs, finance, justice, and public works, and matters of political economy. For administration purposes there are 6 district (Kreis) and 54 county (Bezirk) authorities. The new Constitution was proclaimed on February 20, 1910. The Diet chosen by universal suffrage is competent to deal with provincial finance, taxes, railways, police, public works and civil and criminal law, subject to Austrian or Hungarian veto. There are three divisions of the electorate. The electors of the First Division are subdivided according to their qualification and the nature and amount of the tax paid, and in all three divisions the number of representatives in the Diet is fixed according to the number of the inhabitants professing each religion. The Jews have 12 seats, the Roman Catholics 16, the Mohammedans 24, and the Orthodox 31. The Government appoints, besides 12 members, 12 representing the authorities, 16 others being spiritual heads of the Orthodox, the Mohammedan, the Roman Catholic, and the Jewish religious organizations; total, 72 elected members and 12 nominated. The President and Vice-Presidents of the Assembly are appointed by the Emperor each Session, each religion being represented and holding the Presidency in turn.

Area and Population.—Bosnia and Herzegovina contain 11 districts (Kreise), with an area of 19,768 square miles. Population, 1910, 1,898,044 (994,852 males and 903,192 females). Population, Dec. 31, 1911, 1,928,838, of whom there were: Mohammedans, 618,317;
